

Amateur radio operators hold emergency practice

Amateur radio operators at A&M will gather together this weekend to conduct simulated emergency communications in conjunction with the American Radio Relay League, amateur radio's own society in the U. S. and Canada.

The A&M club, station W5AC, as it has in past years, will pack up its radio equipment and move to a field location operating only with emergency power.

Amateur radio clubs across the U. S. and Canada will set up their equipment and operate in an effort to contact as many other amateur stations as possible.

The weekend event this year will involve an estimated 12,000 hams, as they are called, along with their radio gear, antennas, motor-driven generators and miscellaneous camping gear. Known as Field Day, the closing exercise of Amateur Week, it combines fun of a campout and the excitement of a contest, not to mention serious preparation for emergencies.

During the 27-hour period beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday and running until 4 p.m. Sunday, hams around the country will set up and operate their equipment from parks, beaches and other exotic locations without the benefit of commercial power — just as they would when a natural disaster cuts the lines.

Amateur radio clubs such as A&M's W5AC, and ad hoc groups of hams will operate as many as 18 different stations in order to contact as many other stations as possible using all available radio bands.

Run as a test and contest combined, amateurs since 1933, except during World War II, have been competing for the largest number of stations contacted during the Field Day period.

Although it is run as a contest, the real payoff for Field Day will come in the radio amateur's response to human needs, during hurricane or tornado season or when other disasters strike, breaking normal means of communication into and out of the area.

TUNING UP FOR SUNDAY'S Lone Star 500 at the Texas World Speedway are two racing enthusiasts. The race, marking the halfway point of the 1972 Winston Cup Grand National schedule, begins at 1:30 p. m. Qualifying starts Thursday, with a special consolation race for non-qualifying cars set for Saturday. (Photo by Kenneth Stroebel)

SPACESHIPS AND SANDWICHES

"Okay, we've landed, now let's get out and look at this old moon!"
My two small boys are at it again. Today, the old gray stump is a spaceship. Tomorrow it may be a fort or a castle. More practically, at lunchtime it's a picnic table.

Right now the side yard is my sons' world. Behind a picket fence, they roam the seas and sky in imagination, the sound of their voices reassuring me of their safety.

It won't always be this way. Someday, they'll leave the back yard forever, swashbuckling through a world of schools and camps, friends and parties.

How strange it will be—not to guide their every footstep. Where am I to get the courage? Fortunately, I can answer my own question. I have my church, and so do my boys. As a source of great goodness, it will guide them all their days.
