

Texas A&M's Singing Cadets

A&M story told by Singing Cadets

Back in 1906 at Aggieland, 10 students got together and organized their own singing group.

Today this group is known as "The Singing Cadets" and consist of more than 50 members. Under the direction of Robert C. Boone, the group gives concerts at schools, colleges and civic organizations throughout the South.

Members of the Singing Cadets come from almost every major area of study on the campus. Both civilians and members of the Corps of Cadets may join.

None of the members of the group in the past have planned to make singing their career. They participate because they enjoy singing and the fellowship.

Dressed in their special uniforms, the Singing Cadets have performed with the Houston Symphony Orchestra and many other groups.

They have traveled to all parts of Texas and the South to give their concerts.

They annually appear on national television at the "Miss Teenage America" pageant.

They practice everyday from 5 to 6 p. m. in the Music Hall.

Their record album has surpassed all other similar college albums in sales.

Reveille III is the official mascot of Aggieland. She is kept and cared for by Company E-2, known as the Mascot Company. She leads the Aggie Band in Kyle Field at home football games and frequently travels to other contests.
