Tech ball control crunches Aggies

By CLIFFORD BROYLES
 Last week former University of Texas at Austin quarterback Bobby Layne said the Texas Tech Red Raiders would be the next powerhouse in the Southwest Conference, or at least one that would consistently compete with the University of Texas at Austin and Arkansas for the conference crown.
 Saturday night the Texas Aggies were the victims as the Red Raiders impressively proved the point that they might be just that.
 The Raiders ran 76 offensive plays to only 49 for the Aggies while completely dominating a game that actually was farther apart than the 21-7 final score.
 Tech made its first impression early and kept it up throughout with a strong corps of running backs digging out yardage and using up large amounts of the scoreboard clock. So impressive was their ball control for only 18 plays in the first half.

 Junior Miles Langehennig, who hails from 45 miles down highway 6 at Brenham, led the Tech running game with 21 carries for 88 yards. Larry Hargrave, the only senior in the starting backfield, carried 19 times with 83 yards. Sophomore Doug McCutchen, who started the game instead of Langehennig, gained 58 yards on 16 carries and Danny Hardaway picked up 25 yards on six carries.
 Quarterback Charlie Napper was credited with only seven yards rushing, but hit on 12 of 14 passes for 116 yards. One of the two incompletions he had was an interception.
 The Tech defense put in its days work led by the rush of ends Bruce Dowdy and Davis Corley and tackles Bob Mooney and Wayne McDermand.

 In the first half, quarterback Lex James went back to pass four times. Dowdy tackled him for a six yard loss once. On the next play McDermand blocked his pass. A little later he was forced to run and Mooney was waiting for him at the line of scrimmage. Free safety Bruce Bushong then intercepted his fourth attempt of the game, the first of four Tech was to intercept. Their season total after the game is 12 interceptions in five games.
 The halftime statistics had the Red Raiders with 154 yards rushing and 68 passing while the Aggies had only 47 yards on the ground.
 Napper was six of eight on passing at the half, and he did not throw an interception in six tries after the intermission.

 Two of those completions were keys to Tech drives and were just a hair away from interceptions.
 The first near-miss came on a touchdown drive that gave Tech a 14-0 lead. Napper fired a pass on a crucial third down play, with the ball slipping through the hands of Dave Elmendorf and falling into Odom's hands for a first down. Had it fallen incomplete Tech would have had to punt.
 The second pass was in the hands of Ed Ebrum but he fumbled away into the hands of Best. Ebrum, had he held on to the ball, would have had clear sailing down the sideline.
 "I intercepted the ball and was running down the sidelines and the ball just fell out of my hands and into the Tech player's. I caught the ball but didn't know how I dropped it," Ebrum said of the play.
 Tech stopped A&M threats with interceptions as they kept the Aggies from making up the ground they had gained early.
 Linebacker Mike Watkins set up the Tech drive that ended with their second half touchdown with an interception at the A&M 15. That might have been the most important play of the game because it stopped an A&M march at the outset of the second half. That Aggie drive had carried from the A&M 32 to the Tech 24 and included the completion of the game for A&M an 11 yarder from James Homer May.

 Tech outgained the Aggies, 277 yards to 217 in the contest, with the Aggies getting their score of the night with Tech play when Steve Burks scored the only TD last week against Michigan, followed by a crushing block by Neill to score from the six.
 It climaxed an 80-yard drive in 11 plays. James passed to Joey Herr for 19 yards, Burks for 11 and May for 11 on the drive. The pass to May set up the score by moving the ball to the 7.
 James completed 8 of 17 passes for 95 yards, with May and Burks his leading receivers, catching two each. Herr, Dusek, Neill and Hugh McElroy caught one each.
 Neill led the Aggie rushers with 71 yards on 12 carries and Burks had 43 yards. Dusek had three carries for seven yards. Mike Bunger had a yard on one carry.
 James was dropped for loss totaling 27 yards.
 The Tech offense was dominating, and the Tech defense was tight Saturday night. The game ended as a fitting one for the type of game it was. Mike McDermand blocked a James pass on 16 seconds left and then returned Harold Hurst dropped the Aggie quarterback for a 12 yard loss on the final play.
