(Continued from page 1) think we should act on it now." Faculty council member, Associate Liberal Arts Dean Charles McCandless, asked how the BAC planned to go about recruiting, what they planned to do differently than the existing Former Students program which uses some student volunteers, but mostly deans and faculty members, to travel to schools which ask for information.

compliance with the civil rights acts. President Jack K. Williams has made an effort to comply, he said, adding, "I would hate to see us send out an abortive, ineffective effort," which would hinder this.

Two Black Awareness Committee members, Freddy Johnson and William Grays, who participated in a recent recruitment drive which they conducted with their own money told the group about their experiences. They made slides showing the black student at A&M and took university brochures to schools where they graduated. These meetings were informal and scheduled by contacting school authorities.

After the budget request was passed, Vestal urged that the group still try organizing more formally for the project or a lot of potential would "go untapped."

Dacus said he had attended one of the Former Students' Programs and it simply did "not tell how the black student can relate at A&M."

Executive Director of the Association of Former Students Richard (Buck) Weirus later said the association would be glad to work with the black students if the recruitment is planned.

Staff Council Member, Director of Management Services Howard Vestal said that federal inspection teams had been inspecting the campus and were "not particularly pleased" with A&M's

He said that the association has given money to students for travel and lodging who go out to recruit for A&M.

"We use mainly student leaders who we know and know what they're going to say," he said.

'On to Paris' drive started on campus

By GARY AVEN The campus portion of the "On to Paris" fund drive has begun and will continue through Friday, three student chairmen said Monday. Money collected will be used to send four delegates to Paris for one week to present their views on the POW situation.

addressing legislatures and private groups.

The student chairmen of the fund drive are: Dale Foster, junior marketing major representing Alpha Phi Omega; Randy Ross, marketing major and student senator; and Layne Kruse, political science major and student senator.

Maroon and white collection barrels are located at Sbis and Duncan dining halls, Memorial Student Center, University Library and in front of the Sull Ross statue. Donations will also be collected at baseball games, Aggie Muster and Civilian Week activities, they said.

The Bryan-College Station Jaycees, Brazos County A&M Club, Association of Former Students and the student body have jointly committed themselves to raise $5,000 during the "On to Paris" drive, they said. The Student Senate, in coordination with Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, is sponsoring the campus drive, Foster said.

The delegation plans to try to meet with representatives of North Vietnam at the Paris Peace talks. If they have difficulty meeting them, they will try to contact the embassies of other countries, requesting aid in contacting the North Vietnamese. They also plan to request fair and humane treatment of prisoners in accordance with the Geneva Convention, a complete list of those Americans held captive by the North Vietnamese and release of all prisoners of war. The delegation plans to leave the United States on May 17, Foster said.

The Paris delegation is to represent the University and the community. Kent Caperton, president of the Student Senate; Jack Cumpston, president of the Jaycees; Larry Locke, president of the A&M Club; and Connie Eckard, Former Students Director of Publications (representing the Former Students Association) plan to go to Paris.

However, a student cannot let his hair grow as long as he wants. There should be a short hair limit also," Louis Leinweber, student, said.

Rubella and red measles vaccinations must be shown. To complete the entire series of vaccinations, from the beginning, it will take five months.

"I support the present dress code," Bobby Couch, student, said. "I think the gate should be set up by the parents—not the school board," Luann Carter, student, said.

The new high school completion report stated that the high school is 60.5 per cent complete on the average. Classrooms are 64 and 61 per cent complete. The gymnasium and shop buildings are 52 per cent complete. Parking lots are 80 per cent finished.

In other business, the board appointed A. C. Vinzant, Hoy Richards, and Griffin to the budget committee.
