Ags stopped short in second half, 14-

By JOHN CURYLO
Battalion Sports Editor
A number of offensive changes and the same tough defensive play were not enough for an A&M victory, as Steve Judy led the TCU Horned Frogs over the Aggies, 14-3, in a game of contrast-and fourth down plays. The key for the A&M defense was a fourth-and-three situation. David Hoot stopped Bobby Davis in the middle, and the ball went over. The next time the Frogs got the ball, Judy broke Sammy Baugh's career passing record, plays were a 17 yard keeper by Judy, a 12 yard run by Davis, and an 11 yard dash by Steve Patterson. Simmons added the extra point, giving the Frogs all their points within a five-minute span.

In the first half, the Frogs had thwarting the Aggies again. In the second half, A&M had 14 first downs to TCU's three, and led in plays, 48-31. Total yards showed the Aggies' comeback, 180-96.

Hoot had a fine night, making 22 tackles, recovering a fumble, and knocking down a pass. Best was in on 15 tackles. Hoermann 13, and Bill Williams and Steve Luebbehusen 11.

ing halves. Coach Gene Stallings used Joe Mac King at quarterback, Hugh McElroy at tailback, and a new offensive alignment, but some key interceptions and big plays stopped A&M drives in the second half.

King completed five of 19 passes for 77 yards, McElroy rushed 15 times for 69 yards, and Mitch Robertson, playing the second tight end in the new setup, caught two aeriels for 29 yards, but TCU's 14 points in the first half bettered A&M's second half field goal.

Bill Sadler scored twice in the second quarter on runs of six and seven yards, the latter with eight seconds left in the half. Judy set a new career passing mark with seven of eight for 111 yards, in addition to running the Wishbone to near perfection in the first half.

He started it the first possession of the game, moving the Frogs to the Aggie 16, the key being crucial first downs on third but Lee Hitt recovered a fumble on the next play. Pat McDermott followed with a 48 yard field goal attempt that was short.

After an exchange of punts in the second period, TCU moved to within seven yards of a touchdown, but Hoot made the difference once again, recovering a fumble at the six. Robertson chose this occasion to launch a 53 yard punt, putting the Frogs at their own 36.

It took seven plays to score, but a personal foul and pass interference hurt the stingy Aggie defense, and the Frogs led 7-0 with 5:14 left in the half. The touchdown was a six yard run off right tackle by Sadler, with Berl Simmons kicking the extra point.

Following another Robertson punt and a penalty, TCU had the ball at their own 23 with 4:12 left. Four first downs and 11 plays later, Sadler did it again, this time from the seven. Big 317 yards total offense, to the Aggies' 44; TCU led in plays, 52-18, and in first downs, 19-1. Each team had the ball only six times.

The second half was just the opposite, with the Aggies stopping the Frogs the first time they had the ball. King took the cue, moving the team in for a 21 yard field goal by McDermott. A 12 yard pass to Robert Murski and another for 15 to Robertson were the main plays, as A&M moved 39 yards in eight plays before the kick, with 10:05 left in the quarter.

A punt and a penalty set the Aggies up at the 46 of the Frogs. A pass to Homer May moved it to the 20. He fumbled, but McElroy recovered at the 16. Mark Green ran for three, but a pair of incomplete passes preceded a fourth-and-seven play. King was dropped while back to pass,
