

Manned spacecraft called 'nonsense'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two of President Nixon's space advisers declared Tuesday it would be "absolute nonsense" for the nation to continue to finance manned space flight.

They joined three senators—two Democrats and one Republican—in calling for deletion of $122 million in design money for a proposed space shuttle station from a pending appropriation bill.

They urged revision of the nation's space plans to emphasize unmanned, instrumented exploration of outer space, a step they insisted would reap a far greater scientific harvest.

"The manned space program, it seems to me, has had its day," said Dr. Thomas Gold, chairman of the space science panel of the President's Science Advisory Committee.

Dr. James A. Van Allen, discoverer of the Van Allen Radiation belts in space, added:

"I am totally unpersuaded that men in spacecraft are important or even useful in any way that is commensurate with the effort required to maintain them there.

"In fact," Van Allen said, "their presence degrades almost all of the objectives in space that I consider important. And I hold this view despite the fact that I am a devoted admirer of the astronauts at the level of personal courage and professional competence."

The two scientists commented at a news conference held at Senate opponents of the current space program launched a new effort to trim back spending for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

CSC discusses access to such equipment and willing to help should contact his hall president.

Olson said the civilian bonfire organizational staff will be selected by next week.

"We'll make it, we'll make it," Olson said to Gordon Pilmer, CSC vice president as he checked his watch again.

Applications for the Ugliest Senior on Campus contest, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega and the Student Senate can be picked up on the Student Program Office or in Keathley 402, Olson said. All proceeds of the contest go to the campus chest.

The winner will be introduced at the Oct. 17 Town Hall performance, Olson said.

Van Dyck asked if the contest was restricted to individual halls, or if women students would be allowed to enter.

"Do you have any girls in your hall?" Olson replied.

"No, but I was thinking of a couple in my classes," Van Dyck countered.

"Gentlemen, we're exactly 12 minutes over schedule," Olson said as the meeting adjourned.

Coeds to help with bonfire

University Women will hold their monthly meeting Oct. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the social room of the Memorial Student Center, says Julie McCall, publicity chairman.

The meeting will include discussion of women's activities for the bonfire. "Anyone interested in signing up to help with the bonfire should come to this meeting to sign up," said Miss McCall. In the past University Women have served coffee and doughnuts to workers and have helped in the first aid stations.

Also on the agenda will be discussion of the writing of a new constitution. The first constitution was written when there were fewer than 500 coeds on campus. With more than 1500 women students, the constitution will be updated to keep up with the change. Nancy Evans is chairman of the Constitution Committee. Coeds are invited to join this committee.

University Women is also active in the Women's Recruitment Program sponsored jointly with the Civilian Student Council. Judy McConnell is the UW representative to this committee.

"Coeds are also reminded that Freshman Handbooks are still available in the office of Mrs. Patricia Self, women's counselor, Academic Building, Room 103," said Miss McCall.

Also, a suggestion box for any opinions concerning activities of women on campus is located in the Student Programs Office in the MSC.

Federal official to speak here

A Federal Extension Service official will be banquet speaker during the 25th annual Town and Country Church Conference Oct. 8-9 at A&M.

He is Dorris W. Rivers, assistant director of the Division of Community Resource Development in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.

His topic, "The Münster Can Be A Factor," will be heard at the banquet which starts at 7 Thursday in the Memorial Student Center.

Press meeting reaches 200 registration

Registration for the 18th Texas Junior College Press Association conference Oct. 12-13 at Texas A&M has reached 200 from 24 colleges and expected to go higher.

Conference director Dr. David R. Bowers of the Journalism Department said virtually all of the state's junior colleges are usually represented.

Newspaper, magazine and year-book awards will be made and veteran newsmen Charles W. Roberts, chief White House correspondent for "Newsweek" 15 years, will address participants.

Sessions for newspaper, year-book and magazine staffs and faculty members will be conducted by leading journalists and journalism professors from Texas' major universities.
