

Reiser selected for Ohio State award

Dr. Raymond Reiser of A&M has been selected to receive an Ohio State University Centennial Achievement Award during special ceremonies in Columbus Dec. 17 and 18.

The awards honor 100 living Ohio State alumni, former faculty and individuals who have contributed to the advancement of their professions and society. Dr. Reiser and University of Houston President Phillip G. Hoffman were the only Texas residents selected.

Two A&M grads attend staff school

Three A&M graduates are attending the Air Force Command and Staff College at Maxwell AFB, Ala. Maj. Willett R. Stallworth of Marlin and Maj. George C. Reoh of Raymondville were in the class of 1968. Maj. Ray E. Stratton of Houston graduated in 1966. They are studying advanced military leadership, management and use of aerospace forces in the 10-month program that graduates officers for higher command and staff positions.

Foundation awards journalism grant

The Reader's Digest Foundation has awarded $1,000 in travel and research funds to the A&M Journalism Department for the 1970-71 school year, Paul W. Thompson, Foundation executive director, announced today.

This is the sixth year that the Reader's Digest Foundation has made such a grant to the Journalism Department.

Tectonophysics center makes two meetings

A&M's Center for Tectonophysics will be represented by eight presentations this month at two national meetings, announced Dr.

J. W. Handin, center director. Handin and six other faculty members and students will present seven technical papers at the annual meeting of the Geological Society of America Nov. 11-13 in Milwaukee.

Corbin to present talk to PTA

"Becoming Physically Educated" is the topic for the 7:30 p.m. Tuesday meeting of the College Hills Parent-Teacher Association. Guest speaker will be Dr. Charles B. Corbin, associate professor of health and physical education at A&M.

Dr. Corbin has conducted extensive studies of the physical characteristics and capabilities of elementary-age children.

Two of his studies involved College Hills Elementary School students.

The Tuesday meeting will be held in the school cafeteria.

Energy demands challenge ecology

Conflict between energy demands and environmental quality is inevitable, maintains an A&M professor who is conducting a study of environmental attitudes.

Dr. Earl F. Cook bases his prediction on the assumption that use of fossil fuels for electric power production will double during the next 20 years and fossil-fuel burning in automotive units will triple.

"At least two-thirds of the air pollution in the United States is due directly to the burning of fossil fuels, mainly gasoline and coal," he said.

Air pollution is a problem in only five percent of the country, the geography-geology professor continued, but that five percent is the urban areas which account for a large percentage of the population.

He thinks the ultimate solution is to construct power plants in remote sections of the country and limit the use of vehicles, planes and locomotives in highly congested areas.

"The best hope for solving our pollution problems rests with industry," he said, "but it won't come from hitting them over the head."

He estimates total power use in the U. S. is increasing at a rate of about five percent per year, but electric power use is growing about nine percent annually.

The nation faces a major long-range problem in providing fuel — to generate the necessary power, Dr. Cook stressed. "Natural gas can be relied upon as a major energy source for only a few decades at most," he said. "World petroleum reserves probably will represent a major fuel source for less than a century, after which oil should be more valued as an industrial raw material than as fuel."

Dr. Cook believes nuclear energy holds the greatest promise as a power source, but only if there is a breakthrough in technology to allow widespread construction of breeder or fusion reactors.

OFFICIAL NOTICE Official notices must arrive in the Office of Student Publications before deadline of 1 p.m. of the day preceding publication.

All students who are candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy or Doctor of Education are required to order hoods as well as the Doctor's Caps and gowns. The Hoods are to be left at the Registrar's Office no later than 1:00 p. m., Tuesday, December 8th (a representative of the Exchange Store will carry the hoods to the Registrar). The Ph.D. or D.Ed. hoods will not be worn in the procession since all doctoral candidates will be hooded on the stage as part of the ceremony. Candidates for the Master's Degree will wear the cap and gown; all civilian students who are candidates for the Bachelor's Degree will wear the appropriate uniform. All military personnel who are candidates for a degree either graduate or undergraduate, will wear the uniform only. Rental of Doctor's caps and gowns may be arranged with the Exchange Store. Orders for Doctor's rental regalia will be taken starting November 9 until noon November 21. The rental for the Doctor's cap and gown is $7.85, tax included. Hood rental is the same as that for the cap and gown. Payment is required at time of placing the order. Bachelor's and Master's regalia may be purchased at the Exchange Store beginning November 16, 1970. The purchase price of the Bachelor's cap and gown is $6.88. The purchase price of the Master's cap and gown is $7.56. These prices include tax. C. W. Landis, Chairman Conventions Committee

The Church.. For a Fuller Life.. For You..

He makes a marvelous picture—but would he really make a marvelous chef? Can you imagine what might happen if you let him brew up a pot of everything his chubby little fingers could latch onto?

Let's face it! It takes thought, direction and planning to do anything well in life — even to make a good stew. Though a true chef may not follow the cookbook precisely, he will select and blend his ingredients with care and precision. Only then will the dish be a success.

What does all this have to do with going to church? More than you might think! If you have been leaving the Church out of your recipe for living, you have been missing some of life's most priceless ingredients — God's love, His priceless gift of Faith and some of the greatest lessons ever revealed to man.

Table with columns for days of the week and corresponding Bible verses.
