Coed takes officer's oath—Miss Shirley Ann Oates takes the oath in becoming a WAC officer from her father, Army Col. Eugene C. Oates III. A 1970 graduate, she took a direct commission in the Women's Army Corps and maintained a military tradition in the family.

Third member of Oates family commissioned

The third member of the Oates family was commissioned an officer in the U. S. Army July 8.

Miss Shirley Ann Oates, a May graduate, was sworn in as a second lieutenant in the Women's Army Corps by her father, Col. Eugene C. Oates Jr. in residence hall program advisor in the Civilian Student Activities Office.

"To my knowledge, Shirley is the first WAC officer commissioned at Texas A&M," commented Col. Jim H. McCoy, commandant. His office was the site of the ceremony witnessed by Shirley's mother, Capt. Judith Fein of the Army Recruiting Main Station in San Antonio, Mrs. Patricia Self, coed advisor, and family friends.

The traditional congratulatory kiss established by Gen. William C. Westmoreland at the recent promotion of two WAC generals was given by Colonel Oates, a 23-year Army veteran.

The late son of Colonel and Mrs. Oates, Eugene C. III, died in August, 1969, in a helicopter accident in Vietnam. Captain Oates was commissioned here in 1967 after receiving the bachelor degree in civil engineering.

He attended Ranger and jungle warfare schools, the engineer officers basic course and served in Germany before going to Southeast Asia.

Lieutenant Oates, who is working as a Texas Engineering Extension Service secretary, will report Aug. 4 to Fort McClellan, Ala., for the 18-week WAC building officer course, Captain Fein indicated. Following the course, the new lieutenant will receive administrative assignment in the U.S. Army.

Journalists here for annual event

More than 500 high school journalists and their sponsors were on campus the week of July 27 for the 12th annual High School Publications Workshop.

The program was sponsored by the Journalism Department.

Workshops were held in both beginning and advanced photography, yearbook production, publications production and newspaper production, noted department head C. J. Leabo. Experts from throughout the nation served as workshop instructors.

Howard Eilers, photography instructor, and Mrs. C. J. Leabo were workshop co-directors.

Heading the newspaper division was Bill Ward, director of mass communications division, Southern Illinois University Carbondale.

Statement of Purpose for the Campus Ministry at Texas A&M University Encouragement of spiritual growth is a highly important part of Texas A&M University's program of total development for those students who come here seeking an education.

There are many faiths represented among the students, faculty and staff members who comprise the University community. Our campus ministry is called upon to stimulate spiritual growth among the members of the University community as they search for direction in their lives, according to their particular faiths. This objective is accomplished through various types of worship, programming, and personal counseling, which we know as the campus ministry.

In a spirit of close harmony, the campus ministry assists the University in its educational program by helping members of the various faiths represented to become more sensitive to their responsibilities in the economic, political and social world. In so doing, the campus ministry performs the vital duty of demonstrating the close relationship between religious faith and worthy citizenship.

A program such as this requires continuous communication between the various faiths represented and the University. Effective communication assures each student the opportunity to hold fast to his faith while studying here, thus laying the foundation for continued spiritual growth in the years to follow.
