Senators given administration approval on postal reform

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., said Wednesday he and Sen. Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, have worked out with Postmaster General Winton M. Blount a postal reform bill that has administration blessing.

McGee is chairman and Fong the ranking GOP member of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, which hopes to complete action on the measure before the end of the week.

The legislation differs in a number of respects from a bill approved earlier this week by the corresponding House committee to reorganize the Post Office into an independent government authority.

Members would serve on the board in an advisory capacity but without a vote.

Under the House bill, postal rate boosts would be subject to a veto by majority vote in either the Senate or the House within 90 days. The administration had proposed that a two-thirds majority be required to override a hike in rates.

Among other things, it would not give Congress a veto over increases in postal rates.

An independent five-member rate-making commission appointed by the President would be established but McGee said the postmaster general would be empowered to override its decisions.

The postmaster general would operate under a seven-member board of governors named by the President. In addition, two senators and two House members would serve on the board in an advisory capacity but without a vote.
