Baptist professor says church needs new approach to drugs

DALLAS (AP) — All churches should have a "radical sharing group" where drug abusers could go without fear of rejection or being reported to police, a Baptist educator told conferees Tuesday at the Nationwide Bible Conference here.

Henlee H. Barnette, professor of Christian ethics at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., said churches have been "handing out a cocaine kind of existence."

"The church must kick its own addiction before it starts to get the monkey off others' backs." He said the church has an "addiction for war, racism, and particularly self-glory and self-enhancement."

More than 5,000 persons are attending the conference, first such conference held by Southern Baptists.

Simon and Garfunkel earn 'best record of year' title

NEW YORK (AP) — "Bridge over Troubled Water," performed by Simon and Garfunkel, was the big winner Tuesday night as Grammy Awards were given for the best recordings of last year.

The duo's "Bridge over Troubled Water" won as best single record of the year, best long-playing album, and best song, the latter award going to composer Paul Simon.

The Grammy awards, being given for the 13th year by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, were seen on television for the first time from Los Angeles.

Presentation of 16 of the awards was televised. Technical, classical and some of the country and rhythm 'n' blues awards were made separately at banquets in Los Angeles, Nashville, Tenn.;

Chicago, New York and Atlanta.

The Carpenters, brother and sister ballad singers, were named best new artist of last year. They also won as the best contemporary duo or group vocalists for "Close to You."

Best vocal performance Grammys went to Ray Stevens for "Everything Is Beautiful," which he wrote, and to Dionne Warwick for "I'll Never Fall in Love Again." She won once before, with "Do You Know Way to San Jose?"

Best rhythm 'n' blues vocal performance awards went to B. B. King, winning for the first time, with "The Thrill Is Gone," which he wrote, and Aretha Franklin for "Don't Play That Song." This is her fourth straight year to win in this category.

It was the first time to win for both best singers in country music, Ray Price, with "For the Good Times," and Lynn Anderson, for "Rose Garden."

Marty Robbins was the writer of "My Woman, My Woman, My Wife," judged the best country song. He won a Grammy before, when his "El Paso" was named best country single of 1960.

John Lennon, Paul McCartney and George Harrison won the Grammy for best film score for "Let it Be," the first time Beatles had won in that category. McCartney and his wife Linda accepted it.

Flip Wilson had the best comedy recording, "The Devil Made Me Buy This Dress." He broke a six-year winning streak by Bill Cosby.

OK asked for use of 'pot' on humans

AUSTIN (AP) — Three medical men and a professor who hears lots of stories from students about drug abuse urged a Senate committee Monday to allow researchers to experiment with marijuana on human beings.

"We are crying for information on the marijuana dilemma," Dr. Robert White of the University of Texas medical branch at Galveston told the Public Health Committee.

The committee approved for full Senate debate a bill to set up an advisory panel of seven to approve marijuana research projects.

Persons involved in the approved project would be immune from prosecution.

Dr. George Parker, a University of Texas psychology professor, said he was representing the Texas Psychological Association officially "and the students of the university unofficially."

He said he had just come from a meeting in his office with two students, "one of whom had severe problems related to the use of marijuana and other substances."

"We're in the dark because we're so frightened of doing research," Parker said. "But I think history has shown us long enough that we are not able to stop people from using certain substances, and it is incredibly naive to think we can..."

Arthur Briggs of the pharmacology department at the UT medical branch in San Antonio said he hoped the advisory panel "does not become a political football with someone looking down at you saying 'if you're not a good boy we're going to cut off your research.'"

The committee also approved bills prohibiting non-medical persons from possessing a hypodermic syringe or needle or any other instrument to inject dangerous drugs unless authorized by a physician and allowing persons 13 or older to consent to examination and treatment by a physician for drug addiction or drug dependence.

The consent bill already has passed the House.
