

65 Army cadets designated distinguished military students

Distinguished military student status has been accorded 65 Army ROTC cadet seniors for 1970-71. Col. Jim H. McCoy, commandant, said the designation indicates the cadet possesses outstanding attributes of leadership, moral character, military and academic standing and all-around development reflected in campus and civic activities.

The distinguished military students have completed summer camp and were recommended for the honor there by an active Army officer. Designation as a DMS enables the cadet to make application for a regular Army commission to be conferred upon graduation.

"This represents quite a significant achievement in the lives of these cadets," commented Tom Fitzhugh, Corps of Cadets information officer.

The distinguished military students are John W. Bebout of Lake Jackson; Randall E. Betty, Springtown; Joseph D. Blaschke, Nordheim; Michael W. Braden and Charles D. Nelson, Columbus; Mickey J. Calverley, Arlington; Edwin E. Clarke and Phillip G. Day Jr., Shreveport;

Singing Cadets fill ranks, select 25 new members

A&M's famed Singing Cadets have accepted 25 new members into their selective 56-voice ranks for 1970-71.

The Cadets, who have sung throughout the Southwest since 1894 and have become one of the nation's outstanding glee clubs, are directed by Robert L. Boone.

They are scheduled to sing 20 performances this fall, including two national conventions in Hous-ton. The Singing Cadets also will appear as the official glee club for the seventh straight year at the Miss Teenage America Pag-nant in Fort Worth Dec. 5.

With invitations to sing coming from every major city in Texas, the Cadets go on the road between semesters and on spring semester weekends to total 50 performances a year.

In announcing the new mem-bers, Boone said the Singing Cadets have added exceptional talent.

"The quality of the buffos im-proves each year," the 10-year director commented. Among the new members are several sopho-mores. Overall, Singing Cadets are drawn from all classes and graduate students, of both the corps and civilian ranks and varied academic majors.

Buffos are Coy L. Batson, Lar-ry R. Jones, Jack T. Madeley and Eugene T. Wood of Bryan and College Station; Alan R. Boehm, Conroe; Billy J. Cox, Richardson; James M. Devine, Phillip M. Evans, Joe P. Hamilton, David W. Klotz, John W. Linn III and Kenneth H. Vanway, Houston.

from 63 to 54 degrees," the me-teorology professor said. The fig-ures are averages over 55 years, from 1915.

October's highest temperature ever was 102 degrees, but nearly every day of the month has re-ported at least one 90 degree tem-perature which came during mid-afternoon. An afternoon maxi-mum of only 52 is on record, how-ever.

Minimums as high as 75 degrees have been recorded. Values below 40 degrees are very rare before Oct. 17, the climatologist specialist remarked. The first freeze has occurred as early as Oct. 20, he added.

Rainfall averages about three inches during October, ranging from none to 12 inches. Highest amount in one day was 5.1 inches and about once every six years there is a one day fall in excess of three inches. A two-inch day occurs every other year, Griffiths reported. October has 26 hours of rain and seven rain days on the average.

October winds blow mainly from the east to southeast but the northerly flow really begins to make its presence felt. The wind can be expected from points between north northwest to north northeast about a quarter of the time.

Relative humidity averages around 65 per cent and the sun shines (not cloud obscured) al-most eight hours a day, Griffiths concluded.
