Senate estimates foreign aid at $60 billion for 6 years

WASHINGTON (AP)—Unable to get the Nixon administration's projections, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee released Tuesday its own figures estimating total U.S. foreign aid over the next six years at more than $60 billion—including $17 billion to South Vietnam.

The staff study was ordered after President Nixon invoked executive privilege in backing the Pentagon's refusal to supply the committee with its five-year military-aid projections.

The committee based its total in projecting the fiscal years 1973-77 on the amount spent in fiscal 1971, the budget request for the current fiscal year—and a 3.5 per cent annual inflation factor.

"It's a right healthy amount," Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., told reporters, adding that the total "may be one reason they have been so reluctant" to give the estimates. He called the committee figures conservative.

Although the committee has yet to receive any material from the administration relating to the House-passed aid bill or aid projections, it began its own deliberations on the measure by agreeing informally to include a provision requiring annual authorization legislation for all State Department operations.

This would give the committee greater control over department activities than at present, when its operational spending must only be approved in the annual money bills that go through the Appropriations Committee.

The committee staff estimated that economic and military aid over the six-year period, including the current year and the projection for the next five years, would be divided about evenly.

For Vietnam, it estimates more than $12.5 billion for military aid and nearly $4.5 billion for economic assistance. The committee said aid would likely continue at the current level since "if the shooting war stops, there is likely to be a corresponding increase on the economic aid side for reconstruction purposes."

Vietnam is by far the largest single aid recipient. Other large beneficiaries of U.S. assistance under the projected programs include Korea, nearly $3.5 billion, and Cambodia, nearly $2.5 billion.

The House has approved a two-year aid authorization bill along existing lines, setting aside the administration's request to revamp the program. The bill totaled approximately $3.4 billion and included provisions cutting off aid to Greece and Pakistan.

Soviet Union, India pool efforts to prevent war

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Alexei N. Kosygin expressed anxiety Tuesday over developments in East Pakistan, and said the Soviet Union and India are "pooling their efforts" to prevent war on the Indian subcontinent.

Kosygin said it was the responsibility of the Pakistani government to devise an "early political settlement in East Pakistan" to lower the level of tension in the region.

Such a settlement, Kosygin told a luncheon for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India would eliminate the threat of further aggravation of Pakistani-Indian relations.

"At this crucial moment," Kosygin added, "we address a call to President Yahya Khan to take the most effective steps for the liquidation of the hotbed of tension that has emerged." Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan is Pakistan's leader.

"The Soviet Union is doing and will do its utmost for the maintenance of peace in that region and for the prevention of armed conflict," Kosygin said.

Then, turning to Mrs. Gandhi he added: "It seems to us that the exchange of opinion which has begun with you on this question, Mrs. Prime Minister, shows that the Soviet Union and India will continue pooling their efforts to attain this aim."

The Soviet premier referred to the Soviet-Indian cooperation and assistance treaty of last Aug. 9 and repeated that the pact was "spearheaded" at no one.

Kosygin's remarks were published by Tass, the official news agency.

They confirmed that what Indian diplomats call "our No. 1 problem" was at the top of an abbreviated agenda when Mrs. Gandhi belatedly began her talks Tuesday morning with the Soviet leadership.

There was no immediate word on whether Mrs. Gandhi had mustered Soviet support for her proposal that Moscow take the lead in the United Nations to urge a political settlement in East Pakistan, allowing for the return of millions of refugees who have flooded into India.

However, Kosygin, in his luncheon speech, indicated the Soviet government was willing to go at least half way by making such an appeal with Mrs. Gandhi at his side.

The diplomatic community in Moscow was abuzz with speculation about the urgent Politburo meeting—held at Vnukovo Airport Monday afternoon—which caused the Russians to cancel the first part of Mrs. Gandhi's schedule.
