Nuclear meet will be held on research

A&M will host an American Nuclear Society conference on research and training reactor utilization Feb. 22-25.

Dr. John D. Randall, director of TAMU's Nuclear Science Center and general chairman for the conference, said sessions will be devoted to research reactor utilization, income from research reactor operations, non-destructive testing and utilization of training reactors.

The meeting in the university's new Engineering Center is sponsored by the Reactor Operations Division of the North Texas Section of ANS.

Dr. Randall said the conference, expected to attract more than 100 participants from throughout the nation, will conclude with tours of the Manned Spacecraft Center and AstroDome at Houston.

More than 30 technical papers will be presented at the four general sessions.

'Day of Disruption' begins in Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — Bombs and gunfire early Wednesday ushered in a "Day of Disruption" staged by Roman Catholics who want British-ruled Northern Ireland united with the Irish Republic.

An unidentified civilian was killed by gunmen firing from a speeding car in Belfast's Catholic Ardoyne district. He was the 240th person to die since Ulster erupted into violence in mid-1969.

Two other civilians were injured in a midnight bomb blast that smashed windows and flung shrapnel over a wide area of the same district. A garage and a truck were wrecked by two explosions near the border with the Irish Republic, but no casualties were reported.

Police declined comment on speculation that the bombing in one of Belfast's most heavily populated Catholic districts could have been carried out by Protestant hardliners to coincide with the start of D-for-Disruption Day.

A British army spokesman said 550 extra troops were being moved into Londonderry in expectation of trouble during the 24-hour campaign to disrupt civic life with strikes, sit-ins and road-blocks.

Prime Minister Brian Faulkner, in an unyielding address to Parliament Tuesday night, ruled out any idea of Irish unity as a solution to the violence and bloodshed that have stricken the six counties of Protestant-controlled Ulster.

"What we have seen of the Irish Republic, we do not like," he said. "We do not admire the petulant and bellicose utterings of its public figures on the world stage."

The prime minister spoke as Northern Ireland's Protestant majority, anxious to ward off any weakening in the British fight against the illegal Irish Republican Army, prepared to launch an organization to thwart moves toward a united Ireland.

In preparation for the 24 hours of protest meetings, hunger vigils and school boycotts organized by Catholic civil rights groups, Faulkner's government cancelled all police leave.

While rejecting a united Ireland — a solution advanced by many prominent British politicians — Faulkner conceded that the Northern Ireland government must allow more room for responsible Catholic participation in power.

The Protestants were planning to launch an organization called Ulster Vanguard. Its leaders claim the support of about two-thirds of the province's one million Protestants.

The Wednesday meeting will plan the first of a series of weekend rallies intended to demonstrate the strength of Protestant feeling against any compromise with the IRA's fight to end Ireland's 50 years of partition.

The movement reflects a general hardening of Protestant sentiment since the Jan. 30 shootings in Londonderry of 13 Catholic demonstrators.

Chicago 7 file for appeal

CHICAGO (AP) — Attorneys for the Chicago 7 told a federal appeals court Tuesday that five riot convictions stemming from violence at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention should be overturned, arguing that the federal law was unconstitutional and the judge antagonistic.

The lawyers argued that the antiriot section of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, under which the defendants were indicted, violated their clients' First Amendment rights. They also accused U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who presided at the tumultuous four-month trial, of "blatant antagonism" and favoring the prosecution over the defense.

The oral arguments touched only a fraction of the issues raised in the 547-page appeal brief before three judges of the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Five of the seven defendants were convicted of crossing state lines with the intent to incite rioting, but all were acquitted of conspiracy to do so.

The five convicted defendants were David Dellinger, 56; Thomas C. Hayden, 32; Jerry C. Rubin, 32; Rennard C. Davis, 32, and Abbie Hoffman, 33. They were sentenced to five years in prison and fined $5,000 each.

Two other defendants, Lee Weiner and John R. Froines, both 33, were acquitted of all charges in the trial, which ended Feb. 18, 1970.

In addition, all seven defendants plus two defense lawyers were sentenced for contempt by Judge Hoffman at the trial's conclusion.

The lawyers, William Kunstler and Leonard Weinglass, are among those arguing for reversal of the convictions.

Rubin and Davis attended the appeals court session. They were joined by Bobby G. Seale, chairman of the Black Panther party, an original defendant who also was held in contempt by Judge Hoffman after a mistrial was declared in his case.

Martin a witness in Moody action

GALVESTON (AP) — Texas Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin was among four witnesses Tuesday in the attorney general's cross action suit seeking to increase the membership of the Moody Foundation Board.

The hearing will continue Feb. 14.

The suit, seeking to place nine members on the board, was filed in answer to a suit filed by Shearn Moody Jr. against four board members in an effort to prevent them from removing him as a trustee of the foundation, the second largest in Texas.

Martin testified that he would like to see the four defendants in the suit retain their seats on the foundation. The four members are W. L. Moody IV, Paul Haas, J. M. Lykes Jr. and S. Marcus Greer.

State District Court Judge L. D. Godard had previously ruled that only two of the present board members, Mary Moody Northern and Robert L. Moody are serving legally. However, there has been no judgment presented for his signature and until there is the foundation continues under the management of the full seven members of the board.

Martin said he decided to ask for the increase in the size of the foundation board after litigation involving the board began. He said it came to his attention there was friction on the board and believes nine members "can serve a better purpose."

Also Tuesday two persons called as expert witnesses on foundation operations by the four defendants testified the foundation board should have a minimum of 11 members to a maximum of 21.

An expert witness called by Shearn Moody Jr. testified he believes the foundation would be best directed by a board consisting of three members.
