

Swimmers host Hogs in only home meet

The Texas Aggie Swimming team will find the confines of a friendly pool for the only time this season Saturday when it hosts the University of Arkansas in a dual meet at P. L. Downs Natatorium at 3 p.m. A&M has had only one meet this year, and won it, 92-12, over Rice, but the Arkansas challenge will be a big one for A&M as the Hogs had an impressive win over the University of Texas at Austin in a dual meet earlier this year. The Longhorns have been annually the second strongest team in the league behind Southern Methodist University, which has won the last 14 Southwest Conference crowns.

"We're not real sure if we can win this one," Coach Dennis Fosdick said. "If we do we're going to have to swim some times we haven't ever done before."

Fosdick said Arkansas is primarily a junior and senior squad while the Aggies have only one senior, Tom Sparks and the rest are freshmen and sophomores.

Fosdick pointed to the fact that this will be the first competition for his team in about three weeks, since the Oklahoma meet, although they did have the easy win over Rice in which he even switched up some of the swimmers to events they had never swam before and still came out with first and second place in 9 of 10 individual events, and first by a wide margin in both relays.

"We're still a little stale from the lack of competition," he said, but added, "we've tapered off our workouts for this meet and everybody is crisp and ready to go." Saturday's meet will have 13 events, including two diving events and two relays.

The meet will be the first for the Aggies' newly recruited All-American Fred Meyers, who'll be seeing his first action in his specialty.

Competing in the meet for A&M, although the official list of swimmers by events was not complete, will be: Steve Sonnenberg, Mike Hicks, Steve Prentice, Doug Carson, Bob Willoughby, Tom Sparks, Gordon Taylor, John Allred, Eric Wolfe, Dan Sonnenberg, John McCleary, Kim Blake-mon, Martin Littleken, Mike McLellan and divers, Duncan Cooper and Greg Rippéy.

There is no admission charge to the meet.

Dr. Cotton named Welch professor

Dr. F. Albert Cotton, currently professor of chemistry at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been appointed Robert A. Welch Professor of Chemistry at A&M, President Dr. Jack K. Williams has announced.

Dr. Cotton is expected to join the university during the 1971 fall semester.

The inorganic chemist is interested in molecular structures and bonding in inorganic compounds and the molecular structure of enzymes and proteins.

He is author of a definitive treatise on inorganic chemistry.

Third U.S. team lands on the moon

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two more Americans landed on the moon Friday in search of clues to the dawn of the solar system.

Alan B. Shepard and Edgar D. Mitchell were the third pair of emissaries from earth to the lifeless satellite.

They came in the name of science, hoping that the moon—unchanged by erosion of air and water—will yield secrets locked in its soil for nearly five billion years.

The triumph of Apollo 14 was a personal one for Shepard, the country's first man to brave the hazards of space nearly 10 years ago. And Apollo 14 was challenged to complete the mission of Apollo 13, unable to land last April because an oxygen tank exploded in flight.

The lunar lander Antares, named for the brightest star in the constellation Scorpio, settled on the moon at 4:16 a.m. EST. Sixty miles overhead, girdling the moon every two hours, was Stuart A. Roosa, alone in the mothership named Kitty Hawk.

Antares touched down in the rugged highlands of Fra Mauro, considered by scientists to be the most interesting for exploration because some of its rocks may be 4.6 billion years old—formed in the birth pangs of the moon.

Four and one-half hours after landing, Shepard walks out on the "porch" of Antares and climbs down nine steps to the surface. Mitchell follows minutes later.

They would be the fifth and sixth men to stand on lunar soil, viewing earth from 238,725 miles away. Their footprints on the moon will be added to those of Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. of Apollo 11, and Charles Conrad, Jr. and Alan L. Bean of Apollo 12.

Legislators will ask citizens to OK higher welfare ceiling

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators agreed Thursday on a proposed constitutional change partially lifting the state welfare ceiling to head off major cuts in benefits for needy children.

Voters will make the final decision on the measure at a May 18 special election.

As approved on lopsided votes in the House and Senate, the welfare measure would remove the $80 million annual ceiling on state tax spending for benefits for the aged, blind and disabled. But it would impose a $55 million-a-year limit on such expenditures for aid to families with dependent children (AFDC).

Unless the ceiling is removed by the voters and the legislature responds by appropriating more welfare money, AFDC benefits will be chopped about one-third on June 1, the Welfare Department says.

According to Welfare Department spokesmen, AFDC will cost $47 million in just two years, indicating the ceiling will have to

During their 33½ hours on the moon, the spacemen will make two walks of four to five hours each.

Industrial Education wins ping pong championship

Wrestling and volleyball intramurals are in full swing, according to the intramural office. Class A and C wrestling began last week for all weight classes. As in wrestling, volleyball for Class B and D, is continuing every day at 5 and 7:30 p.m.

The class C ping pong champion has been determined. Industrial Education won the crown by beating Davis-Gary Tuesday night.

The winner of the Squadron 12 and B-1 playoff game met A-2 for the Class A ping pong championship Thursday night.

The handball playoffs for Class B began Thursday at 5 p.m. announced the intramural office. Softball officials will be needed for March. Anyone interested is urged to contact the intramural office whenever possible.
