Reed wins 'Sport' award

Willis Reed, captain of the New York Knickerbockers, has been named winner of the second annual "SPORT Magazine NBA Playoff Award" as the most valuable player in the championship series between the Knicks and the Los Angeles Lakers. The award, a 1970 Dodge Charger R/T, was presented at a luncheon in Reed's honor Tuesday May 12th at Mamma Leone's Restaurant in New York City.

Reed, who led the Knicks in scoring with 138 points and a 19.7 average in the series, captured the award as much for the inspirational lift he gave his team as for his actual play on the floor. In the opening game of the playoffs, Willis poured in 37 points in leading the New Yorkers to a 124-112 victory over the Lakers. His 29 points were wasted as the Lakers tied the series with a 105-103 triumph, but Reed came back with 38 points to pace the Knicks to a 111-108 overtime win and a 2-1 playoff lead.

In game four, the Captain's 23 points couldn't keep the Knicks from dropping a 121-115 overtime decision. In the fifth game, Willis had 7 points in the first eight minutes of play, then suffered severe muscle damage to his right leg. Playing without their big man the rest of the way, the Knicks battled furiously to a 107-100 win.

Unable to play game six, Willis watched the Lakers grind out a decisive 135-113 win, with Wilt Chamberlain rolling in to the basket and jamming home 45 points.

But in game seven, Reed gaged his injured leg out onto the floor and kept his muscular between Chamberlain and the basket for a pain-wracked minutes. His inspirational performance fired the Knicks to a rout as he held Wilt to just one point, solidifying his selection the "SPORT Magazine NBA Playoff Award" winner.

The "SPORT Magazine NBA Playoff Award," presented the first time last year to West, is the companion to the "SPORT Magazine World Series Sportsman Award," established in 1955, and the "SPORT Magazine Super Bowl (Pro Football Championship) Award," instituted the magazine in 1958. Donnie Denon of the New York Yankees won the last World Series Award and Len Dawson of the Kansas City Chiefs was SPORTS Bowl winner.

Agnew's aim fails again, but in tennis

By TOM SEPPY

Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew switched from golf to tennis Tuesday but his aim didn't change—he zonked another partner in the head with a ball.

Agnew, playing only the second time in six months because of a tennis elbow, hit the doubles partner — Peace Corps Director Joseph Blatchford — in the back of the head during a benefit match.

During the Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic in January, one of Agnew's drives went awry and smacked pro Doug Sanders in the head.

Blatchford apparently came prepared for any eventuality. As soon as he was hit, he ran to the fence, got a motorcycle helmet from his sister, actress Bea Ballance, and wore it for a few moments.

Asked after the match if he preferred tennis to golf, Agnew replied: "I seem to be able to hit people each way."

Agnew's game was almost as bad as his aim: his team lost the match 6-1, 6-1, despite the presence of Blatchford, a former top collegiate player who was ranked No. 1 among those high in the executive branch of government.

The Nixon administration won the battle against Congress, however, defeating the Senate-House team 3-2.

"I'm glad they didn't depend on us," said Agnew. "Especially on me. I didn't play very well."

Billy a pleasant surprise

SAN DIEGO (AP)—When spring training started Billy Grabarkewitz was just one of the fellows trying to make the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I'm not convinced Grabarkewitz can hit major league pitching," said Manager Walter Alston.

But there was more than hitting as a question mark about 24-year-old Grabarkewitz. There was a big doubt about whether he ever could come back from that steamy day in Albuquerque when he roared into home plate with the derring-do that had led him to 91 stolen bases in three minor league seasons.

Somehow, impossibly, his spikes caught in the catcher's shin-guards. Billy's ankle snapped in four places.

The Dodgers brought him up the next spring for a major league trial. But Bill—who gives his name in the stands the impression being a little fellow despite muscular 5-foot-10, 170-pound build—couldn't hit much and his mobility seemed limited.

He was shipped to Spokane after 34 games—with a .090 batting average. He hit .284 in Spokane.

Now he is one of the reasons the Dodgers are contending for the lead in the National League's West.

Through Monday's game he was hitting .407, second best in the league.

"It was the sixth third baseman in spring training," he called Tuesday. "I didn't get my first chance, but I got the last four of them couldn't hit in the spring. The other one couldn't hit after he season started."
