Student panel tells of homosexual life

BY JAMES R. JACKSON

The "homosexual dilemma" was discussed by a panel last month at Washington State University, according to the school newspaper, The Daily Evergreen.

The panel was composed of two speakers, Jim Broderickson and Lori Jaffe, who made their presentation to a standing room only crowd. They emphasized that "the panel isn't trying to solicit homosexuality and that this is an objective look at homosexuality." Both speakers dealt with the stereotyping of homosexuals.

"Homosexuals come out of many different life styles," stated Broderickson, "and we're all people." He said that people are "basically bisexual" to varying degrees and that he wasn't "trying to get people to accept us but trying to get them to understand us."

Citing three difficulties of being a lesbian, Lori Jaffe said she found it harder to be a heterosexual woman than gay.

Oppression in jobs and problems in adopting children were stated as major difficulties faced by lesbians.

Miss Jaffe said movies create the bad stereotype of homosexuals and that "if a movie were made about an everyday homosexual relationship, it would be a bombshell."

A poll taken last month by Dr. Robert Curl at Rice indicated an overwhelming majority of Rice students favored the implementation of some kind of on-campus coeducational living arrangement.

Society of Iranian Students will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Lutheran Student Center to honor new Iranian students and help everyone get acquainted. Refreshments will be served.

Carl said the results indicated "an obviously strong expression of student opinion." Seventy-six and eight tenths per cent of all undergraduates registered at Rice voted in the poll and 85 per cent registered approval on the question, "Are you in favor of establishing a system of coed colleges here on the Rice campus?"

Jane Fonda, speaking last month at the University of Houston and the University of Texas, said, "If by May no date has been set for complete withdrawal (from Vietnam), great numbers of people, perhaps 50,000, will bring Washington to a stop with sit-ins and other planned organized massive non-violent civil disobedience."

Miss Fonda, actress and organizer against the oppression of blacks, whites, Chicanos, women, gay people, GI's, and the Vietnamese, asked antiwar groups to prepare for a mass rally in Washington, D. C., by forming into political collectives and educate people to the anti-war movement.

Antiwar actions by GI's are radically changing the war, she said. "There is a new kind of soldier today. He is not a John Wayne freak."

As one example of this image, the activist actress cited a new GI practice called "fragging."

Miss Fonda explained this as soldiers putting a price on the head of an officer they don't like. Each soldier in the outfit puts a few dollars in the pot to raise the reward and one of them rolls a grenade under the tent of the officer.

"One soldier told me he has killed more officers than Vietnamese," Jane said.
