Symphony here in Rotary Series

The San Antonio Symphony, two top musicals and a Shakespeare comedy by the National Players are lined up for the Rotary Community Series in 1971-72.

The series opens Oct. 13 with the San Antonio Symphony under the baton of Victor Alessandro. With the symphony will be the internationally renowned pianist Ronald Turini.

Straight from Broadway and two Tony Awards Oct. 31 will be "Promises, Promises," Neil Simon's musical hit based on the award winning movie "The Apartment."

"The Taming of the Shrew," the Bard's study in wife training, will be staged Nov. 30 at the Bryan Civic Auditorium, site for all Rotary Series presentations. "Carousel" with John Raitt in the Billy Bigelow role brings "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," "You'll Never Walk Alone," "If I Loved You" and other greats of the immortal Rodgers and Hammerstein musical Mar. 20. Season tickets are now on sale through members of the Rotary Club. In person or mail orders may also be placed at the Student Program Office in the Memorial Student Center.

Apology made to coeds

Editor: Equal time please, editor. In the Wednesday, September 15 issue of The Battalion an article was printed in the "Listen up" column concerning maltreatment of our coeds with a solitary finger pointed at the Corps of Cadets.

We are certain that this generalization was made due to ignorance and lack of judgment and probably as an excuse to condemn those of us in uniform.

We are not prejudiced to the extent that it blinds our senses, so we will dispense with the re-

Nixon pressures for draft bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon put pressure on Congress Thursday to pass military draft legislation, which is scheduled for a Senate vote Friday.

The bill combining a two-year extension of draft authority and a $2.4 billion pay raise for military personnel has been passed by the House but stalled in the Senate. Vietnam war critics and senators opposed to a new draft law say they will fight it.

If Congress fails to continue the draft authority, which expired last June 30, Nixon said the result would make the United States "the second strongest nation in the world with all the implications that has."

Highway to be wet today between College Station and Baton Rouge

Highways will be wet today between College Station and Baton Rouge.

A&M football followers heading for the Louisiana State game can expect daytime rainshowers today and Saturday, the result of a front that is expected to be oriented through Central and North Texas.

A forecast issued by the Meteorology Department weather station at A&M says the front will move further south—a Central Texas-Northern Louisiana line—by Saturday and probably stall.

"It will cause widespread thundershowers Saturday in Southern Louisiana," predicted station meteorologist Jim Lightfoot. "These will continue to about halftime."

At the 7:30 p.m. kickoff of the A&M-LSU game in Tiger Stadium, skies will be cloudy with intermittent light rainshowers, wind out of the south at 10 to 12 mph, temperature 82 and relative humidity 80 per cent, Lightfoot indicated.

Sunday morning return traffic to College Station will find generally favorable driving conditions, he added. Afternoon thundershowers will again develop however, mostly inland and in Bryan and College Station during the afternoon and evening.

mainder of our comments concerning the individual who submitted the poorly researched article.

We agree that the content of his article has been blown out of proportion and that it needs re-evaluation. We find it hard to picture a cadet, "yelling and screaming" at a Maggie for inadvertently walking across Spence Park or even the Memorial Student Center grass. We do try to inform people as to the presence of Spence Park and ask that they join us Aggies in honoring it, just as we honor the grass at the "C" as a memorial.

We hope this letter will serve as an apology to those coeds and civilians who might have been (quoting the other article) "nearly in tears," because a cadet thought he was helping a fellow Ag' learn more about campus memorial traditions.

servicemen, in addition to the increases in the draft bill.

Meanwhile, Army officials reported that less than one fifth of their recent "true volunteers" scored high in intelligence aptitude tests, leading them to doubt that the United States can field a quality all volunteer force.

Army officials said it will take more than pay increase to attract men equipped to handle today's complex military gear. These officials distinguish between "true volunteers" and those who volunteer under the threat of being drafted in order to get a good assignment.
