Crew calls flight 'smashing success'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 14 moonwalkers said Monday that only time defeated them in their quest to climb to the rim of Cone Crater and that their mission on the moon was a "smashing success."
"I can intuitively tell from what we've done, what we've seen, that we're bringing back a wealth of information, photographically and geologically, and we've left another station (science experiments) on the moon sending back information," said astronaut Alan

B. Shepard.
The astronauts held a press conference in space, after they spent most of the day packing away their moon treasure and tidying up their spacecraft. They were preparing for splashdown in the South Pacific today.
Moonwalkers Shepard and Edgar D. Mitchell described their battle to reach the Cone Crater rim. Their crewmate, Stuart A. Roosa, told of his long, lonely hours aboard the command ship in lunar orbit.

Scientists have said that the climb tired the men—that Shepard's heartbeat for example jumped to as high as 150 beats per minute at one point. Normal is about 84 for Shepard.
Mission Control told the astronauts a number of times to rest as they struggled up the crater.
"I guess we didn't realize we had problems of fatigue," Shepard said. "I don't know exactly what our heart rates were. Obviously they were higher than the normal sitting rate."

He said even though he and Mitchell were unable to climb Cone Crater they were able to gather rocks from the same general geologic structure which is believed to contain rocks 4.6 billion years old or as old as the moon itself.

Former Students win 13 prizes at meeting

Texas A&M's Association of Former Students has captured 13 awards from the American Alumni Council District 4 annual competition.
Six of the awards were in the Publications and Communications Division, and marked the first time the association has ever won in that AAC category.
Association Executive Director Richard (Buck) Weirus said the awards included six firsts, six seconds and one honorable mention.
Colleges and universities from Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas entered the district competition.

Connie Eckard, director of association publications, edits The Texas Aggie, which took second place in Magazine of the Year competition.
Special recognition awards presented to The Texas Aggie included a first for student treatment, first for best color covers, second for faculty treatment, second for best photo essay and honorable mention for best single cover.

The photo essay illustrated the life and funeral of former A&M President Earl Rudder.
The Association took three awards for alumni administration, directed by Weirus.
A&M received a first place award in the student recruitment category for its square multi-

Texas rates 38th on the list in nationwide legislature study

AUSTIN—According to a 14-month nationwide study by the Citizens Conference on State Legislatures, the Texas Legislature ranks 38th among all 50 states.

hearing by House-Senate panels would also save time, the study maintained.

The study reported that the lieutenant governor has too much power, and suggested that some of it be transferred to the president pro tempore of the Senate.
CCSL came out strong for annual sessions of the Legislature and found $15,000 a reasonable annual pay for senators and representatives (who now get $4,800).

Broad powers of the lieutenant governor, said CCSL, are a "hindrance to the Senate developing leadership of its own choosing."
Powers include appointment of committee chairmen, assigning bills to committees and casting tie-breaking votes.

The conference also suggested that Texas has far too many legislative standing committees (72 in all) and that 15 for each house would be plenty. A joint States getting the best rankings were, in this order, California, New York, Illinois, Florida, Wisconsin, Iowa, Hawaii, Michigan, Nebraska and Minnesota.

Texas ranked 45th in ability to control its own activities, 43rd in the use of available information, 36th in accountability to constituency and 17th in being representative of the state's varied interests and population.
