Ten stars given for Aggs' defeat of Baylor

By JOHN CURYLO
Battalion Sports Editor

The Texas Aggies came out of their 10-9 win over Baylor with no injuries and 10 different players sporting stars for their performance.

The weekly awards were divided evenly between the offense and the defense for A&M's first conference victory since 1969.

Pat McDermott, whose 53 yard field goal set a new school record, won a star, along with Mark Green, who scored his first varsity touchdown on a three yard run. Doug Neill, the leading rusher in the game, also received a star.

Buster Callaway and Leonard Forey were the other two offensive players to be given recognition this week. Forey is a senior guard, while Callaway, a junior, plays tackle. Coach Gene Stallings said that Callaway blocked extremely well, and that he received a grade of 83% for the game.

Defensively, David Hoot, Grady Hoermann, Mike Lord, Van Odom and Max Bird were cited by the coaches. Hoot made several excellent plays, and Hoermann led all tacklers with 11.

Lord, playing his first game at defensive end, made nine tackles, two of them for losses totalling six yards. Odom and Bird were instrumental in holding Baylor to five yards rushing in the second half. Odom had one tackle for a three yard loss, and Bird made two for 17 yards.

Stallings also mentioned several players who played well or had improved, but did not win stars. Among these were Skip Kuehn and Mike Park, who were filling in for injured offensive linemen, linebacker Steve Luebbehusen, Dennis Carruth, who broke his leg in the spring, and Robert Murski, the split end. Stallings said that Murski blocked well downfield and made an excellent pass reception.

"We came out of the game in excellent condition," Stallings said. "It was a good, tough football game. It's usually the silly little things, like a clip or twisting a knee, not the hard hitting, that cause injuries. As of now, our injury situation is much better."

PLAYING DEFENSIVE END for the first time, Mike Lord (52) hits Baylor's Godfrey White (36) for a loss. Lord's performance Saturday won him one of the ten stars awarded this week. A&M won the Kyle Field contest 10-9, bringing their conference record to 1-2. (Photo by Mike Rice)

Junior quarterback Lex James still is not practicing, having separated a shoulder in the Texas Tech game. Doug Robbins, the victim of a knee injury against TCU, is also out of action.

But on the positive side, Kent Finley, Robert Gerasimowicz and Todd Christopher, all hurt in Ft. Worth last week, are practicing and should play Saturday against Arkansas. Wingback Joey Herr and tailback Cliff Thomas are playing again, having recuperated from injuries against LSU and Nebraska respectively.

In the offensive backfield, Stallings said that he hoped Steve Burks was getting better and that Neill has had a sore leg for several weeks, but has been playing.

Discussing the Baylor game, Stallings emphasized how important the wind and the kicking game were in the decisions and outcome of the Southwest Conference battle.

"Mitch (Robertson) had a hard time punting into the wind," he said. "It's a lot easier to kick with the wind than it is to fight 20 mile an hour gusts. I'm sure the wind affected the extra point they missed too."

Stallings pointed out that the pass blocking was better, adding that quarterback Joe Mac King had a lot of time to throw.

"Joe Mac called most of the game himself," the coach said. "The wind and the Baylor band kept the team from hearing automatics called at the line. It was a case of him being right and everyone else wrong on what looked like broken plays."

Late in the game, A&M punted to the Bears' nine instead of trying to score again. Stallings was asked why the Aggies didn't try a field goal instead.

"I can't think of anything dumber to do than try for a field goal at that time," he said. "I didn't want to give them the chance to return a kickoff with us only four points ahead. If we had missed it, they would have been on the 20 instead of the nine."

Stallings commented that the Aggies have improved offensively, turning the ball over only once this week on an interception. There were no fumbles. He added that the defense hasn't played badly all year.

Arkansas, leading the conference with successive victories over Baylor, TCU and Texas, is the next opponent. Quarterback Joe Ferguson leads the Bears' backs, but the Hogs are not a one-man team.

"They're blessed with good ones at the skill positions," Stallings said. "They are good. Their only weakness is that they don't sprint off the field, they just get after making a touchdown."

"I'd love to throw the ball and run the option," he continued, "but when you can't get it out there, it's difficult to win. We'd all right running right at Baylor."

The win gives the Aggies a 10-9 season record, and the ups and downs of the team baffled the coaches during the five-game losing streak that was snapped Saturday.

"The pendulum seems to be swinging back our way," Stallings said. "But we still have to make good things happen for us."
