Rescue ship to be ready for Skylab

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—A rescue ship will be standing by, ready for launch, throughout each of the three long term space flights of the Skylab orbital workshop, the mission commanders said Wednesday.

The mission commanders, astronauts Charles Conrad, Alan Bean and Gerald P. Carr, said the spacecraft for each succeeding mission can be launched within a matter of days if one of the crews becomes stranded in space.

A spare Apollo spacecraft will serve as the rescue vehicle for the final of the three manned Skylab missions.

Skylab is an orbital science workshop which will be visited by three crews of astronauts on three separate missions.

The first mission commanded by Conrad, will last 28 days. The second, commanded by Bean, and the third, by Carr, will last up to 56 days each.

The workshop itself will be launched into earth orbit un-manned on April 30, 1973. Conrad's crew will be launched the following day.

Bean said his space craft would then be prepared for use as a rescue vehicle if needed. After the first mission is over, Bean and his crewmates would be launched and Carr's spacecraft prepared for the possible rescue role.

For Carr's mission, another Apollo spacecraft would be made ready for a possible rescue.

The rescue craft would be launched with only two astronauts aboard, said Bean. It would dock with the Skylab and the three stranded astronauts would transfer into the rescue craft for a return to earth.

"The only reason we would have need of rescue would be if something went wrong with our command module," he said.

If Skylab, a large craft containing scientific instruments and living quarters, fails, the astronauts would immediately board their attached command ship for return to earth, he said.

With Conrad on the first Skylab crew will be Dr. Joseph Kerwin, a medical doctor, and Paul J. Weitz, a pilot astronaut.

The second and third crews will not have medical doctors aboard, but Kerwin said two members of each crew will be trained in first aid, "up to and including a tracheotomy."

Should an illness or occur during the long 56-day missions when no doctor is aboard, said Kerwin, the other two men could carry out instructions from the ground in giving treatment. Doctors in mission will be able to see a view of the patient.

With Bean on the second crew will be Dr. Owen K. Garriott, scientist, and William R. P. a pilot.

Carr's crewmates will be Edward Gibson, a scientist, Jack R. Lousma, a pilot,

Consumer fraud study organized by Rice, UH

HOUSTON (AP)—A statewide effort to use student funds to finance a non-profit organization to study consumer fraud was announced Wednesday by student leaders at Rice University and the University of Houston.

Student leaders said the organization, inspired by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, already is incorporated as a statewide organization and will be similar to research groups in the states of Oregon, Washington, Minnesota and Ohio.

It is called TexPirg, which stands for Texas Public Interest Research Group.

Leighton Read, Rice student body vice president for external affairs, said the first steps toward funding TexPirg are underway at the University of Texas at Austin. He said the funds raised will be used by professionals, probably with student help, who will investigate corruption in government, consumer fraud and environmental protection.

He said the leaders then will be able to relate their research findings to the public with recommendations.

Read said the organizational plan calls for the passing out of petitions at Rice and UH in an effort to get school administrations to approve a $4 tax assessment from each student. He said the money will be used to finance the research done by TexPirg and to pay lawyers, scientists, engineers, architects and others hired by the organization to do particular research.

"This is a Nader-inspired organization but we aren't part of Nader's organization," said Scott Shaffer, UH student organizer for TexPirg.

"We plan to have Nader campus Feb. 9," Shaffer said. "The day after that we will be petitioning."

Powell wins scholarship second time

James C. Powell of Houston senior wood science and technology major at A&M has received the $500 Wood Products Advisory Council Scholarship the second year in a row.

Presentation was by Benjamin L. Barrow of Reilly Tar & Chemical Corporation in Houston, who represented the company. R. R. Rhodes, associate professor in the A&M Forest Science Department, said the award is available only to forestry majors who elect the wood science technology option.

Registration for children's dramatic group will be conducted Saturday

Children's dramatics groups conducted by the A&M Theater Arts Section register Saturday for the spring semester.

The programs include creative dramatics and theater by children, for youngsters ages 6 to 12 and 9 to 12, respectively.

Theater arts and Aggie Players directors C. K. Esten said registration in Building "J" west of the Cyclotron will be from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Mrs. Aileen Wenck said all classes will begin Saturday, Jan. 29, at sites to be announced.

Children's creative dramatics, conducted in 6 to 8 and 9 to 12 age groups, enables youngsters to write and act their own plays. Saturday sessions for the 6 to 8-year-olds will be from 9 to 10 a.m. Nine to 12-year-olds will meet from 10:15 to 11:15 a.m. A $5 fee will accompany registration.

Theater by children classes for 9 to 12-year-olds requires previous participation in creative dramatics or permission of Mrs. Wenck. This group will meet from 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturdays and some Wednesdays, 4 to 5 p.m.

Mrs. Wenck noted attendance at all scheduled meetings of theater by children is required. A schedule will be available at registration. Further information can be obtained from the children's group director at 846-6849.

TWU holding open dance on Saturday

A&M students have been invited to attend an all-campus dance at Texas Women's University Saturday.

"The Night Before" will perform at the event to be held in the ballroom of the Student Union Building at TWU from 8-12 p.m. The Student Union Building is located on Bell Avenue in Denton.

Admission will be one dollar with the presentation of a school or military I.D. Dress will be casual.
