The question, "Should sex education courses be offered in the Dallas Schools?" was posed to 250 Hillcrest students. Ninety-six percent were in favor, with junior high through high school the most suggested age for instruction.

A prevalent reason among the students for wanting sex instruction was that "parents rarely tell their children the whole truth about sex."

One young female interviewee commented, "I don't think it should be brought into the school because if kids want to know about sex education, they should ask their parents or friends." Dear Prudence . . .

Another highschooler, with a sly grin on his face and looking like the local hustler, said, "I think it shouldn't be in the schools. People will learn about it anyway, and, besides, teachers couldn't teach it."

Joe Higgins, the TV sheriff famous for his Dodge commercials, spoke to the UH journalism class recently.

He criticized newspapers, adults over 35, and the judiciary system.

Higgins said, "I'm uptight with the press today, especially newspapers." He said he wants journalism students to go out and tell it like it is on both sides.

Higgins was glad to see the 18-year-olds get the right to vote. On the topic of marijuana, he said, "The problem is not law enforcement but in the judiciary."

Higgins is an honorary sheriff in 104 counties. He is a real sheriff in Harris County, Texas; and in Selma and Madison Counties, Alabama.

"You're in a heap o' trouble, boy," Higgins said to a student that asked, "When the Dodge commercials get old . . .?"

On Oct. 31, regional demonstrations will be held all over the United States to protest continuing U.S. involvement in the war in Southeast Asia. A massive demonstration in Austin will be the focus of the Texas antiwar movement. A permit for the march has been obtained.

The march will begin at 1 p.m. at the West Mall of the University of Texas and end with a rally at the State Capitol. Groups from most Texas colleges are expected to attend.

Pat Canavan, a long-haired graduate of Harvard, will not be teaching at SMU anymore. It seems his rather unorthodox views have run up against a brick wall of opposition.

It seems that a group of Dallas businessmen did not care for what Canavan was doing for the Business School.

Dr. H. Neill McFarland, SMU vice president, indicated that Canavan was brought to the campus without "sufficient preparation" being made for him. He added that the usual hiring and interview procedures were not followed and that few people knew about Canavan before he came to SMU to teach.

Gov. Preston Smith never got to deliver his speech to a crowd of 4,000 on the UH campus a few days ago.

The governor left the stage without speaking after listening for a few minutes to a large crowd of hecklers from the audience. A hostile group at the front of the room kept shouting, "Free Lee Otis," "What about racism," and "You have the power to free Lee Otis."

Thirty minutes before the governor's scheduled speech, a rally was held on the front steps of the UC to protest and call attention to the imprisonment of Lee Otis Johnson.

Johnson, a former TSU student, was convicted last spring and sentenced to 30 years in prison for passing a marijuana cigarette to a police undercover agent.

Other UH students afterwards criticized the mob of hecklers as hypocrites. Students who holler "freedom of speech" and "police brutality" were the same ones who heckled police and did not allow Smith the right to be heard.
