

Architecture scholarships donated by Licht family

Two scholarship programs at A&M's College of Architecture and Environmental Design have been established by the family of the late Arthur W. Licht.

Licht, a sophomore architecture student from El Paso, died Feb. 2, 1970, in an automobile accident. The Arthur W. Licht Scholar Award will provide $1,000 annually to an architecture student for up to four years of undergraduate study at Texas A&M.

Dean E. J. Romieniec said the award will be presented to an entering freshman or a first-year student who intends to major in environmental design.

The scholarship will be supported by income from a $25,000 permanent endowment established by memorial contributions from Licht's family and friends of his estate.

Funds donated in memory of Licht in excess of the $25,000 required by the Scholar Award Fund and surplus income earned by the fund will be used to establish the Arthur W. Licht Memorial Scholarship Fund.

This second endowment will provide at least one additional scholarship annually for undergraduate students in the College of Architecture and Environmental Design.

Recipients of both scholarship awards will be selected by the college's faculty scholarship committee and must demonstrate both high academic qualifications and a genuine need for financial assistance, Romieniec said.

Licht, whose father and grandfather were both architects, was killed when his car hit a bridge and plunged into a deep ditch on State Highway 21 eight miles west of Bryan.

His mother, Mrs. Richard H. Licht and three sisters, Mrs. Barbara Shepherd, Mrs. Judy Sulenberger and Miss Frankie Licht, are parties to the agreement with A&M establishing the memorial scholarship program.

Nixon may advise aid to Lockheed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican legislative leaders said Tuesday President Nixon is expected to recommend shortly that the federal government guarantee $250 million in loans to the financially pressed Lockheed Aircraft Corp. If he does, strong congressional opposition is assured.

Sen. Hugh Scott, the GOP Senate leader from Pennsylvania, and Rep. Leslie Arends of Illinois, the House Republicans' assistant leader, passed this word to newsmen after the weekly intraparty breakfast at the White House.

Arends said there was no opposition to such a guarantee voiced at the Republicans' session. And Scott said the proposal "should pass the Congress and it ought to."

But the Senate majority leader, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., told reporters Tuesday "I'm just against the government bailing out corporations. If private enterprise wants to do the job let them do it."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate House Joint Economic Committee, already has announced he will fight any proposed guarantee.

Lockheed needs additional financing to put into production its TriStar jumbo jet plane. The program was thrown into jeopardy by financial collapse of the British Rolls-Royce Co., builder of the TriStar engines.

Scott said Nixon discussed the Lockheed question in terms of 25,000 jobs threatened if Lockheed goes bankrupt. "The cost of not helping Lockheed would be substantially greater than helping," he said.

Later White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters he thinks a decision on the Lockheed matter will come this week.

Mansfield said he favors creation of a government corporation such as the old Reconstruction Finance Corporation to deal with such situations rather than handling them on a case-by-case basis.

Scott said this approach was discussed but "the feeling I get is that the legislation will be specific," dealing just with Lockheed.

The only possible alternative to federally guaranteed loans from private banks is for the Defense Department to take over the ailing firm and that would be more expensive, Scott said.

Gymnastic team places at meet

The A&M Gymnastics Team finished its competitive season May 1 with several impressive performances at the Gulf A.A.U. Gymnastics Championships held at San Jacinto Junior College in Pasadena.

Freshman Mike Evans won the only first place for the Aggies with an outstanding performance in floor exhibition.

Also competing were the coaches of the men's and women's teams. Men's coach Bob Mitchell won second place in the ring competition. He tied with the gymnastics coach of the University of Texas at Austin.

Women's coach Mickey Stratton, finished third behind Mitchell in the ring competition.

1,731 hopeful of graduation

A record 1,731 students have applied for spring graduation, announced Registrar Robert A. Lacey.

Commencement exercises will be conducted May 7 at Bryan Civic Auditorium for students earning graduate degrees and May 8 at G. Rollie White Coliseum for undergraduates.

Lacey said the number of 1971 graduation candidates represents an increase of 223 over last year, the previous high.

Included in the totals are 1,269 students applying for baccalaureate degrees, 319 for master's and 143 for doctorates.

A 1932 DUSENBERG was one of nearly 100 automobiles dating back more than 50 years that were sold at an auction in Radnor, Pa., May 1. This one is a LeBarron barrelsides phaeton. It was expected to bring the highest price of the cars being offered.

Times Square beat rough on policemen

NEW YORK (AP)—The drunk slashed wildly with a knife at customers in Grant's Bar and Grill on West 42nd Street. A crowd gathered.

Patrolmen James Fehling and Warren "Pat" Miller heard the commotion and pushed inside. They were able to wrest a retractable knife from the struggling man before anyone was injured. Within five minutes, the drunk was in a patrol car headed for the nearby stationhouse.

Fehling, 29, and Miller, 27, were 20 minutes into another midnight to 8 a.m. shift in the Times Square area, their beat for the past three years and their first permanent assignment after attending the city's police academy together.

In those three years, Fehling and Miller—both sons of former policemen—say they have made more than 2,000 arrests. Most have been along 42nd Street between Seventh and Eighth avenues, the block west of the Times Square apex formed by 42nd, Seventh and Broadway.

"This street attracts all the strange people," said Fehling. "You name the situation and we've made an arrest for it."

Once the center of the city's social life with such attractions as the Ziegfield Follies, 42nd Street between Seventh and Eighth avenues is now a flashy sideshow boasting a dozen movie theaters and 10 bookstores with pornography peepshows at the back. An estimated one million persons pass along that block daily.

The crowds drawn to the street create "the most volatile situation going," said Miller, a 6-foot-1-inch 220-pound outgoing Irishman who is the perfect foil to the more conservative Fehling, who towers 6-feet 4-inches and tips the scale at 240 pounds.

Since Jan. 1, nine policemen have been shot by gunmen in the Times Square area.

Neither Fehling nor Miller has been shot, but both have been "stabbed and bitten a couple of times."

The tourists and drunks often don't know enough and are victimized, said the two patrolmen. For instance:

"This soldier, a Midwestern type, got absolutely infuriated and refused to believe me when I told him the girl that picked him up was a female impersonator," Miller said.

"The loiterers at 4 or 5 a.m. the muggers at 4 or 5 a.m. the bars close," Fehling said. "You name the situation and we've made an arrest for it."

Many are youths wearing the fast buck they can steal easily get away with on 42nd Street. "When you ask for an ID, they always find a knife, gun or a lated gun, like a length of pipe," Miller said.

The characters and the anecdotes are all the patrolmen said they take home from the street. "I don't tell my wife too much about the dangerous part," Miller, who has a 4-year-old daughter. "I tell her the things and make her laugh."

Neither Miller's wife, Jean, nor Fehling's wife, Joan, expects the couple's first child. He sees the uniforms that have bloodied "dozens of times."

"They go to the cleaners," said Miller. Both Miller, who lives in Jefferson in Suffolk County, Fehling, of Wantagh, Long Island, "moonlight" as painters and carpenters to supplement their $11,300-a-year salaries.

Fehling has received four exceptional duty citations and Miller has one for meritorious duty. Dan Br two for exceptional police support is many letters of thanks from people they have helped.

Concluded Miller: "I feel a tensing up in my stomach as driving to work. I wonder if it'll be like tonight—what'll be pen. There aren't many people in this world that can feel that kind of excitement for their job."

KAMU-TV presents psychological play

KAMU-TV, Channel 15, will present its second full color production, "A Dream for Dawn," 9 p. m. May 28.

The play was written especially for Channel 15 by Bob Robinson, KAMU-TV feature editor. It is a 90-minute psychological drama about a woman who, as a child, witnessed the brutal murder of her mother by her father.

Robinson, the author of several one-act plays, will play a part in "A Dream for Dawn." Other actors include Jayne Lansford, a veteran of New York stage and television, and Harry Gooding and Gene Sutphen, both well known for their local work.

KAMU-TV will pre-empt "This Week," a half-hour program immediately prior to the broadcast of the play, to provide viewers with an insight into the thoughts and work of the actors and other members of the production. The program will show a television drama in rehearsal and provide interviews with those involved.

The program will be taped in the Channel 15 studios, using a combination of color and black and white facilities. Special television effects will be used in portions of the play to create the illusion needed in several dream sequences.

High school students tour A&M campus

Forty students and four faculty advisors from McLennan County high school toured A&M facilities Tuesday as guests of the Association of Former Students.

Richard (Buck) Weirus, association executive director, handled the orientation program for A&M's Admission Office, which had a full schedule and was unable to direct the program.

Joe Herndon, president of the Waco-McLennan County A&M Club, arranged the trip.

Seniors honored in Science College

Myles A. Yanta of Runge and Carolyn Jane Haley of Helotes have been named the outstanding seniors in A&M's College of Science.

Dean J. M. Prescott presented faculty achievement awards to the two students at special ceremonies Tuesday.

Yanta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Yanta of Route 2, Runge, is a physics major who has maintained a grade point ratio of 3.9262 on a four-point system. He is a lieutenant colonel in Corps of Cadets.

Miss Haley, a chemistry major, has a GPR of 3.78. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. George M. Haley of Route 1, Helotes.

Dean Prescott noted the awards are presented on the basis of academic achievement and participation in extracurricular activities.
