

CATV school dedicated

The Texas Engineering Extension Service's Cable Antenna Television Technicians Training School was dedicated Thursday afternoon, with leaders from the National Cable Television Association and Texas CATV Association attending.

H. D. Bearden, TEES director, conducted the dedication. He was assisted by Ed Kerlick, chief instructor for the Electrical and Telephone Technicians Training Division of TEES, and Tom Straw, CATV instructor.

Environmental force to see ship channel

Thirteen members of the Governor's Environmental Health Task Force will observe A&M's environmental engineering operations on the Houston Ship Channel Tuesday.

Dr. Roy W. Hann Jr., associate professor in the Environmental Engineering Division of the Civil Engineering Department, said the group will board the R/V Excellence to view water and bottom sampling operations in the channel. The Excellence is the university's water pollution research vessel.

Gulf awards A&M petroleum grant

Gulf Oil Foundation has awarded A&M a $5,000 grant for petroleum engineering research.

Norman D. Coggeshall of Pittsburgh, Pa., director of Gulf Research & Development Company's Exploration & Production Department, formally presented the award Thursday to Executive Vice President A. R. Luedecke.

Coggeshall was joined in the presentation by J. H. Henderson of Houston, director of the company's Production Development Division.

Range grasses lecture planned for Wednesday

Dr. D. N. Hyder, range scientist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Fort Collins, Colo., will lecture on "Growth and Development in Range Grasses" Wednesday at A&M.

The lecture, sponsored by the Range Science Department, will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Room 113 of the Plant Sciences Building.

Accounting seminar to be held Friday

Dr. Ned Allen Ford Jr. of Washington State University will conduct an accounting seminar Friday at A&M.

"Fully-Diluted Earnings per Share" will be the topic of Dr. Ford's 3 p.m. seminar in 352 Francis Hall, announced Accounting Department head Dr. Kenneth Most.

Colleges face problems in financial 'depression'

NEW YORK (AP) — American colleges and universities torn between racing costs and jogging incomes, face financial problems 'serious enough to be called a depression,' the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education said Thursday.

Putting a national focus on a situation that worries many educators more than student rebellion, a commission report gave this estimate derived from a weighted sample of 41 closely-studied institutions:

Some 450 colleges and universities, enrolling 21 per cent of America's student population, are in such financial difficulty that they have had to curtail important services. Another 1,000, with 56 per cent of students, are headed for such troubles in the near future.

The report, compiled by Earl F. Cheit, former vice chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley, named some of the country's wealthiest and most prestigious institutions from its test sample—including Stanford and Harvard Universities, Berkeley and the Universities of Chicago, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri and Oregon. It said the situation was fast becoming worse as cost increases continue to outpace income increases.

Releasing the report at a news conference, the commission chairman, Clark Kerr, said he did not "foresee any of the major institutions in the United States closing their doors." But Cheit said that "several of them will have to change profoundly unless solutions are found," and more governmental aid will be a necessity.

Cheit said the most optimistic administrators see the crisis lasting into the middle 1970s.

Trouble was more likely for private institutions than public, urban than rural schools, universities than liberal arts colleges, the report said. Northern schools were said to be in generally worse shape than those of other regions.

The term "in financial difficulty" does not reflect on a school's academic worth, the report said, and might indicate that the school is doing more than others to bring income and expenditures into line.

Some public institutions, prohibited by law from going into the red might have balanced budgets but be suffering a quality deficit, the Cheit report said. It said a study of 555 private institutions being completed by the Association of American Colleges, is expected to find as many as one-fourth of them dipping into capital.

Remedying the situation, the Cheit report said, will involve not only general economic recovery but winning back public confidence by stability, efficiency and redefinition of purposes and priorities. Besides increased income from tuition and private giving, it said, there would have to be "major new public policies."

The report, to be published next year, made no specific predictions about what would happen if things do not change. But some individual educators have recently put it quite bluntly.

"The day of judgment is upon us," Knox College President Sharvy G. Umbeck said last summer. "You will note I did not forecast its arrival at a future time. It is here—now."

Kingman Brewster, president of Yale, has said one more year's "shrinkage of funds" would force Yale—expecting a $2 million deficit this academic year—to sacrifice either quality, "great discernible areas of activity" or accessibility to those who are not rich.

Friendswood to meet Georgetown here in high school playoff games

The Friendswood Mustangs and Georgetown will meet on Kyle Field tonight at 8 in the first of two Texas high school playoff games this weekend.

The Mustangs led by All-State quarterback Kent Ballard, are undefeated in 12 starts, while Georgetown will be out to better last year's record. They lost to Lufkin Dunbar on penetrations last year in this same playoff, the state quarterfinals.

Tickets will go on sale for the AA encounter at 6:30 p.m. at the ticket window at G. Rollie White Coliseum and booths at Gates 5 and 7 for $2.50 each, according to A&M Business Manager Wally Groff.

The second game will be 24 hours later, at 8 p.m. Saturday, when the Ennis Lions will meet Jasper in a Class AAA quarterfinal battle. It will be the second week in a row that Ennis has played on the AstroTurf of Kyle Field. Last week they defeated Brenham, 33-17, in the regionals by scoring 27 points in the second half.

Ticket sales for that game will begin at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, with $2.50 for reserved seats and $2 for general admission seats.
