Creative dramatics begins Saturday

Children will be registered for fall semester creative dramatics Saturday at A&M. Three age groups will meet 45 minutes each Saturday mornings for the English Department theater arts section program that allows children to write, produce and act their own plays. Mrs. Aileen Wenck will instruct. Children's creative dramatics are supervised by C. K. Esten. Registration will be from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday in the Fallout Theater of Guion Hall.

TTI awarded new study contract

stitute has been awarded a $200,000 contract to study requirements for highway lighting systems.

TTI Director Jack Keese said the two-year study will be conducted under the National Cooperative Highway Research Program administered by the Highway Research Board.

"The increased growth of our super-highway system, coupled with widespread improvements in the rest of our street and road network, has brought about night traffic conditions of such intensity that a fixed lighting system, providing safe and efficient driving conditions, is of greater importance than ever before," Keese noted.

Keese said the project will be directed by Dr. N. J. Rowan, head of TTI's Design and Operations Division. Ned Walton will be co-principal investigator.

Objectives of the study include analysis of the "state of the art," development of requirements, evaluation of benefits, determination of effectiveness and other evaluation techniques and recommendation of a method of setting priorities for installation of fixed lighting.

Psychology seminar begins Thursday

The first speaker — Dr. Ruth Barbee — in a seminar series on research in educational psychology is scheduled Thursday (Sept. 10) at A&M.

Dr. Arthur J. Roach said the seminar series will meet each Thursday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. in Room 326 of the Academic Building.

The department head said the series is open to students, faculty-staff and the public.

Dr. Barbee will speak on "Analysis of Verbal Interview Behavior," which parallels the Ph.D. dissertation at the University of North Dakota. Her B.A. is from the University of Illinois and the master's was awarded by the Grand Forks, N.D., institution. The advanced degrees are in counseling and guidance.

The seminar speaker is the wife of Texas A&M mechanical engineering professor Dr. Daniel R. Barbee, who joined the faculty last September.

Roach said the seminar series will touch on many areas of interest in education.

Marketing Society elects officers

The Marketing Society of A&M held its first meeting for the 1970-71 school year Tuesday night.

Officers for the year are Gene Clark, president; Bob Nelson, vice president; John Crow, secretary-treasurer; Jerry Crowder, programs chairman; and John Townsend, publicity chairman.

During the meeting the marketing professors were introduced and a film of last year's Super Bowl was shown. The society's membership drive began Wednesday.

Membership may be obtained at a desk on the first floor of Francis Hall. The society plans to have guest speakers at the meetings, two field trips to Dallas and Houston, a sales clinic and a barbeque during the year.

The next meeting will be at 8 p.m. Oct. 13 in the Art Room of the M.S.C.

Room changes begin Monday

All existing vacancies in civilian residence halls will be available for assignment on a first-come, first-served basis beginning at 8 a.m. Monday and ending 5 p.m. Tuesday, Housing Manager Allan Madely has announced.

Students assigned to civilian residence halls who wish to change rooms or halls should report to the Housing Office, Madely said. They will be issued a room change slip to be processed through resident advisors and counselors concerned he explained.

All moves must be completed within 24 hours after changing rooms he emphasized. All additional fees must be paid before keys are issued, and students must have their fee slips with them, Madely said.

Amendment debate may be limited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said Thursday he may try next week to cut off debate on a constitutional amendment providing for direct election of the president.

Such a move, requiring a two-thirds majority of senators voting, would provide a crucial test for the proposal to abolish the Electoral College system.

Mansfield told newsmen he didn't know what his chances would be. "I haven't made any polls," he said, "and I won't."

Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said, meanwhile, that President Nixon wholeheartedly supports the proposed amendment which was approved by the House a year ago by a 339-70 vote.

"I'm his spokesman in this regard," said Scott. He told newsmen he had seen a White House memorandum Wednesday stating firmly that Nixon favors the direct election plan.

"Any attempt to depict the President as not wholeheartedly for it is in error," he said.

Mansfield, asked what he would do if a move to limit debate fails, said only that "I will take the next step."

This could mean a second attempt to cut off debate, if the first vote was close, or a signal a move to lay the proposed amendment aside.

Approval of the amendment would take a two-thirds majority in the Senate and its supporters, including its chief sponsor, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., has not yet claimed they have a necessary margin.

Scott predicted the amendment would be approved, if it could be brought to a vote and if alternative proposals for overhauling the electoral college system are rejected.

Senate leaders are trying to clean up the legislative schedule and adjourn by mid-October in the absence of a unanimous agreement to limit debate, the only way they could force a showdown on the direct election amendment would be to apply cloture.

If the rule were put into effect, each senator's speaking time would be limited to one hour.

Talking it over

Some of the key moments in our education are those times when we discussed with someone older the interesting things we learn.

But, to speak frankly about religious education today, one of the serious handicaps facing boys and girls who are sent (not brought) to church is that they have little opportunity to "talk it over" at home.

Moral and spiritual growth is nurtured by family discussion of the truths taught in classroom and pulpit. But this presumes that parents and children together are sharing the experiences of worshipping God and studying the Christian Faith. Candidly, too, it presumes that the parents will be the pace-setters . . . advanced enough in their own religious growth to answer simple, urgent questions.

It was always fun to tell "Sis" what we had learned at school. But, remember, it was Dad and Mother we counted on when we couldn't find the answers!

For your children's sake — and your own — attend church regularly.
