

Connally expects economy agencies to ease restrictions

DALLAS (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury John Connally said today he expects the wage-price control agencies will begin to loosen the reins somewhat because the country's economy, he declared, cannot be kept in a permanent freeze.

Connally said he hopes that the pay control board and price commission started "working themselves out of a job from the day they took office."

The secretary, a Democrat, former Texas governor and former secretary of the Navy, again declared that he has no ambition to be president.

Connally told a news conference that the wage-price control agencies will continue to function until the economy is stable. He said he could not predict when that will be.

Connally was in Dallas to address the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

Connally said the government assumed that the production of energy for the nation is a responsibility of the private sector of the economy. He referred to a possible future energy crisis.

The oil and gas industry, he said, plans to gasify naphtha and coal and produce gas from other sources of energy besides importing liquefied gas.

The secretary said the deepening energy situation was inevitable in the United States because some fundamental problems dealing with energy had not been recognized. He did not specify what he meant by "problems."

Questioned about running for president on the Democratic ticket, Connally replied, "I don't even get into this kind of discussion. I have no ambitions, no desires whatsoever. I was quite happy practicing law at Houston, Tex., when I left to become secretary of the treasury. I am happy doing that, and have no ambitions beyond that."

He added, referring to his serving in a Republican Cabinet, "It is not in my mind to switch political parties. I don't even think about it. I don't have time for politics. I have too many problems."

Asked whether he expects to play any part in selecting a new Texas Democratic chairman to succeed Dr. Elmer Baum, who announced his resignation Monday, Connally said, "None."

He said he believes the post will be filled by the state Democratic Executive Committee with advice from Gov. Preston Smith, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

"I'll play no part," Connally said. "I doubt if I'd even be consulted by either the Democrats or the Republicans at this stage."

He told a subcommittee on constitutional rights headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., that

Profit reason for de-emphasis on TV news, journalist says

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former television news executive told a Senate panel Tuesday that the profit motive, not government harassment, has led to de-emphasis of news and documentary programs by the nation's broadcast networks.

Fred Friendly, former president of CBS news, testified it is more profitable to televise an "intellectual ghetto" of nighttime entertainment rather than sometimes controversial documentaries and news specials which sponsors are less willing to support.
