Baptist students hear bare facts

Former owners of a San Antonio striptease business will explain why they closed their world-famous club and gave their lives to Christ during a special program Sept. 4 at the Baptist Student Union.

Guy and Evelyn Linton, owners of the former Green Gate Club, will tell their story at 8 p.m. A question and answer session follows, along with all the free ice cream a person can eat.

Guy Linton was known in show business as the "King of the Strippers." His wife was burlesque teacher who took girls from San Antonio's West Side and gave them names like Bonnie Anne Clyde.

But along came the New Orleans Southern Baptist preacher Bob Harrington, dubbed "The Chaplain of Bourbon Street," who took his Gospel into the Green Gate and preached about the Pearly Gates. Guy and Evelyn got the message. They invited Brother Bob to their $150,000 home and on April 4 of this year gave their lives and hearts to Christ.

That night they closed the Green Gate. Harrington later brought the place and is opening a Christian bookstore.

Guy says he will put his "tainted money" to good use now and Evelyn plans to spear-head a campaign to outlaw stripping. They will give the bare facts Friday, Sept. 4.

Sun Oil Company's North American Exploration and Production Group has awarded Texas A&M a grant and nine scholarships totaling $4,200.

Cecil J. Dearman of Dallas, Sunoco's exploration and production supervisor of college relations, formally presented the funds Tuesday to Gen. A. R. Luedcke, acting university president, during brief campus ceremonies.

Dearman was joined in the presentation by Robert Ridgway of Houston, the firm's regional reservoir engineer.

The Petroleum Engineering Department received an unrestricted $600 grant and four $400 scholarships. The Geology and Mechanical Engineering Departments were each awarded $400 scholarships and the Chemical Engineering Department one scholarship.

In presenting the funds, Dearman noted Sun Oil is aware of the growing need for highly qualified scientific and professional personnel.
