Improvement seen in conference and Aggies

Southwest Conference basketball is on the way up, and the Texas Aggie cagers are moving right along with it.

The varsity, picked to finish last in the league, currently is tied for second. The Fish have established themselves as the best in the conference. Youth, talent, desire and hustle are traits of both squads, and bright things can be seen in the future.

The Aggies have only two seniors, Bobby Threadgill and Rick Duplantis, so the ground work is being done for the cage program at A&M, under the auspices of Shelby Metcalf and Jim Culpepper.

With Cedric Joseph, Mike Floyd, Webb Williams, Dale Donaldson and Jerry Mercer moving up to join this year's starters, Mario Brown, Jeff Overhouse, Brad Pauley and Randy Knowles, the squad will be full of talent and size next season.

So, regardless of how the Aggies finish this time around, it must be remembered that the 1972 version of the team is the framework of the 1973 squad that has to be labeled a top contender.

These thoughts bring to mind the subject of recruiting. This task is doubly trying in basketball, because of the numbers involved.

There are more schools that play the game, fewer coaches to carry the load, more colleges with good programs and a lot of miles to travel in search of talent.

Smaller high schools are more competitive in basketball, so the number of prospects is increased. Also, with only two or three coaches on a university staff, each man has to do half or a third of the job. In football, each mentor has one-tenth the responsibility.

In football, too, smaller colleges and universities are unable to compete in recruiting with the major schools. But in basketball, this is not the case. Schools such as Stephen F. Austin and Southwestern Louisiana are proof of this.

Yet, the miles to travel cause the most problems. The midwest is full of prospects, so several junkies are made each season. Not only is time a factor, but money becomes a difficulty. Basketball budgets do not even come close to matching the dollars spent on football.

Then comes the wooing itself. With well over a hundred schools courting the top recruits, impressions are important. Unlike football, basketball coaches can talk to high schoolers starting in December and have them visit the campus now.

The next home game, Rice, will have several prospects seeing A&M for the first time. With freshmen eligible next season, these young men project a few months ahead and see what is happening now going on then. This includes attendance, manners and support.

A&M's ace in the hole is a fine spirit and the wide variety of academic majors offered students. The chance to play a winning team is incentive high schoolers and junior college players alike.

So, as the 1972 SWC season mains tight and sunset comes on basketball, the most important part of the future—recruiting—now.

AIA weight lifter here next week

Russ Knipp, a champion weight lifter, will put on a demonstration Tuesday, Feb. 22, at A&M.

Affiliated with Athletes in Action, Knipp will perform in room 105 of the Geology Building at 7:30 p.m.

Knipp has held nine world records and 22 national marks. In the Pan American games last fall, he won three gold medals and one silver for a 991-pound performance. He pressed 336 pounds, lifted 281 on the snatch and lifted 374 on the clean and jerk.

Also appearing with Knipp will be Dan Hollis.

Mustang swim team dominates dual tank meet with Aggies, 70-43

Powerful SMU won eight of the 13 events and went on to defeat Texas A&M, 70-43, in a dual swimming meet at P. L. Downs Jr. Natatorium on the A&M campus Wednesday afternoon.

Coach Dennis Fosdick's Aggies pleasantly surprised by winning five of the events against the perennial SWC swim kings.

Steve Prentice, a sophomore from Pasadena, led the A&M surge and had the day's outstanding performance when he won the 200-yard backstroke in 1:59.7, thereby qualifying for the NCAA nationals this year.

Prentice also won the 200-yard individual medley while Dan Meaden, a freshman from Houston Memorial, won two other events, the 200-yard freestyle and the 500-yard freestyle.

The fifth Aggie victory was fashioned by Duncan Cooper, a sophomore from Midland, who won the one-meter diving.

The Aggies will be in action at home at 3 p.m. Saturday when they entertain the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

DRIVING FOR THE BASKET in Tuesday night's 86-85 victory over Arkansas is point man Mario Brown (13). The 6-2 junior college transfer scored 15 points in hitting six of 13 field goals and three of five free throws. The ball-handling play maker was credited with nine assists. Other Aggies in the picture are Brad Pauley (42) and Randy Knowles (32). A&M visits Ft. Worth to play Texas Christian Saturday night. (Photo by Mike Rice)

REV. and MRS. W. H. BRAND Evangelist—Singers—Musicians

MUSIC FESTIVAL AT THE ALL FAITHS CHAPEL ON FEB. 21-22-23-24, 1972

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Brand, nationally known musicians, have recently completed 1,000,000 miles of travel through the United States and Canada making public appearances. Mr. Brand is a talented baritone soloist, having a three-octave range. He has done much work on radio stations and also had his own daily programs in his hometown of Ft. Wayne, Ind. One of the unique phases of his ministry is the ability to quote and use over 5,000 verses of the Bible by memory. He studied voice for opera before his conversion, receiving diplomas from "The European School of Music" and "The Perfect Voice Institute" under Professors D. Baxter and J. Feuchtinger.

Mrs. Brand, who travels with her husband, is an accomplished musician, playing the guitar, organ, guitar, piano, vibraphone, harp, bells, and the accordion. Mrs. Brand spent seven years in the theater previous to her conversion. She not only does solo work on the instruments, but also accompanies Mr. Brand's vocals as well as doing duet numbers with him.

It was by a freak occurrence that we have the chance to hear this team since they are usually booked 8 years in advance.
