

Finance program held by Methodists

A family finance series is being sponsored by the A&M Methodist Church.

The opening session Oct. 20 will explore new areas of thinking about money. Dorothy Sherrill Miller, home economist, will make the presentations and lead the discussions.

The first discussion in this five-session series is titled "Money Isn't Everything" and will include attitudes toward money and how they relate to family happiness and successful money management.

Participants will look at money and the family cycle and see a pattern which suggests that they push their money around to suit specific needs at specific stages in their lives.

Participants in past series conducted by Mrs. Miller have been particularly enthusiastic about the long look ahead they take at income and expenses throughout their lives.

One couple remarked, "The session made us aware of what we've done through the years that's good and bad, and made us more conscious of what is ahead and the planning we can do to make the future successful."

Other sessions will deal with specific "tools," but the first session will present ideas which permeate every area of money management.

The five sessions in the series will be held at 7:30 p. m. on consecutive Tuesdays beginning Oct. 20. The sessions will be held in the Fellowship Hall at the A&M Methodist Church on University Drive in College Station. Other topics to follow will include family spending plans or budgets, credit, savings and investments and insurance.

Those interested may register or get more information by calling 846-8731 or by stopping by the A&M Methodist Church office. There is no charge for the series.

Two-segment plant lecture to be held

Dr. Alan H. Haber of Oak Ridge National Laboratory Tuesday will open a two-part plant physiology lecture series sponsored by the Plant Sciences Department.

The second lecture, by Dr. Emanuel Epstein of the University of California at Davis, will be presented Oct. 27.

Dr. Haber, who also teaches botany and biomedical sciences at the University of Tennessee, will discuss "Separation of Cell Growth, Division and Senescence." Dr. Epstein's lecture is entitled "Mineral Nutrition of Plants: Physiological and Ecological Aspects."

Mann elected head of Brazos architects

George J. Mann, director of the Research Center at A&M's College of Architecture and Environmental Design, has been elected the 1971 president of the American Institute of Architects.

Other new officers are Paul E. Pate, vice president; J. W. Wood, secretary; and William E. Nash, treasurer. Pate and Nash are practicing architects. Wood is an assistant professor of architecture and environmental design.

Dean Edward J. Romieniec was elected director and will represent the chapter at meetings of the state organization, the Texas Society of Architects.

Saylak wins award from Air Force

Donald Saylak, A&M graduate student on leave of absence from the Air Force, has won the Air Force Association's top award for technical achievement.

The award recognizes Saylak's work in developing a method for preserving the structural integrity of solid propellant grains in rockets, even after the motors have been subjected to rigorous temperature cycling.

Saylak, who is studying for a Ph.D. degree in materials science in A&M's Civil Engineering Department, also has been invited to describe the new process at the 1970 Air Force Science and Engineering Symposium at Andrews Air Force Base Oct. 22-23.

He will receive the AFA award at a banquet held in conjunction with the symposium. The award will be presented by Dr. Arthur G. Wimer Jr., the Air Force's chief scientist.

Saylak won in competition among 144 candidates.

Saving now president of economic group

Dr. Thomas R. Saving, A&M economics professor, is president-elect of the Western Economic Association.

The association, founded in 1934, presents annual programs of national significance and has participation from the nation's leading economists. It also publishes the Western Economic Journal at UCLA.

lishes the Western Economic Journal at UCLA.

Dr. Saving will become association president in August, 1971. The associate professor is currently program chairman for the Vancouver, British Columbia, 1971 meetings.

Students to evaluate CATV course here

Six special students assigned to measure curriculum effects are enrolled in the first cable antenna television course offered at A&M's new CATV Training Center.

Instructor Tom Straw said the technicians were selected by the Texas CATV Association to evaluate the course.

The men, all installers employed by a different CATV firm, are Clovis G. Baca of Pecos, James R. Braves of Port Lavaca, Frank D. Middleton of Seagraves, James K. Mitchell of Crockett, Jimmy L. Saling of Mexia and Bob Thacker of Kerrville.

Classes continue through Oct. 16.

Straw explained the course includes public relations and the skills needed to connect the signal cable from the street cable to a customer's set.

Chemistry prof elected to AIC

Dr. Timothy L. Rose, assistant professor of chemistry, has been elected a member of the American Institute of Chemists, announced Emerson Venable, institute president.

The AIC has more than 7,600 members in 30 chapters throughout the United States. It is the only chemically-oriented American organization whose principal purpose is to develop the professional and economic status of chemists and chemical engineers, Venable said. Membership is limited to those whose principal education is in these fields.

Dr. Rose received his B.A. in 1963 from Haverford College and his Ph.D. in 1967 from Yale. From 1967 through 1969 he held a post doctoral fellowship at the University of Freiburg.

A&M psychologist to help students with problems

Students with emotional or mental problems now have some place where they can go for help, according to Dr. Sara Jones, a clinical psychologist and professor in psychology here.

Two class reunions to be held

Two groups of A&M former students will hold their 25th and 45th anniversary reunions this weekend.

Class of 1925 activities are scheduled at the Holiday Inn and the Class of 1945 gathers at the Ramada Inn.

Approximately 150 former students and wives from the 1925 class will open activities Friday night with a social hours and dinner.

Ed Cooper, director of admissions, will be the dinner speaker.

The 1925 graduates will have a picture taken at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, attend a luncheon business meeting at 11 a.m., tour the campus Saturday afternoon, have dinner and attend the A&M-Texas Tech football game Saturday night.

Activities for the Class of 1945 are similar, except they have no dinner speaker and scheduled victory celebration after the football game.

L. A. senator set Wednesday forum

Student senators from the College of Liberal Arts will hold an open meeting to discuss the goals of this year's Senate Wednesday at 8 p.m. in room 108 of Nagle Hall.

The senators will field all questions and comments from those attending.

The senators are Rick Briscoe, Tommy Henderson, Bill Hampton, Layne Kruse Tommy Mayes and Sam Buser.

says is being planned now, is the first of its kind at A&M.

A&M and other universities have somewhat avoided this particular area, she said. According to her, the previous attitude had been that if a student had problems let him take them home.

That kind of philosophy is no longer realistic, she says.

"Students in 1970 are in a stressful kind of situation", Dr. Jones said. "Competition, problems, and getting along with their peers have intensified for the student to a rate much higher than it has ever been in the past."

This pressure from all sides causes the student to worry and become depressed to the point where he can't see a way out of his problems, even though they may be easily solved, she added.

"What we would like to do is break into this situation," she says. "This is when the student needs to talk with somebody."

The old idea of an emotional problem being a weakness is "hogwash" according to her.

"Any place that has 15,000 students is going to have some that are emotionally disturbed," she said. "In fact," she added, "it is usually the most conscientious student that has a problem."

What she and the other counselors at A&M provide is someone to talk with. This, she says, is all most students need. "Just someone who can see their problems in another light" in her words.

All the student has to do is go by the Counseling and Testing Center in the Academic Building and make an appointment. After an initial screening, the student will be sent to whoever is best qualified to help him.

Dr. Jones emphasized that all conversation will be strictly confidential, with only the student and the counselor knowing what was said.

Getting students to come to her will be difficult, she says, though she expects it to decrease with time.

"As the students get more used to us and as we become larger and used to them, the program will improve," she said. "We expect to really do some good."

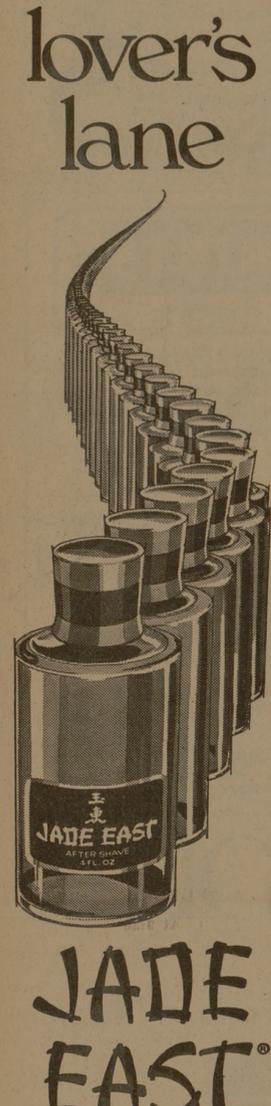

Dr. Jones earned her Ph.D. in clinical psychology from the University of Houston after studying seven years, in the summer term as well as fall and spring semesters, for it.

To be eligible to purchase the Texas A&M University ring, an undergraduate must have at least one academic year in residence and credit for nine-five (95) semester hours. The hours passed at preliminary grade report period on October 15, 1970 may be used in satisfying the ninety-five (95) hour requirement. Students qualifying under this regulation may now leave their names with the ring clerk, Room 7, Richard Coke Building. She, in turn will check all records to determine their eligibility. Orders for these rings will be taken by the Ring Clerk starting October 28 and continuing through December 15. The rings will be returned to the Registrar's Office for further delivery on or about January 22, 1971. The ring clerk is on duty from 8:00 to 12:00 noon, Monday through Friday, of each week. H. L. Heaton, Dean Admissions and Records.

Attention December Graduates. You may begin ordering your Graduation Invitations at the Building Cashier's Window in the MSC. 9-12, 1-4, Mon.-Fri. The deadline for ordering is Oct. 15. 14t12
