

Playoff games scheduled here

Four Texas high school football teams with thoughts of the pot of gold at the end of the playoff rainbow, a state championship, will knock heads this weekend in a pair of schoolboy playoff games on Kyle Field.

Friday night, Friendswood with a 12-0 record and a 24-6 win over previously unbeaten Kirbyville last weekend meets Georgetown also 12-0 in a Class AA state quarterfinal battle at 8 p.m. Georgetown defeated Di-Will 25-7 last week.

The Ennis Lions, who used a 17-point second half to take a 17-7 regional win over Brenham on Kyle Field last week, decided to try for another win on the artificial turf and will challenge unbeaten Jasper at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Jasper defeated West Columbia last week 22-16 as Johnny Limbrick ripped off 146 yards on 33 carries.

Texas stabilizes ranking

By CLIFFORD BROYLES

The University of Texas at Austin Longhorns kept their claim to the number one ranking in the national wire service polls intact Thursday with a resounding victory over the Texas Aggies before an estimated 66,500 fans in Memorial Stadium.

The game also had a sidelight provided by about 50 members of the Aggie senior line who carried Coach Gene Stallings on their shoulders across the field to the Aggie bench to show their support of the head coach, who was given a green light on next season after constant pressure and rumors had made it almost certain that he would not.

A&M President Jack K. Williams put an end to the rumors last week before the traditional encounter.

"Contrary to various so-called close-to-the-situation reports we are not contemplating a coaching change," he said.

The Longhorns proceeded to do what was expected as the Aggies fumbled the ball away early.

The Aggies gave the ball up six times during the game on fumbles, and with the Texas offense showing its potency that was a deadly mistake. It was similar to the Ohio State game when the Aggies gave up five bobbled pigskins.

The Longhorns and Buckeyes are the only two undefeated major colleges with a shot at the mythical national championship in the Associated Press and United Press International polls.

The Buckeyes are home free on an undefeated regular season with a Rose Bowl berth against Stanford next for the Big Ten champions, but for Texas the road that has 29 victories stretched across it has Arkansas waiting right in the middle for the head-on collision that will decide the Southwest Conference winner and the opposition for Notre Dame in the 1971 Cotton Bowl game.

The wind again was a factor as it was in the Rice game, but Jimmy Sheffield, punting in his final game for the Aggies, put on a super show, while the Longhorns showed they do have a weakness in their punting game.

Sheffield booted five of his eight kicks into a wind that gusted from 16 to 29 miles per hour and kicked for a 47 yard average, while Alan Lowry got off kicks of 7, 11, and 23 yards to make his total distance for three kicks less than the average of every kick by the Aggie senior.

Sheffield went into the game second to defending NCAA punting champion Ed Marsh of Baylor and Thursday's performance could be good enough to give him the punting crown, although official statistics have not been released.

Another standout performance was made in his final game by free safety Dave Elmendorf, who intercepted two passes — giving him a season total of six and a career mark of 12, which betters by one the most ever picked off by an Aggie defender.

The Longhorns took advantage of Aggie errors in the contest to roll on with fumble recoveries as the Texas 39 and A&M gave the Longhorns the golden opportunity that awarded them 14 points in a matter of a minute and 25 seconds.

Both of those bobbles came after the Aggies had gained yardage and were not necessarily caused by hard hitting.

Lex James used the option to move the Aggies down the field. After guiding the Aggies to the Texas 46, he picked up the first down, was hit by Bill Zapalac and Texas recovered the fumble.

Then the mastery of the Texas triple option went to work with the Aggies nailing Jim Bertelson after only a yard gain before Eddie Phillips ripped off 23 yards on a keeper.

Poor Aggie tackling was evident on the TD play, as Phillips was caught at the five on a play that could have given the Ags the ball on downs, but he squirted through.

On the first play following that Marc Black went through the Texas line for 18 yards to the 40 but fumbled as he fell and Texas took over.

Bland Smith, who had a hard-luck day from his cornerback post, then was called for pass interference while defending against Danny Lester at the Texas five. Two plays later Bertelson went over one of those holes you could drive a truck through.

Smith also was the victim of a sensational diving catch by Lester on the next drive that set up an 18-yard strike to Lester for a touchdown. A little later in the half he batted down a Phillips pass only to have the ball fall into the hands of Lester, who leisurely stepped into the end zone for another score.

It was a new twist for the Texas offense, one that could pay big dividends Saturday against Arkansas.

Most people who favor Arkansas either hate Texas or feel the Hogs balanced offense will prevail over the 'Horns running game.

Texas passed for 217 yards Thursday and they also ran for 386 more, amassing 603 yards.

Elmendorf named All-American

Dave Elmendorf, the senior from Houston Westbury, has been named to the 1970 Look Magazine All America football team.

One of three Southwest Conference players to be picked, Elmendorf is in Los Angeles for the filming of the presentation of the elite group on the Bob Hope television special to be seen Monday night on national television at 8 p.m. (CST).

The top vote-getter was Larry DiNardo, offensive guard of Notre Dame. The team was picked by the Football Writers Association of America. Jim Stillwagon, defensive guard for Ohio State, was picked to be the recipient of the Outland Trophy, which is awarded to the outstanding interior lineman in the country.

There are three repeaters from last year's team: Texas' Steve Worster, a running back, Tennessee's Chip Kell, an offensive guard, and Ohio State's John Tatum. Only two members of the 23-man squad are juniors: Tom Gatewood, Notre Dame offensive end, and Mary Bateman, Utah kicking specialist.

In addition to Elmendorf and Worster, the other SWC star was defensive tackle Bruce James of Arkansas. The only other Texan besides Elmendorf and Worster was offensive end Elmo Wright of Houston.

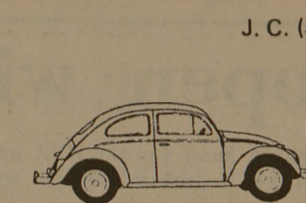

This is the second national recognition in his career for Elmendorf, who was named to the All-America academic team last spring for baseball. As a center fielder, he has been All-SWC twice. In addition, he was All-SWC in football last year.

An economics major, the 6-1, 190 pounder was All-State and All-American in high school football. Following his prep career, he was drafted by the Atlanta Braves for baseball, but he decided to come to A&M, where he has excelled in football, baseball, and in the classroom.

In football, Elmendorf has played tailback, fullback, linebacker, defensive halfback, and safety. He has also been the punt and kickoff returner for the Aggies. He is A&M's nominee for the Kern Tipps Trophy, and Dec.
