UCCF coerced, CCOC charges

The Campus Committee of Concern, an off-campus students group, claimed Monday night that administration pressure convinced the United Campus Christian Fellowship to deny them space to meet in the Coffee Loft this year. The organization met in the Coffee Loft last year, but now plans to meet every Monday in the University Lutheran Church's Student Center.

Richard Stadelman, chairman of the UCCF board, said there has not been an "absolute" decision on the matter. The board will meet Sunday at 2:30 p.m. to decide the question, he said.

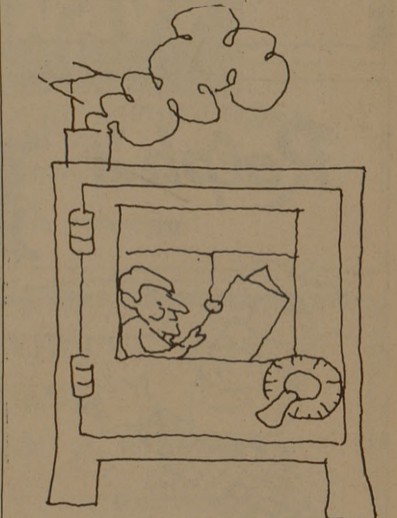

"There has been no official pressure from the administration and no unofficial pressure as far as I am aware," he said. "The board is aware, however, that the administration has been hostile to the CCOC and that may influence the board."

"There has been some pressure from the First Christian Church of Bryan. They have passed a resolution barring non-church-sponsored groups from meeting in the Coffee Loft," he said. "This is the issue that will be voted on Sunday. The UCCF is an organization of the Christian, United Church of Christ and Presbyterian churches in Bryan and College Station, and the full board will vote on this resolution."

Pastor Hugh Beck, minister, said that his church has a policy of allowing "any and all groups" to meet in the student center.

Electrical engineering given scholarships

The recipients of three scholarships provided by Texas Power and Light Company have been selected by the faculty of the Electrical Engineering Department and announced by Dr. W. B. Jones, head.

Glenn Alan Shankle, junior from Lake Jackson, and John H. Zemanek, Palacios senior, were awarded $600 each, half for the present semester and half for the spring term, Jones said. Claud R. Mostyn, senior, Waco, received $120 for the Fall.

Jones indicated the selections were made on the basis of outstanding achievement and interest in a career in power system engineering.

A&M professors to be in costal conference

Three professors will participate in the 12th International Conference on Coastal Engineering opening Sunday in Washington, D. C.

Presenting technical papers at the week-long meeting will be Dr. John B. Herbich and Dr. Robert M. Sorenson of the Civil Engineering Department's Coastal and Ocean Engineering Division and Dr. Roy Hann of the Environmental Engineering Division.

Dr. Herbich, head of the Coastal and Ocean Engineering Division, also will serve as chairman for one of the conference sessions. Herbich's paper is entitled "Comparison of Model and Beach Scour Patterns."

Dr. Sorenson will present two papers, "Characteristics of Long Waves Broken by Longshore Bar" and "Scour Around a Circular Cylinder Due to Wave Motion." The first paper was co-authored by C. E. McNair and the latter by Lt. Comdr. D. R. Wells.

Dr. Hann's paper is entitled "Relationship Between Dredging and Pollution."

Lawyer
 allowed defenses of "accident" and "mistake of fact."

Goode ruled against Brink's motions and the defense lawyer muttered "I thought as much." He also referred to the judge as "capricious" in his summary. Goode told the lawyer his name was very appropriate because he was on the brink of being found in contempt." He warned Brink to discontinue his "intended derogatory remarks."

The jury deliberated about 25 minutes before finding Baker guilty, but added they felt the yellow stripe should be extended through the intersection so the question "will not occur again."

Baker posted an appeal bond of $50 Monday morning and has filed an appeal in the county court. He said he did not know when his trial will come up.
