

Chilean government to take over food distribution to help overcome shortage

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Salvador Allende announced Wednesday his leftist government is taking over distribution of food in Chile to help overcome a shortage.

Allende told a workers congress that the shortage came about because his policies in his year in the presidency had permitted people to buy more food than they ever had before.

"Before this," he said, "there were many workers whose mouths had never chewed a piece of steak."

"We're going to distribute the foodstuffs," Allende told 8,000 workers at the sixth national Congress of the Communist-controlled Central Workers Confederation.

The president urged the workers and the rest of organized labor to set up organized neighborhood vigilance committees to ferret out hoarders and price gougers.

"Comrades, let's organize supply committees," he said. "These neighborhood committees themselves will have to check on how much merchandise is delivered to such and such butcher shop and such and such a grocery store. They will have to check against any abuse in the distribution of food."

Allende did not go into detail about how his leftist government is to assume control over food distribution.

But various government agencies have been quietly assuming increasing control over various sectors of the distribution system in recent months.

One agency, which used to coordinate meat distribution with Chilean slaughter houses, is now in charge of distributing imported and domestically produced beef to Chilean butcher shops.

Allende acknowledged a food problem which he said was caused by increased buying power among the working class as the result of big pay raises his administration granted earlier this year.

Already this year, the government has had to spend nearly $210 million of its dwindling foreign reserves to purchase imported food to feed Chile's 10 million inhabitants, says agricultural sources.

Partly because of this financial drain on its slim reserves, the government on Monday ordered the suspension of all foreign exchange operations pending an overhaul of Chile's exchange policies.

The new policies have not yet been announced.

The food problem has meant that Chileans can buy beef only on the average of one week a month. When it is available, long lines form outside butcher shops and supermarkets.

The government announced new price increases Tuesday for meat. A kilo — or 2.2 pounds — of filet steak rose from 36 escudos to 55 escudos. The current rate is 28 escudos to the dollar. The average working man earns 1,800 escudos a month.

Other foodstuffs such as sugar, coffee and macaroni have been in short supply.

THE JOY OF ADVENT (the coming of Christ and the period including four Sundays before Christmas) was celebrated by worshiper dancing in the aisles after Holy Communion in the Southern Methodist University chapel Sunday. Miss Kris Pfautsch and SMU Chaplain J. Claude Evans were among the participants. The dancing is part of Chaplain Evans' program to relate religion to today's youth. (AP Wirephoto)

Dec. 31 last day for fees

A&M students who preregistered for the spring semester may pay fees by mail to the Fiscal Department by Dec. 31 or the preregistration is subject to cancellation.

A fee statement was mailed this week to the student at his local mailing address.

Registrar Robert A. Lacey said once fees are paid the student's class schedule and fee receipt will be mailed to his local mailing address.

The student should retain the class schedule as his authority to attend classes, beginning Monday, Jan. 17.

Delayed registration is scheduled Jan. 10-14 and late registration is Jan. 17-21.

A&M club holding seafood banquet

Brazos County A&M Club members planning to attend the Dec. 15 meeting at KC Hall must make reservations by today.

The December meeting will be devoted strictly to fellowship, according to President Larry Locke. A Louisiana seafood meal including shrimp, oysters, hush puppies and trimmings is planned. Members should call 822-0189 for Esta Smith or 823-8061 for Rita Jackson to make reservations.

Locke said the 6:30 p.m. meeting will elect 1972 officers.

Richards will have primary responsibility for student membership and participation in organizational activities.

Oceanography gets $15,800 NSF grant

The A&M Research Foundation has received an additional $15,800 from the National Science Foundation for a project in oceanography, Dean Fred Benson, foundation director, announced.

The funds will support the project entitled "Ephemeral Properties of Interstitial Water from the Ocean Sediment Coring Program."

Dr. B. J. Presley, assistant professor of oceanography, directs the project now supported by a total of $27,500 from the NSF.

Local women win LA Honor Awards

Two local women are among five A&M students designated Distinguished Honor Award recipients from the College of Liberal Arts.

They are Mrs. Aileen A. Wenck, wife of Robert W. Wenck of 204 Walton Drive, College Station, and Mrs. Sharon Gwen Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Bond of 811 E. 29th St., Bryan.

Mrs. Wenck will receive a bachelor's degree in English and Mrs. Brown the bachelor's in sociology. Both graduate Dec. 11.

Also receiving the award are Roger D. Fry of Houston, Turner F. Williamson of Abilene and John E. Green of Ballinger.

Dr. Charles E. McCandless, associate dean, said the award is given in recognition of an outstanding scholarship and leadership record.

27 engineers help evaluate projects

Twenty-seven practicing engineers are each spending one day this week with A&M engineering design graphics students who are presenting solutions to their semester projects.

Dr. James H. Earle, department head, said there are 740 freshmen students involved in the program this semester. He said the primary purpose of the visiting engineer program is to provide experience to the students in team dynamics and introductory systems engineering problems. This is the eleventh semester that this program has been conducted.

Outstanding seniors named in engineering

Mark R. Brown of Cotulla and Richard H. Rau of Arlington have been recognized as A&M's most outstanding engineering seniors.

Brown and Rau were presented Engineering Achievement Awards at a meeting of the College of Engineering faculty.

Plaques citing outstanding achievement were presented by Dr. James L. Rand to the civil and mechanical engineering majors. Brown and Rau were selected by department heads and Engineering Dean Fred J. Benson on the basis of academic standing and extracurricular activities.

TTI director named forum vice president

Hoy A. Richards, head of transport operation research in Texas Transportation Institute has been selected academic vice president of the Transportation Research Forum, a national professional organization in the field.

With chapters in several large cities in the United States and Canada, the forum seeks to involve its membership in research of both domestic and international concern.

As academic vice president,

Forest economist here Tuesday

A U.S. Forest Service economist will make two presentations at A&M Tuesday as part of a visiting lecturer series sponsored by the university's Forest Science Department.

Sam Guttenberg, chief forest economist for the Forest Service's Southern Forest Experiment Station, will discuss "A Southern Industrial Landowner's Response to Change" at 3:30 p.m. in room 106 of the Plant Science Building.

His topic will be "Forest Environmental Concerns: Past, Present and Future" for a 7:30 p.m. presentation in room 112-113 of the Plant Science Building.

Ivey given supply award

Robert W. Ivey Jr. of Dallas was recognized Tuesday at A&M with the Department of the Army's Defense Supply Association Award.

The award, one of 20 given nationally to outstanding Army ROTC cadets in academic programs of interest to the Quartermaster Corps, was presented to Ivey for the U. S. Army Quartermaster Chief Col. John F. Denington, by Col. Thomas R. Parsons, TAMU commandant.
