TAMU Fencing Club Gains Valuable Member

By LYNN EDWARDS
Sandy McKenzie, spring transfer student from the University of Miami, comes to the A&M fencing club as its most experienced member.
The junior zoology major started her training ten years age in Wittlich, Germany, under the masters. After a year and a half, Sandy's family moved to Michigan, where she worked with Michigan State University coach for a year. While living in Washington, D.C., Sandy studied at the YMCA under American instructors for four years. In Dayton, Ohio, she worked out with the Wright-Patterson air force base club before going to Miami.

women's sport, and saber fencing is dangerous and aggressive. Foil is considered more artistic. Being left-handed, Sandy has a natural advantage over any right-handed fencer of comparable skill. "The right arm is a natural defence, and the opponent is confused because my moves are backwards to him," Sandy said.

"It's like playing chess while running." Though she has not competed in any officially sanctioned meets, Sandy has experience in dual competition. "At the YMCA in Washington, we had round robins and interclub meets," Sandy said.

The club meets 7-9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday in room 256 of G. R. Field House. So watch Aggies may be seen across the campus thrusting epee or 'en garde!' as fencing on Aggieland.
