Applications Being Taken For Exchange Store Funds

By VICKI ASHWILL
Staff Writer

Organizations officially recognized by the Student Finance Department may now apply for Club Aid Funds from Exchange Store allocations in the Student Finance Center of the Memorial Student Center, said Sanders Letbetter, club aid advisor.

A meeting of representatives from the clubs applying for aid is scheduled for 5:15 p.m., Sept. 25, in Rooms 2A and 2B of the MSC for departmental and professional clubs and in Rooms 2C and 2D for non-departmental and non-professional clubs.

Club representatives, preferably the treasurer and/or advisor, should come to the Student Finance Center before Monday between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. to pick up an application for funds from Club Aid, a financial statement and budget for club funds and an itemized request sheet.

These information sheets must be turned in to the Student Finance Center by Oct. 6, 4 p.m. for departmental and professional clubs and by Oct. 12, 4 p.m., for non-departmental and non-professional clubs.

According to a general information sheet, "funds for Club Aid are made available from Exchange Store profits by the Exchange Store Advisory Committee each year after the close of the fiscal year. Except under unusual circumstances, only one club from each department will be considered for support."

Departmental clubs may only receive support for three purposes: travel expenses of delegates, expenses of speakers brought to the campus and expense of films brought to the campus. Non-departmental clubs may also use the money for various other expenses such as the purchase of equipment.

Clubs must pay at least one half of the total guest speaker, film and travel expenses. In addition, clubs must collect a minimum of one dollar as dues from each of their members and deposit the amount at the Student Finance Center.

Condensed club requests will be sent to the Exchange Store Advisory Committee, which is composed of students and staff members, which will meet in late October or early November. At this time, organizations having applied for sharing of Exchange Store profits and wishing to emphasize their cases may make a five minute presentation to the committee.

The 11-member Advisory Committee is composed of Dean James P. Hannigan, chairman, Dean of Men C. W. Powell, Kent Caperton, R. C. Diebel, C. A. Phillips and B. F. Watson. Student members are Civilian Student Council President Mark Blakemore, Corps Commander Ron Kranavek, Student Government President Layne Kruse, MSC Council President Sam Walser and the Graduate Student Council President R. A. Zepeda.

This committee will make recommendations to the Board of Directors who will allocate funds late in November.

Fiesta Planned

The League of United Latin-American Citizens, the Mexican-American Students Committee, and the Pan-American Clubs of Bryan-College Station have invited A&M students to a Fiesta this week-end commemorating Mexico's independence from Spain.

The festivities will get underway at 6:00 p.m. on Friday and Saturday at the L.U.L.A.C. Hall and grounds on Sandy Point Road.

Bike Registration Will Begin Monday

Bicycle registration for all cyclists using the two-wheeled vehicles for travel on the A&M campus will begin Monday morning, announced University Police Chief O. L. Luther Tuesday afternoon.

"We don't know how fast the procedure will go," said Luther, "but we hope to have the entire process finished in about a week, and at the outside, two weeks."

Luther said registration will be held for only Walton and Schumacher Hall residents in their lounge on Monday. The registration desk will move from lounge to lounge until all campus residents have registered their bikes.

Registration for off-campus residents will immediately follow the process for A&M dorm residents and will include residents of all apartments around the campus. A&M faculty will also be required to register vehicles, but Luther doesn't know exactly when this will take place.

Luther said a registration desk may be provided in the academic area if it becomes necessary.

Registration forms must be filled out at the provided table and the cost for registration will be three dollars per bike. The permit issued will be a metal plate with the cyclist's registration number engraved on it. The plate must be firmly attached underneath the bicycle seat.

"We will allow a temporary grace period for the enforcement of rules," said Luther. "Approximately two weeks after the end of registration, bicycle rules will become strictly enforced."

Luther noted that after the period, all bicycles parked or operated on the campus at any time by students, faculty, or staff, must be registered at the University Police Office within 48 hours after arrival on campus.

Registration plates will not be transferable and must be removed when ownership of a bike changes or at the time of expiration.

In addition, a bicycle registration card will be issued to registrants and must be carried at all times by the owner. All permits will expire at the end of the second summer term.

Luther said a complete list of all bicycle registration and operation rules would be issued at the time bikes are registered.

As far as operation of bicycles is concerned, Luther said each person riding a bike on streets shall be subject to the rights and responsibilities applicable to a driver of a motor vehicle. This includes stopping at all 'Stop' signs.

Luther also said bikes must keep to the right side of roadways, traveling with traffic. The same must be done on sidewalks with pedestrians having the right of way.

Luedecke Analyzing Plan

Bike Routes Being Studied

With bicycle registration about to go into effect and along with it, bicycle operation rules for on-campus riding, the proposed bicycle path system for A&M will quickly become one of the more pressing issues to be resolved.

The proposed plan passed from the hands of University Landscape Architect Robert H. Rucker recently to those of Gen. A. R. Luedecke, executive vice-president of the university.

The plan consists of several phases, each more intricate than the previous one. Each will provide bicycle lanes in existing parking spaces and around the mall area. This will leave the sidewalks for pedestrians and other sections of roadways for automobile traffic.

"The first phase would deal mainly with getting bike traffic from the three living areas to the campus mall," said Luedecke. "These three areas are the corps area, the civilian area and the married student apartments at Hensel and College View."

Luedecke said bike racks currently being put up are being done so with the proposed plan in mind, but many bike racks tentatively planned must wait for approval of the path plan.

In the first phase lanes would have to be designated and marked specifically for bicycles. Some of these lanes would have to be hard covered.

A bike route from the married student housing area would come along Parking Lot 50 under the proposed system. Part of the path is still dirt.

Initially, lanes would be five to eight feet wide and would contain bike traffic going both directions. Auto traffic would still have two lanes, thus creating four lanes of traffic of some sort.

"The major problem with all this," said Luedecke, "is what will we do with the approximately 135

Also among the rules passed by the Academic Council and Executive Committee is the requirement that cyclists ride single file in streets and sidewalks; pedestrians have full right-of-way privileges at entrances and parking lots; a bike must be used to carry only the number of persons it was built for; and no races will be allowed without approval from the dean of students.

No person operating a bicycle shall carry any package which would keep him from having at least one hand on the handlebars. Each bike must be parked in a bike rack nearest the building being visited or occupied, if space is available.

cars moved from street parking? In the overall system, if established, 500 cars would be displaced. This really creates parking lot problems until we can start building near the railroad tracks."

Luedecke noted that input for the plan came from the A&M Wheelmen organization, the Texas Transportation Institute and the University Landscape Architect's Office.

"The first thing to be done will be to decide if the project is workable," he said. "If it is, it will be done in pieces to avoid much confusion."

Luedecke said he is presently considering the project plans and hopes to present his recommendations and the proposal to President Jack K. Williams within two weeks.

Rules And Regulations Committee Organizes, Sets Projects For Year

By LYNN EDWARDS

A&M's newly formed University Rules and Regulations Committee held its organizational meeting Tuesday night to determine projects for the coming year.

Committee Chairman Fred Campbell said the nine-member group will attempt to find a way for students to have the right to organize political groups on campus and invite political speakers to A&M.

Allowing students of legal age to consume alcoholic beverages in their dorm rooms is another subject the group will work on. Day student permits, deposit fees, and refunds will also be examined.

Investigation into the University Honor Code will be done to determine whether or not it is obsolete, said Campbell. A study of parking problems of married students living in university-owned apartments is planned. He added that regulations concerning bicycle parking and traffic will be considered.

"We are trying to work closely with the university regulations and study student concerns," said Campbell. "Student interest is a major factor in our project."

Created last year by the revised Student Government Constitution, the committee functions for the possible revision of regulations in the University Regulations Handbook or "Blue Book." Another responsibility of the group is to review appointments within the student government if the necessity arises.

Senators presently on the committee are John Nash, Gary Drake, Curt Marsh, Rod Brand, Mark Kidd, William Wade, and Paul Turner. Non-senator Terry Brown is working with the committee. Others are needed for the committee.

Campbell said anyone with suggestions for revision of University rules and regulations contact him at 845-4662 or call the Student Senate office at 845-3051.

Paintings On Exhibit

Kinetic paintings by Frank J. Malina which incorporate depth and movement are on exhibit in the Memorial Student Center.

The 22 works by Malina, recently honored as a TAMU Distinguished Alumni, will be on display through September, announced MSC Host and Fashion Committee chairman Bill Fore.

Mixer Slated In Grove Friday

The Student 'Y' Association, Corps of Cadets and the Civilian Student Council will sponsor a mixer in the Grove this Friday as a result of last week's successful dance.

Although the band has not been decided upon yet, CSC President Mark Blakemore said the dance is definitely slated to run from 8 p.m. to midnight with a live band.

Blakemore added that there will be a 25 cent charge for the dance this week to cover the cost of the band.

Student 'Y' Association President Corky Houchard estimated last week's crowd at 600 people and a good band can be gotten if admission is charged. He added that no profit will be made on the dance.

Saturday afternoon, the A&M-Nebraska game will be piped over loudspeakers to the Main Drill Field beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Blakemore said free watermelon and cokes will be available for those who come to this event, before the game starts.

Corps Commander Ron Kravek said he anticipates more people to stay or come for both the mixer and game this week.

"I thought last week's worked out real well," he said. "It showed we can shake the image of being a suitcase college. Response has been real good and everyone seemed to enjoy listening to the game together."

Blakemore said he was pleased with the turnout both nights and was glad to see the three organizations working together."

New Pool, Park Being Built For Area Residents

College Station residents will no longer need to use A&M's Wofford Cain Olympic Pool when their own $265,000 50-meter swimming pool, wading pool, and club house are completed, according to Ran Boswell, City Manager.

Boswell said the park will be located south of Southwest Parkway near Madison Ave.

After swimming facilities are finished, other recreational equipment will be added to complete the park, he said.

The city has already allowed $132,500 in the 1972-73 budget to be used to pay for half the recreational facilities. The city applied for a grant May 22 at the Parks and Wildlife Dept. in Austin to receive state and federal aid on remaining building costs.

"From the Parks and Wildlife Dept., Boswell said, the application will be sent to the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation where it will no doubt be accepted. We should know the results very soon."

As soon as the grant application is accepted, city officials will take bids on the construction of the pool and designing will get under way.

"I certainly hope the pool will be open for swimming by next summer," said Boswell.
