

CADET SLOUCH by Jim Earle

"Have you ever noticed how football season effects some people?"

LISTEN UP the batt forum

Editor: We would like to question the reasons—if there are any—behind the decision of the Athletic Department to request that the fans stay off of the AstroTurf after the football games. In many places that have the same surface on their football fields, the surface is used not only by colleges but by many high school teams every week. If all of this practicing and games does not wear out the surface, it would not seem that the feet of the few thousand people that would be walking on the field five times a year would do considerable (if indeed it did any) damage to the football field. Indeed, if the Athletic Department has not complained all the years that Kyle Field has had natural grass, it seems incredible that they could raise a fuss now. This attitude strangely resembles that of a little child with a new toy—nobody except that child can play with it until its novelty has worn off. We think that the little extra wear that might result the first year would be worth it to let everybody find out what the field and track are like. We do not actually anticipate a change of policy, but it would be nice to know why we are staying off the "grass." Ella may hit Texas coast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Small craft warnings went up late Thursday along the Texas coast as Hurricane Ella churned in the Gulf of Mexico about 500 miles south of New Orleans. Weather observers also warned small craft along the Louisiana coast not to venture into the open Gulf. "It will affect some portion of the Texas or Louisiana coast within the next 48 hours," said Dr. Robert Simpson, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami. "Ella, the season's fifth hurricane, formed off Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula a little more than a month after Hurricane Celia smashed into Texas at Corpus Christi. Hurricane Celia killed 13 persons and inflicted nearly $500 million in damages when it struck Aug. 3. The Weather Bureau said Hurricane Ella was moving toward the northwest at 12 m.p.h. late Thursday. Red Cross chapters from Brownsville to the Florida Keys were placed on alert. "It's much too early to say exactly where Ella will strike," Simpson said. "At present it's headed toward the central Texas coast but is expected to take a slight bend to the right."

THURSDAY Austin Hometown Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in MSC room 3D.
