He also has been recognized by the Phi Delta Kappa, a fraternity of distinguished teachers at A&M, as the Outstanding Senior in Agricultural Education for 1970-71.

3 TTI staff men to tour plants

Prof. Bob M. Gallaway, Dr. W. B. Ledbetter, and Dr. Jon Epps, materials researchers of the Texas Transportation Institute, are making a tour of industrial installations in seven major cities, May 16-21, in the interest of research involving utilization of fly ash as aggregate in highway construction. Their research is sponsored by the Industrial Generating Company through the Texas

A&M Research Foundation.

The tour will aid research and confirmation tests involving the four million pounds of fly ash that will be produced daily by the Big Brown Power Plant at Fairfield, Texas, beginning in October.

The research team acknowledges that fly ash produced from burning lignite at the plant would be feasibly acceptable as highway aggregate.
