

A&M rodeo team to compete at national finals June 20-24

A&M's Southern Region championship rodeo team will compete at the national finals June 20-24 at Bozeman, Mont.

The six-man team headed by region all-around individual champion Don Graham of Troup will leave Friday and return June 27. Accompanying the team will be Dave Golden of the Animal Science Department.

Graham won the Southern Region all-around championship by taking first in bull riding and second in bareback bronc riding. He also will participate in saddle bronc and calf and ribbon roping events at the national finals.

Don Gamblin of Tivoli, Nick Burnham of Lorenzo, Keith Chapman of Haskell, Lew Rust of Del Rio, and John Welch of Midland, will round out the Aggie rodeo team at Bozeman. David Hammit, region saddle bronc champ of Rotan, will be unable to make the trip.

Golden said Gamblin and Rust will compete in both roping events and steer dogging; Burnham, bareback ride and ribbon roping; Chapman, bull and saddle bronc riding, and Welch, saddle bronc.

NEW, IMPROVED MUD IS WHITER AND BRIGHTER—at least in some places. Construction on the mall in front of the Academic Building led to the pouring of lime for the concrete and a new variation on an old, familiar theme. The white stuff covered the ground and floated through the air quite a bit during the Friday session. (Photo by Sue Davis)

Chess tourney to be held Friday

A&M's first summer session chess champion will be decided in the June 23-24 tournament at the Memorial Student Center.

The MSC Recreation Committee, chaired by James Goode of Fairmar, will conduct the four-round Swiss style tourney. First-round play will begin after 7:30 a.m. registration Friday, June 23, on the third floor of the MSC.

Saturday rounds will begin at 9:30 a.m., 2 and 7:30 p.m. The tourney, directed by Carl Childress, will be open to any interested participant, student, faculty-staff member or local resident. No entry fee will be charged. A time limit of 45 moves per two hours will be observed.

Floral Test Garden in bloom

A brilliant display of colors at A&M's Floral Test Garden should be of interest to flower lovers during the next few weeks.

William L. Vitopil, TAMU grounds superintendent, said the spring and summer seasonal flowers should last another two or three weeks before the summer heat takes its toll.

Of particular interest to area gardeners is the All-America test section on the half acre Z-shaped garden east of Kyle Field.

Vitopil reported the test section has a number of new plants not on the market being tested for commercial firms. New varieties are planted next to older varieties for comparison, he said, with about 60 different flowers being tested.

All plants in the garden are labeled, Vitopil pointed out.

The University has almost 300 varieties in the remainder of the garden. Included are 80 varieties of petunia, 30 of amaranthus, 20 of geranium, 35 marigold, 20 zinnia, 10 ageratum, 12 collections of lantana, 20 different snapdragons and some dianthus.

In addition, there are 65 varieties of chrysanthemums planted for fall bloom.

Vitopil said most of the campus flower gardens also are in full flower.

Zinnia and marigold plants are in the garden in front of the System Administration Building, and two beds of impatiens are between the Cushing Library and Academic Building.

South of the Library are alternanthera and copper plant, with the same plants at the West Gate Memorial.

Chrysanthemums have been planted around Kyle Field and G. Rollie White Coliseum for fall, and at the east entrance to the campus.

Begonias have been planted at the All Faiths Chapel.

A variety of petunia, Dusty Miller, dianthus and statice are at the College of Veterinary Medicine plots.

Vitopil noted the purpose of the gardens is both aesthetic and practical. It exposes the flowers to field conditions and gives an insight into what plants will produce best in this area, he said.

Sporleder paper to be presented

Dr. Thomas L. Sporleder, assistant professor of agricultural economics with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at A&M, has had a paper accepted for presentation at the American Agricultural Economics Association Meetings in Gainesville, Fla., Aug. 20-23.

The paper is titled "A Classificatory Scheme for Market Development."

Faculty representatives elected to A&M committee

A&M faculty members have elected five representatives to the Committee on Academic Freedom, Responsibility and Tenure and an at-large member of the Faculty Development Leave Program Committee for the 1972-73 academic year.

Named to the panel which hears appeals on proposed dismissals of tenured faculty members were A. M. Sorensen Jr., professor of animal science; Manuel M. Davenport, head of the Philosophy Department; Auston Kerley, associate professor of educational psychology; Donald Barker, professor of educational psychology, and Robert O. Reid, professor of oceanography.

The five were elected from a list of 20 faculty members which included two nominees from each of the university's ten colleges.

Charles E. Gates, professor of statistics; John P. German, professor of electrical engineering, and Robert M. Holcomb, professor of civil engineering, were selected as alternates.

T. J. Kozik, professor of mechanical engineering, was elected to the Faculty Development Leave Program Committee. John K. Riggs, professor of animal science, will serve as alternate.

No lecture. No preaching. No, none of that.

Here are facts about drug laws & the system of justice overseas.

If you're traveling to Europe, the Middle East or south of our own border, here are some facts. Because a lot of people have funny ideas about foreign drug laws and justice.

Maybe you've heard possession is okay in some countries. That's wrong. Or maybe you've heard the laws aren't enforced like they are here. That's wrong, too. Really wrong.

The truth is their drug laws are tough. And they enforce them. To the letter. Mexico, for example, demands a two to nine year sentence for possession of anything. Carrying stuff in or out of the country will put you in jail for six to fifteen years. There's a 24 year old girl from the United States sitting in a jail outside of Rome right now. She'll be there for six to ten months waiting for a trial. And after that she can get up to eight years. Check the countries you'll be visiting. One fact will come through. Loud and clear. When you're busted for drugs overseas, you're in for the hassle of your life.

Mexico. Possession, 2 to 9 years plus fine. Trafficking, 5 to 10 years plus fine. Illegal import or export of drugs, 6 to 15 years plus fine. Persons arrested on drug charges can expect a minimum of 6 to 12 months pre-trial confinement. U. S. Embassy: Cor.
