SWC Censures Texas' Street, Harmon

HOUSTON (AP)—James Street, the quarterback who led the University of Texas to the national collegiate football championship, drew a reprimand and public censure Monday from the Southwest Athletic Conference for "regrettable misconduct and undisciplined behavior" in an April 18 baseball game.

Also reprimanded and censured was Tommy Harmon, the Longhorn catcher. Street, with a perfect game in his undefeated conference record, is the star pitcher for the Texas baseball team that holds a 12-0 conference record.

Monday's action by faculty representatives who govern the conference resulted from a game with Baylor at Austin.

On a squeeze play, the Baylor batter missed Street's pitch and Harmon tagged out a Baylor baserunner between third and home. In the confusion, Street and Dutch Schroeder, the Baylor coach, collided and Schroeder was knocked unconscious. Schroeder, coaching at third base, was rushing to lodge a protest over the play with the home plate umpire.

After two days of deliberation by the conference group, a prepared announcement said Street's "sharp bodily contact with the Baylor head coach, though apparently impulsive rather than deliberate, was reprehensible and a discredit to him, his team, his university, and the Southwest Athletic Conference."

"He read from the SWC statement that the act 'though apparently impulsive rather than deliberate, was reprehensible' and added, 'I think that's putting it very well. I'm sorry it happened.'"

The Baylor faculty athletic committee made a motion that Street be suspended from further athletic competition, but after a 90-minute discussion the Southwest Conference decided on censure, a source told The Associated Press. He declined use of his name.

Frank Erwin, chairman of the Texas Board of Regents, said in a statement:

"James Street and Tommy Harmon have brought great credit to the University of Texas at Austin and they have the complete confidence and support of the Board of Regents of the UT System. They are good students, fine athletes and outstanding competitors. At a time when many of our young people are engaging in campus riots, and disruptions these two are young men in whom not only all Texans but all of the people of this country can take pride."

The faculty group decided to appoint a special study committee on another matter involving Street.

The quarterback withdrew from school after the football season but prior to mid-term examinations and returned for the spring term without endangering his baseball eligibility. A conference rule sanctions such withdrawals provided the athlete is in good scholastic standing at the time.

"The discussions brought up the matter of hardship cases should the rule be changed in any way and this led to the decision to appoint a study committee," said Howard Grubbs, conference executive secretary.

Grubbs said the rule has been in the books at least 25 years and has been used frequently by all schools.

"It would have gone unnoticed this time had the incident involved only a third string guard," said another conference official who declined to be quoted by name.

Cliff Gustafson, the Texas baseball coach, also was admonished for the "unsportsmanlike actions of his two players."

"The conference expects the proper University of Texas authorities to assume responsibility in preventing a recurrence of such disturbing situations in the future," the announcement said.

In another action, the faculty group, without mentioning specific games, said that in the future the conference "will take increased cognizance of incidents of player conflict in athletic events."

"Coaches are to be responsible for the conduct of themselves and their players and the conference will assume a stern position in judicial action on all situations in the future," a formal statement said.

Grubbs cited the Baylor-Texas baseball game, a Texas-Texas Christian basketball game last season, and a Baylor-Texas A&M basketball game a year ago as examples that prompted a general warning to all schools.

Another Reason Why the Aggies Trade with LOU

"A full consideration of the circumstances which immediately preceded the incident reveals that Texas catcher Tommy Harmon was guilty of an unnecessarily hard tag of a baserunner that apparently triggered the deplorable developments," the announcement said.

Street, contacted at baseball workouts, said, "I think it is embarrassing, the entire situation is embarrassing. Maybe too much has been said about it."

"I didn't intentionally hit Schroeder. I think it was a collision. I didn't run into him, and I don't say he ran into me. I didn't intentionally go after the coach. I felt, standing there, that he saw me. It really shocked me."
