> Jones (205) and Lyons (186) share the quarterbacking duties, with Jones's 185 yards total offense just two yards short of Pacific's total offense. Jones also threw two touchdown passes while running his string to seven games without an interception.

LSU runs a multiple of offensive sets with the Aggies most likely to see an "I" formation similar to the one Nebraska ran last week. The Tigers threw 27 times in 75 plays against Pacific, completing 14 for 217 yards. Jones and Lyons shuttle at favorite over the Texas Aggies Paul Lyons, the 9th ranked Tigers experienced line. Logan Killen (205) is the Tiger center with Tyler Lafauci (137) and Lloyd Daniel (219) the guards. The tackles are Jimmy Elkins (231) and Steve Streete (220). There are no freshmen or sophomores in the interior line and all starters are returning lettermen from last year's Sun Bowl victor squad. The offensive backfield is all seniors with the addition of fullback Jim Benglis (203) and Tailback Chris Dantin (188) to go with Jones and Lyons. The LSU receiving corps will be a big threat to the Aggies. A&M must stop the "bomb" if they are to be successful Saturquarterback and work behind an day night.

Gerald Keigley (212) lines up in the slot and is replaced by Ben Jones (170), younger brother of the Tiger quarterback. LSU's big play threat is split end Jimmy LeDoux (5-11, 171) whose speed will test the fastly improving A&M secondary.

The LSU defense will test the A&M Wishbone with a seven man front, with four deep backs.

Ron Daily (224) and Binks Miciotto (198) are the defensive ends. Daily is one of two sophomores in the LSU starting lineup.

"This stadium is one of the nicest I've ever seen," Smith said. "It is built indoors and has a Tartan floor which is very conducive to good tennis playing."

The first scheduled meet is set for Feb. 9, 10, 11, when the Aggies participate in the Pan American Intercollegiate Tournament.

This year's conference race is again scheduled to be as tight as was last year's.

"For this time of year they look real sharp and ready to go." This will be the third meeting between the two schools with the Aggies holding a 2-1 edge by win-
