Competition hot in Aggie camp

The Texas Aggies finished off their seventh workout of the spring Thursday with competition hot and heavy for the 22 starting positions.

Hardly a day has passed without some changes being made in the maroon, or first two units, offense and defense, with the depth chart at the end of first week including at least eight members of last year's freshman team.

Skip Kuehn, junior college transfer from Ranger Junior College and Butch Kamps, a maroon offensive tackle, at the start of the week are both nursing knee injuries, and may not return to full contact status until after the team breaks for the Easter holidays next week. Kuehn was the number one center before his injury.

Linebacker Dennis Carruth suffered a broken leg near the end of Thursday's workout and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

The big bone in his leg was reportedly the one broken.

Aggies dominate batting stats

By CLIFFORD BROYLES
Battalion Sports Editor

Six members of the Texas Aggies are listed in the latest Southwest Conference baseball statistics released by the league this week, but at least three of the team's leading hitters are missing.

The list has two requirements that are hurting the Aggies. Dave Elmendorf, who has yet to play a conference game since his eye injury; and Gene Reinartz, who has batted only 11 times. Both lack the minimum 12 at bats for the list. Carroll Lilly is hitting only .238 in league play, but the list includes only .300 hitters. But the Aggie second baseman has a .414 season average with 19 hits in 37 bats against non-league opponents.

Rice series. That's good for fourth place behind leader Johnny Dodgen of Baylor at .478.

Billy Hodge, A&M's All-SWC catcher who is expected to return to full time duty behind the plate this weekend, is sixth with a .417 and Chris Sans eighth at .391.

Then it's Butch Ghutzman, 12 at .348. Jimmy Hacker and Larry Smith are tied for 14 with .333 marks.

The Aggies two ace pitchers, Bruce Katt and Paul Czerwinski, rank second and fourth. Katt has a 2-0 record with 2.77 era and Czerwinski, 1-0 for a 1.50 era.

R. J. Englert leads the Aggies with a .429 with 12 hits in 38 tries including eight of 13 in the
