

Dowdy was given $25,000, witness testifies in trial

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Nathan H. Cohen testified Wednesday he arranged to give $25,000 to Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., as part of an attempt to stop a Department of Justice investigation. Cohen, the leadoff witness in Dowdy's bribery-conspiracy trial, is the former president of the Monarch Construction Co., a defense home improvement firm from Silver Springs, Md. The disbarred attorney from Virginia Beach, Va., said "there were illegal acts at Monarch," and the money was to gain immunity from government prosecution in exchange for testimony before a House committee. Cohen contended the money, packed into an attache case, was given to Dowdy at the airport in Atlanta, Ga., on Sept. 22, 1965, by Marvin C. Clark, a former sales manager for Monarch. Dowdy, now 59, was at the time a ranking member of the House Committee for the District of Columbia. Cohen said he once visited Dowdy's office to confirm the agreement made by Clark. Cohen admitted from the stand that Monarch had violated various federal laws in financing home improvements and that split financing was his "major fear of prosecution."

At that time, Cohen said, he and Clark developed a "front door-back-door approach." On one hand, they planned to submit documents alleging unfairness in government housing programs toward individual contractors. Then, Cohen was to seek immunity to testify. Cohen said he borrowed $16,000 from his mother and other sums elsewhere to make up the $25,000 which he took home the night of Sept. 21, 1965, and began to write down the serial numbers.

"It seemed like a good idea," he said. "I might later have to prove the money transfer." Cohen said he quit writing down the serial numbers after going through about three-quarters of the bills. The list was introduced into evidence.

East Pakistan independence inevitable, speaker declares

Independence for East Pakistan is inevitable, a leader of the Bangla Desh movement declared Tuesday at A&M. Dr. A. R. Mallick, former president of Chittagong University in Bangla Desh (East Pakistan), said the West Pakistani government willfully violated basic human rights of the Bengalis in East Pakistan for the past 24 years.

The former chairman of the Pakistan Council of University Presidents spoke to 200 persons during a meeting sponsored by Phi Alpha Theta, international history honor society.

Dr. Mallick claimed recent Pakistani history "is a history of great economic and social injustice to the people of East Pakistan."

He said the central government has tried to destroy the rich Bengali culture, including the Bengali language spoken by 56 per cent of the East Pakistani people. "The Bengalis and the West Pakistanis are culturally, ethnically, linguistically and geographically two different peoples," Dr. Mallick said. "They were united together under the umbrella of Pakistan in 1947 in the name of a democratic nation where social and economic justice would prevail."

"But plans to develop the Bengalis continued under the leadership of the West Pakistan civil and military clique," he added.

Dr. Mallick claimed the last victim of mockery was Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, whose party won the December election last year with 98 per cent of the East Pakistani vote.

"The Pakistani Army, instead of the promised transfer of power, cracked down on the unarmed civilians in Dacca on the night of March 25, 1971, with tanks and machine guns," he continued.

"Some 35,000 people were killed in Dacca that night," Dr. Mallick said. He left the country to escape the army rule. He claims army atrocities continue today, with over one million innocent Bengalis killed and 10 million Bengalis have taken refuge in India.

"Independence for Bangla Desh is inevitable," the noted historian said. He appealed to all nations to realize the magnitude of the movement and help achieve its goals.

Nations that do not wish to help, he continued, should at least not assist the military government of West Pakistan in their attempt "to suppress 75 million democracy-loving people of Bangla Desh."

Dr. Mallick illustrated his talk with photographs showing the current problems in East Pakistan.
