A matter of life

by Gordon Richardson

Unlike Paul Gauguin, your average computer is not about to run off to the South Sea Islands to paint likenesses of sun-kissed maidens.

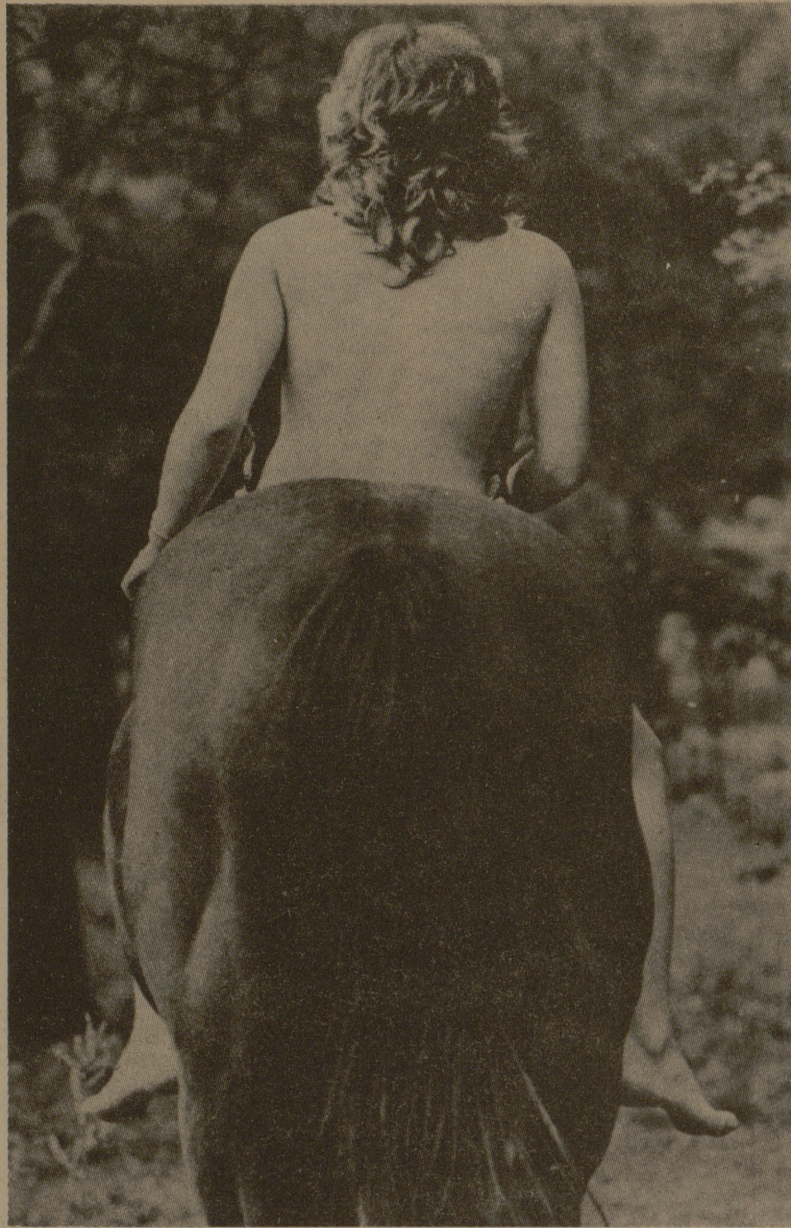

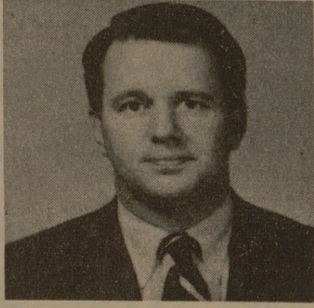

And yet, in a way, portrait-painting is a computer's thing. Financial portraits, that is—a development of significant benefit to the insurance counsellor and his client.

Now, thanks to our talented computers, we can draw financial portraits faster and more precisely than ever before. In outline, it works this way. Client furnishes counsellor with basic financial information. This is fed into the computer which, in turn, relates client's insurance to his entire financial situation.

The effect of this is to give you a full scale canvas of how well your Social Security, your company benefits, and your other assets would serve in the event of retirement. Or, how they wouldn't serve and what might you do to protect yourself.

At Provident Mutual Life, we call this Electronic Personal Planning, and, at your convenience, I'll be happy to arrange a portrait sitting for you. If nothing more, it'll be an interesting experience. No obligation whatsoever. Just contact me at 707 University Drive. Or call 846-7027.

IT'S BAREBACKED RIDING all right, but not in the Lady Godiva tradition for this Columbia, S. C., rider. Actually, the girl is wearing a halter blouse and is riding a horse without a saddle. That is being barebacked, but it's not so interesting as it might appear. (AP Wirephoto)

Jewish group attacks Archie Bunker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Already cuffed by the Teamsters Union, television's Archie Bunker has collected some new lumps from the American Jewish Congress.

The CBS television series "All in the Family," in which Archie Bunker is blue-collar worker who makes racial and ethnic slurs, is "creating a new freedom to be offensive," says Rabbi J. Lelyveld, president of AJC.

The rabbi said a major sin of the television show is that "it is teaching our children disrespect." He said his own children have come home from junior high school "with Polack jokes that have been told to them by their teachers."

"There is no such thing as a harmless bigot any more than there is such a thing as a friendly cancer or a benign drug pusher or a lovable murderer or rapist," Rabbi Lelyveld said Monday in the organization's official publication "Congress bi-Weekly."

"When policemen are 'pigs' they are fair game for the slaughter," Rabbi Lelyveld said. "When Polacks are stupid, subhuman beings, when kikes are shrewd and dagos or wops are sly and mur-

North Vietnamese forces launch 4-pronged attack

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces using Soviet-built tanks and heavy weapons Thursday launched major attacks against South Vietnamese defenders on four sides of Quang Tri City in renewed assaults below the demilitarized zone.

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, commander of the South Vietnamese 3rd Infantry Division defending Quang Tri province, termed the situation "extremely critical." Senior U.S. advisers from Da Nang rushed to the battle area in helicopters.

South Vietnamese casualties were said to range from light to moderate.

Attacks also were launched on other fronts, including the district towns of Bong Son on South Vietnam's central coast and Dau Tieng, north of Saigon. At the provincial capital of An Loc, also north of Saigon, 10 South Vietnamese were reported killed and 65 wounded in a 1,500 round artillery barrage.

Quang Tri city, South Vietnam's northernmost provincial capital, is 19 miles below the demilitarized zone, and was among the earliest targets of the 29-day-old enemy offensive.

U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers were called in to aid the South Vietnamese from offshore.

Enemy forces were reported as close as three miles southwest of the city, where the South Vietnamese 2nd Infantry Regiment was locked in heavy battle with strong enemy forces. South Vietnamese marines were fighting North Vietnamese troops less than five miles southeast of the city. Other attacks were under way six miles north and west of the city.

At least one enemy tank was reported destroyed.

The Quang Tri combat base, 2½ miles northwest of the city, was under heavy shelling attack, but only one round hit the city itself.

Other bases farther from Quang Tri City were hit with heavy barrages of more than 600 rounds of 130 mm artillery, which has a range of 17 miles.

In the central highlands, South Korean troops cleared the enemy from a vital pass, opening a possible convoy route to the imperiled highland cities.

But behind the Koreans, North Vietnamese swarmed out of the hills into coastal Binh Dinh Province. They seized a base, pushed into three populous districts and opened up with rocket and mortar fire on Bong Son, a district headquarters where an attack has long been expected.

At the Pentagon in Washington:

—Sources said the United States is preparing to send 36 more F4 fighter-bombers to Southeast Asia to strengthen the already heavy U.S. air power massed against the North Vietnamese offensive.

—Spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said South Vietnamese forces have "acquitted themselves very well" so far in the campaign.

The attacks on Quang Tri were described as being in an arc against South Vietnamese defenses a half-mile to a mile from the city.

Field reports said tanks were observed and at least one been destroyed.

Heavy attacks by long-range 130mm artillery, 122mm mortars and mortars also were reported. The 130 mm guns have a 17-mile range.

North Vietnamese assaults were reported under way in the corridor north of Saigon. The district town of Dau Tieng, 40 miles northwest of the capital, and South Vietnamese infantry movement just to the south of Tieng were reported under attack.

At An Loc, the besieged provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon, North Vietnamese launched a ground attack against South Vietnamese paratroopers south of the city shortly after midnight. Fighting was reported still going on at dawn and city was being shelled.

In the central highlands, North Vietnamese were north of Highway 19, where the Koreans are operating at least

Geologists receive grant

Two A&M geology researchers have received a $25,000 contract from the Department of Defense's Advanced Project Agency for rock studies.

Dr. Melvin Friedman, geology professor, and Dr. G. H. Alani, research associate at the Center for Tectonophysics, are principal investigators for the project entitled "Investigation of the Relations Between Residual Strains, Fabric and Ultrasonic Attenuation and Velocity in Rocks."

The contract is administered through the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

"Results of the research will be of interest to engineers, geologists and geophysicists dealing with mining, tunneling, rapid excavation and the detection of intrinsic factors that control rock fracture," Dr. Friedman said.
