Profs to have role in meeting

A&M engineering educators will have an active role in the 78th annual national meeting of the American Society for Engineering Education at Ohio State University, June 22-25.

Dr. John C. Calhoun, Jr., vice president for programs, serves on the board of directors and will preside at the executive session of the projects board. Dr. C. A. Rodenberger, professor of aerospace engineering, is projects board secretary.

Engineering Dean Fred J. Benson will preside at luncheons of the deans institute committee and the committee on computers in engineering education. He is also on the program of the administrative council general session.

Dr. R. D. Turpin, professor of civil engineering, will participate on a council of technical divisions committee, as will Dr. R. E. Stewart, professor of agricultural engineering. Stewart is also scheduled for a presentation during a regular session.

Also giving talks are Dr. John B. Herbich, professor of civil engineering, and Dr. Robert C. Hansen, assistant professor of agricultural engineering.

Other members of the Texas A&M engineering faculty who will attend various sessions at Columbus, Ohio, are Professor A. E. Cronk, head of aerospace engineering; Dr. L. A. Carlson, assistant professor of aerospace engineering; Dr. J. D. Lindsay, professor emeritus of chemical engineering; Dr. A. H. Meyer, assistant professor of civil engineering; Dr. A. H. Layman, associate professor of civil engineering; Dr. W. B. Jones, head of electrical engineering; Dr. Jack L. Stone, assistant professor of electrical engineering; Dr. T. J. Kozik, professor of mechanical engineering; Dr. J. B. Smathers, assistant professor of nuclear engineering, and Professor R. L. Whiting, head of petroleum engineering.

Meteorology dept. receives $16,000 grant from NASA

A $16,000 National Aeronautics and Space Administration research grant has been awarded to the Meteorology Department.

The research project, entitled "Computer Modeling for Transfer of Microwave Radiation Through Hydrometers," is directed by Dr. Robert A. Clark, associate professor of meteorology.

Dr. Clark explained the research involves measurement of weak microwave radiation from ocean areas through the use of a radiometer.

Measurements include moisture content of clouds and the atmosphere from regions not normally covered by other meteorological instruments, he said.

Dr. Clark said much of the research is being conducted by Jack Paris, Ph.D. candidate.

Also involved in the program is Dr. George L. Huebner Jr., associate professor of meteorology, who is working on a better radiometer design.

Dr. Clark pointed out measurements of sea surface temperatures, salinity of the water and moisture content is possible through the use of the radiometer techniques.

Apprentice contest begun

The 17th annual Texas State Plumbing and Pipe Fitting Apprentice Contest will be held on campus through Friday.

Fifty-four of the top third, fourth and fifth year apprentice trainees from Texas locals will compete in their divisions for cash and scholarship prizes. Fifth year students also compete for a chance to represent the state at the North America conference later this summer at Purdue.

Contestants were selected through competition held at training centers in their home towns, reports Don Garner, Texas Engineering Extension Service staff member and coordinator of the State Apprentice Training Program.

The contest is scheduled from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday. An awards banquet is set Friday evening at the Ramada Inn. State Sen. Chet Brooks of Houston will give the keynote address.

Eight different projects are scored during the contest, Garner noted. Separate contests are held for plumbers and pipe fitters and there is separate competition for third, fourth and fifth year students.

Sponsors are the Texas State Apprenticeship Committee, membership from the Texas State Pipe Trades, Mechanical Contractors Association of Texas, Association of Plumbers, Heating and Cooling Contractors, Gulf Coast Pipe Contractors and Construction Employers Association.
