

Heaton graduates 45,000

All Texas A&M graduates since August, 1941, have at least one thing in common—the signature of H. T. Heaton on their diploma. Heaton, dean of admissions and records, has signed over 80 per cent of the total. He reaches the 45,000 mark this month when some 800 degrees will be conferred to veterinary medicine and summer school graduates.

The university has awarded approximately 56,000 degrees in its 94 years of existence.

And in the future, he may sign some that come from scholarships awarded as a memorial to Heaton and his deceased wife.

Because of Heaton's long-time service and dedication to the university, the Association of Former Students has announced the formation of the H. Lloyd and Bessie Heaton Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Former Students Director Richard (Buck) Weirus noted the fund currently has enough income to permanently support at least eight $100 tuition scholarships. They will be awarded for the fall semester, Weirus said.

Mrs. Heaton died in May after a long career as a public school educator dedicated to the education of young people.

"Contributions are now being received by the association to add to this fund in hopes 12 or 13 scholarships will be available," Weirus pointed out.

Heaton has signed diplomas under the signature of eight Texas A&M presidents.

"I sign the diplomas with a great deal of pleasure and expect success of every man whose diploma wears the name of the president and mine," he confided.

Included among those receiving degrees with Heaton's signature are 40 relatives and one son, Dr. Charles Heaton.

Dr. Heaton, a professor on the medical staff at the University of Pennsylvania College of Medicine and Philadelphia General Hospital, received his degree from A&M in 1957. He worked toward his M.D. at Baylor College of Medicine.

Heaton came to Texas A&M in 1933 as a graduate student. He earned a B.S. degree in 1929 from Stephen F. Austin and taught five years in public schools prior to entering A&M.

In 1934 he was named assistant registrar and in 1941 was appointed registrar. Heaton received a master's from A&M in 1934.

His title was changed to director of admissions and registrar in admissions and records in 1969.

The 64-year-old Panola County native predicted it would take two more years to reach the 50,000 degree signature mark.

A&M hosts school workshop

Texas A&M University's College of Education are hosting the second of three school business officials workshops Monday through Wednesday.

School business managers from throughout Texas will take an in-depth look at the purchasing and control supplies and equipment in sessions to be held at the Memorial Student Center.

Workshop coordinator Dr. Harold L. Hawkins of the Educational Administration Department said 20 officials will participate.

Consultant and instructor will be H. Spilman Burns, director of business planning educational supplies and equipment administration for the public schools in Baltimore.

Representing the Texas Education Agency will be J. A. Anderson, assistant director of the Administrative Services Division.

Financial planning was covered in an April 16-18 school business workshop and personnel management will be the topic of the Sept. 21-23 sessions. The workshops are endorsed by the Texas Association of School Business Officials.
