Arkansas scouting report... Ags face tough Hogs

BY VICTOR MOORE
Battalion Sports Writer

The Texas Aggies (2-5), (0-3), losers of their last five games, have nothing to look forward to Saturday afternoon when the powerful Arkansas Razorbacks (5-1), (2-0) invade College Station to do bodily harm to the Aggie football team.

The Razorbacks, after bowing to Stanford in their opener, 34-28, loaded both guns, cranked up their scoring production, put a brick wall across their goal line, and proceeded to defeat Oklahoma State 23-7, Tulsa 49-7, TCU 49-14, Baylor 41-7, and Wichita State 62-0. In so doing, Arkansas again gained a top ten ranking as number eight in the nation. Arkansas' defense led the nation last year against scoring, averaging 7.6 points per game. This year they've only allowed an average of 11.1 points per game for the season and 7 points per game since going on their winning barrage. The Razorback offense has scored 252 points this season for an average of 42 points per game.

Comparing scores between common opponents A&M and Arkansas have faced this year, they both have faced Wichita State, winning 41-14 and 62-0 respectively, although Arkansas did not face the same team the Aggies opened against. In fact the first team offense was in for only eight plays as they left the game midway through the first quarter. Both teams have also faced Baylor and TCU. The Aggies lost to the Bears 29-24 and TCU 31-15, while the Razorbacks demolished the Bears 41-7 and destroyed TCU 49-14.

Arkansas has the big play men in their offense in the persons of quarterback Bill Montgomery, tailback Bill Burnett and split end Chuck Dicus. All are seniors and legitimate All-America candidates.

Montgomery, the cool, calm collected quarterback, is a top candidate for All-Southwest Conference honors. So far this year, Montgomery has thrown 95 times completing 53 for 878 yards, having four intercepted. He also has carried the ball 47 times for 226 yards.

Dicus is the leading pass receiver for the Razorbacks. In his first five games, Dicus has caught 20 passes for 348 yards. He is also a running threat with the end around. His longest running gain has been 32 yards.

Burnett is the leading running back for the Razorbacks this fall. In 96 tries this year, he has gained 408 yards, the longest being a 21 yard romp. Burnett is the one to look for when Arkansas gets close to the goal. He was the leading scorer in the conference last year, scoring 20 times for 120 points and is at it again. Through the first five games, Burnett has scored ten times.

Joining Burnett will be Russ Garber, the number two rusher for Arkansas gaining 223 yards on 47 carries. When Burnett is resting on the sidelines, he will be replaced by Jon Richardson, an exciting sophomore, who, in brief duty, has gained 200 yards in 35 carries.

The biggest headache for coach Frank Broyles this season was replacing three key members of the offensive line. The losses were All-American center Rodney Brand, All-Conference guard Jerry Dossy, and right tackle Bob Stankovich. Terry Hopkins (6-0, 200), Ronnie Bennett (6-3, 245), and Tom Mabry (6-6, 248) respectively have replaced the graduates.

Other solid performers in the offensive line will be returning starters Mike Kelson (6-4, 230), Ronnie Hammers (6-3, 230), Pat Morrison (6-2, 220), at tackle, guard, and tight end respectively.

Morrison is the number two receiver behind Dicus; through his first five games he has caught eleven for 122 yards.

The defense returns six starters, including All-Conference Tackle Rick Kersey. Linebacker Mike Boschetti is the team leader, and has a wide range of position. Monster man Bill Field is leading the defense interceptions with three. Les Moore and Louis Campbell have two and seven others have one each for a total of four.

Although the Arkansas defense is second so far in the conference, giving up 1630 total yards to Texas' 1356 total yards the rushing defense is the best. With opponents running plays against them, they have allowed only 580 net yards. The pass defense is the vulnerable spot. Only Baylor is leading Arkansas from having the poorest pass defense in the conference. Even though they have intercepted 14 passes, 84 of them have been completed against them for 1050 yards.

Arkansas, though having a disappointing game to Baylor in their opener, has backed strong against their opponents. Perhaps they are looking past the Aggies in the Dec. 5 game against current Number 1 Texas, and Aggies will upset them. Don't count on it, though. Arkansas a well-trained ball club and overcome any obstacle, enough time.

If the Aggies come up one of their traditional games against a member of the top, at least this year, look for a hard-fought game. If, however they display the same characteristics as in the Tech and games, watch out for Arkansas. They will show no mercy against the faltering Aggies, after being to pull their punches last week against Wichita State.

Kent Finley: hard hitter, plays end or linebacker

One of the prize sophomores on Texas A&M's young 1970 football squad is a defensive standout from Abilene Cooper High named Kent Finley. Finley does a workmanlike job game after game but has not received a lot of public acclaim.

He moved into the No. 1 right linebacker's slot last spring and stayed there until last Saturday when A&M's new defensive alignment saw him switching to defensive end.

He's the type of player that Coach Gene Stallings likes, a hitter or a contact player.

He had his most outstanding game against Michigan in Ann Arbor in A&M's fourth game of the season. In that one he was a demon on defense with 14 tackles.

At 6-0 and 200, Finley isn't exceptionally large but he hits with the authority of a player much bigger.

Finley was an all-district offensive and defensive end for Coach Merrill Green at Abilene Cooper High. He played defensive rover for the A&M Fish last season.

It has been a frustrating, disappointing season for the young Aggies but Finley, like the others, won't let it get him down. He knows the Aggies are due for an abrupt change for the better and he just keeps bearing down on every play.

In addition to his football, Kent played the outfield on Cooper's baseball team in Abilene. But, he is specializing in football at Texas A&M. A physical education major, he plans a career in coaching after he is graduated from A&M.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce K. Finley of 1766 Jeanette in Abilene. His father is a salesman in Abilene.

Kent and the rest of the Aggie defense have their work cut out this week when they against the powerful Arkansas attack.

You can rest assured that Finley will be one youngster who do some heavy hitting when the Razorbacks run his way. That type of competitor.
