Oceanography gains $5,000

Esso Production Research Co. has awarded a $5,000 unrestricted grant to the Oceanography Department.

Dr. Richard A. Geyer, department head, was notified of the award by C. R. Hocott of Houston, vice president of the exploration and production research affiliate of Humble Oil & Refining Co. and the worldwide affiliates of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey).

The Esso official said the funds should be used to "fill some urgent need which might not otherwise be met by other available support."

The U. S. Department of Agriculture Experiment Station Record and the Forestry Quarterly, the initial technical forestry journal, among others.

Two seniors nominated for Wilson fellowship

A&M seniors Dale P. Gravett of Corpus Christi, Joachim F. Wernicke of the Virgin Islands and Turner F. Williamson of Abilene have been nominated for the annual Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation competition.

Gravett, Wernicke and Williamson were nominated by A&M faculty members among 372 graduating seniors in Region XII consisting of Texas and Louisiana.

Woodrow Wilson Fellowships for 1971-72 will be awarded in February to 250 American and 50 Canadian students of outstanding ability who are considering careers as college teachers. Also, 700 candidates will be designated finalists and recommended to graduate schools of their choice for financial aid.

B-CS will host ROA convention

Bryan-College Station will host the state convention of the Reserve Officers Association April 23-24.

Brig. Gen. Joe G. Hanover, commanding officer of the Army Reserve's Bryan-based 420th Engineering Brigade, said the Ramada Inn meeting will attract approximately 350 persons, including wives.

Many of the wives, General Hanover noted, belong to a related organization, Reserve Officers Association Ladies, which also will hold meetings here.

ROA includes reserve officers in all branches of the armed forces.

Systems engineering seminar scheduled

A seminar on systems engineering will be held in Room 207 of the Engineering Building at 3 p.m. Thursday (December 3), Dr. Richard B. Wadsworth, assistant professor of industrial engineering, has announced.

Participating in a panel discussion will be George C. Beason, director of systems engineering, Recognition Equipment, Inc. of Dallas, and Joseph E. Lidiak, project engineer with RCA Defense Electronic Products, Burlington, Mass. Dr. William B. Jones, head of the department of electrical engineering, and Dr. Charles A. Rodenberger, professor of aerospace engineering, will represent A&M.

UH hecklers send Smith an apology

HOUSTON (AP)—Gov. Preston Smith received Wednesday an apology containing an estimated 23,000 University of Houston student signatures.

State Sen. Chet Brooks of Houston accepted the petition containing an apology for an incident last Oct. 7 which prevented the governor from speaking at a student assembly.

Randall D. Chapman, 21, who allegedly led a group of student hecklers which prevented the governor from speaking, also apologized.

"I would like to cordially invite Governor Smith to come back to our campus at any time and I would be perfectly willing to conduct an open discussion with him on any topic," Chapman said.

Chapman made the apology during an informal gathering of students at the University Center. He said he did not feel his apology represents a change in his attitude toward the incident.

"I feel that I was not instrumental in preventing the governor from speaking and I was sorry he did not speak," he said.

Chapman was temporarily suspended by University of Houston President Philip G. Hoffman after the incident. He was later convicted by a student court of violating student life policies and placed on disciplinary probation.

Susan Garrett, 22, a junior psychology student, said she initiated the gathering of names for the apology in an effort to open the line of communications with the government.

"If anyone is actually prevented from speaking on our campus, we consider such an occurrence reprehensible and destructive of a free and open society," the petition read. "We therefore extend an apology to the Governor of Texas because he felt he could not speak to the students who had assembled to hear him."

Chapman wore a dark business suit and a dark western hat Wednesday. He was neatly shaven and had a short haircut.

At the time of the incident and during his trial before the student court, he had a moustache and shoulder length hair.

Chapman, a senior economics student, said Wednesday the fact that he was carrying a broom during the heckling was incidental.

"It is unfortunate that the news media blew out of proportion the fact that I was carrying a broom and walked out behind the governor," he said. "I was simply carrying a broom and it was removed from me by security officers."

Students also presented Brooks with a petition containing 4,300 names opposing a recommended hike in tuition for state colleges.

Environment group formally endorsed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Environmental Protection Agency came into formal existence Wednesday while its first chief was receiving Senate committee endorsement. It marked completion of a year of restructuring of federal environment functions—with still more restructuring probably lying ahead.

The Senate Public Works Committee gave unanimous approval to William D. Ruckelshaus as director of EPA. Early Senate confirmation is expected for Ruckelshaus, an Indianan who now is an assistant attorney general.

The administration is known to be considering further changes—particularly in the management of federal land and of energy resources.

And it recognizes, at least in theory, that some environment problems may eventually require the development of entirely new kinds of political institutions.

The reorganization began on the first day of the year, when President Nixon signed into law the 1969 Environmental Policy Act, setting up a three-member Council on Environmental Quality as advisers to the President.

On July 9, Nixon proposed executive reorganization plans for the creation of EPA and a National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

EPA, the independent agency established Wednesday, assembles from the Interior Department, Agriculture Department, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the Atomic Energy Commission the federal efforts to control air- and water-pollution, pesticides, solid wastes and radiation.

But even when he proposed those changes Nixon said he had received recommendations for additional reorganizations.

John Whittaker, a top White House aide on environmental matters, told a newsman, "The big thing this reorganization leaves out is land use."

Control of federal land—one-third of the nation—is now divided among the Departments of Interior, Agriculture, and Defense, and other agencies.

This is what we have against blades.

A shaver that shaves as close or closer than the new platinum and chromium blades. 99 men tested our Norelco Tripleheader 35T against these new blades. Each shaved one side of his face with a blade and the other with the Tripleheader. Our three floating heads followed the curves of their faces. And our eighteen rotary blades shaved in every direction at once (that's the way beards grow).
Blades can't do all this. They're straight. And that's why seven out of ten men said the Tripleheader shaved them as close or closer than the new blades.
What's more, the Tripleheader has a pop-out trimmer. So you can get your sideburns straight and even for a change. Now what blade can compete with that?

This is what we have against other rechargeables.

A rechargeable that gives up to twice as many shaves per charge as any other rechargeable.
Our Rechargeable Tripleheader 45CT has all the features of our regular Tripleheader. It has three Microgroove™ floating heads. And eighteen rotary blades that continuously sharpen themselves to cut down on bothersome blade replacement. And a hidden pop-up trimmer for neat sideburns and mustaches.
It also has some special features all its own. A Shave Counter that automatically counts your shaves and tells you when to recharge. A Charge Indicator that lights up when it's recharging. And, of course, the Rechargeable can shave with or without a cord.
Now what rechargeable can compete with that?
