of the students then dispersed.
Before Brown spoke, McAuley, Fischer and Worth each talked, discussing student rights at A&M, contributions to a peace fast and student elections.
Worth told the crowd that he doesn't want to go to Vietnam and that he won't go.

He also admitted that his candidacy was a subterfuge for having the rally: "Sure, this is just a front. I'm running for office because this is the only way we students can have an assembly like this."
Brown was in jail about an hour and a half before his fine was paid by the representative of the American Civil Liberties Union. A collection was also taken up by the Campus Committee of Concern to pay the fine.

"I am reminded," he said, "of the State of Mississippi in 1964. I'd also like to thank Mr. (O. L.) Luther, a Texas Ranger, for his kindness."
Brown, a private translator, said that he will see a lawyer about an appeal.
"I'd hate to have a record in Brazos County," he said.

Campus Briefs

Chess Tourney Set Here This Weekend
Chess players will congregate here this weekend for the San Jacinto Open Tournament, a regional qualifying tourney for state championship play.
The Memorial Student Center chess committee will host the affair, a five-round U. S. Chess Federation-rated Swiss tourney with a 50 move-two hour time limit.
Committee chairman Rudy de la Graza said matches will be played in Room 2B of the MSC, play starting after a one-hour registration period at 8 a.m. Saturday.
First prize is $100 with other awards to be based on entry fees. The fee is $10 per person with USCF and Texas Chess Association membership required.
Among entries are Dr. Dusan Djuric, meteorology professor, and Rolf Smith, spring university champ.
Inquiries should be addressed to David Line, tournament director, Meteorology Department.

industries, waste discharge locations and the sampling and analysis operations of the crew.
Paul Cunningham, NBC reporter, also joined the operation for a full-day cruise and interviewed Dr. Roy W. Hann Jr., project director. Hann discussed the university's water quality program and answered questions concerning possible solutions to the ship channel's pollution problem.
The footage is scheduled to be shown between 8:30 and 9 a.m. Monday. The program, with approximately six million viewers nationwide, may be seen locally on Channels 2 and 6.

Water Quality Ship To be Shown on TV
The university's water quality research project on the Houston Ship Channel will be featured Monday on NBC-TV's "Today" Show as the start of a full week of programs highlighting environmental problems.
An NBC camera crew spent two days last week on project sampling runs aboard the R/V Excellence, water quality research vessel operated by the Environmental Engineering Division of the Civil Engineering Department.

NASA Awards Vet Grant to Hightower
Dr. Dan Hightower of the College of Veterinary Medicine has received a $119,870 grant from NASA to study the effect of low intensity, low energy proton radiation on the eyes and skin.
Dr. Hightower, associate professor of veterinary physiology and pharmacology, will be assisted by Dr. James B. Smathers, assistant professor of nuclear engineering, and Dr. J. R. Kyzar, research associate, Veterinary Physiology and Pharmacology Department.
The one year project is an extension of a previous grant from NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston. It was awarded through the Biomedical Engineering Division, Texas Engineering Experiment Station.
Studies to date have been done on rabbits, Dr. Hightower pointed out. Future studies will include the dog, miniature swine and continued studies of the rabbit, he added.

Governor Names Scientists to Panel

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith appointed 10 Texas A&M scientists Wednesday to recommend what chemicals, if any, should be banned from the state in the public interest.
The panel also will advise Smith and the legislature on the safe use of agricultural chemicals, the governor said.
Smith said that if scientific evidence indicates it would be in the public interest.

the public interest to ban certain chemicals, "we will spare no effort to insure that they are no longer used in Texas."
The scientists and their fields are Drs. P. L. Adkisson, chairman, entomology; William B. Davis, environmental engineering; John Griffiths, meteorology; Morris Merkle, soil and crop sciences; F. W. Plapp Jr., entomology; Jack Price, agricultural chemistry; Sammy Ray, biology and oceanography; Rudolph Radeleff, veterinary toxicology; James Teer, wildlife sciences; and J. van Overbeek, biology.

Go-Cart Entries To be in Monday

Deadline for entering a go-cart in the Civialian Weekend Great Race is Monday, announced Delbert Buchanan, chairman of the race committee.
The entrance of any recognized campus organization in the race requires a $5 entrance fee and a cart that meets the race specifications for safety and running class.
All carts must be powered by a 7.5 cubic inch stock engine that has no mechanical or electrical fuel pumps. The wheel base must be between 40 and 66 inches from axle to axle. Brakes must be pedal operated.
Safety measures include a crash helmet with goggles or face shield, heavy jacket, full length trousers, shoes, and socks. Gloves are suggested for hand protection.
"Seat belts are not required because roll bars are not compulsory," said Buchanan.
Buchanan said that there were a limited number of slots and that all positions will be filled on a first come first served basis. Extra slots will be given to organizations having more than one entry on the same basis.

Buchanan said that any organization without a cart and wanting one could contact him by calling 846-9464.
"We have seven or eight organizations on the waiting list, but can probably get up to 10 or 20 cars," Buchanan said.
Buchanan has registration forms at Room 24 of Legett Hall.
"There are 13 entries," Buchanan said, "and so far they are all residence halls except for University Women and the Sports Car Club."
The April 25th race, which will be a highlight of the 1970 Civialian Weekend, will be held in the Law Hall parking lot. To get the lot ready for the race, it will be closed to all day students at 5 p.m. on April 23 and to all dorm students at 5 p.m. April 24.
Elimination heats will begin at 1:30 in the afternoon the next day.
Buchanan said that it has not been decided whether the heats will be with the individual carts competing against the clock or with the runners for the final race being picked from the winners of the separate heats.
