By determining the targets of alcohol, chances improve to cure the disease with specific treatment of the primary centers of attack, in the brain, Dr. Klemm believes.

Photo Exhibits Feature Former Student, Profs Photographic exhibits featuring the work of two A&M professors and a former student are on display at the College of Architecture and Environmental Design. An exhibit entitled "Two German Settlements of Texas" was a summer project conducted by Melvin M. Rotsch, professor of architecture, for the Historic American Buildings Survey of the National Park Service. Photographs for the exhibit were taken by Roy C. Pledger, associate professor of environmental design.

The second exhibit, "Ghost Towns of Montana," includes 20 photographs taken by John De-Haas, 1948 TAMU graduate who is history at Montana State University.

Both exhibits will remain on display through Oct. 12, noted Assoc. Prof. Larry L. Priesmeyer, chairman of the college's Architectural Exhibit Committee.

A&M Engineers Help Cure Laredo's Smog

Research engineers at A&M will report to approximately 40 government agency officials next week on how to alleviate the serious air pollution problem at the Laredo U.S. Customs Station.

The Sept. 28-29 program includes showing video tapes of various proposed ventilation systems tested at TAMU's environmental wind tunnels, noted Dr. M. P. Boyce of the Mechanical Engineering Department. Also, recommendations will be made for Laredo station modifications.

contract with the Texas Engineering Experiment Station here calls for an evaluation of the air pollution caused by traffic exhaust.

Faculty and students are invited to the symposium, scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Thursday in Zachry Engineering Center Room 103. Others interested in attending must be invited by GSA, Dr. Boyce pointed out. Among federal officials expected to come are representatives of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Immigration Service, U.S. Customs Service and GSA.

McGovern-Shriver Campaign Starts Here

George McGovern's Brazos County Coordinator Steve Dunkelberg is holding an organizational meeting for anyone interested in working on the McGovern-Shriver ticket Tuesday at 8 p.m. at apartment 184, 1619 Puryear.

"I'm trying to get the McGov ern-Shriver campaign off the ground in Brazos County," said Dunkelberg. "I'm very optimistic and I think that we are going to have the same dedication in Brazos County that took McGovern from the bottom of the polls to the top."

Dunkelberg is trying to get McGovern and Shriver to appear in College Station before the election in November.

"We've got to convince the people that McGovern and the democratic party has some sound policies," said Dunkelberg.

The campaign will also empha size voter registration.

Cadet Court Provides Corps With Exact Judicial Leadership court members were high ranking

By BRIAN POLK

All American military systems contain provisions and personnel that cope with legal problems or questions, and the Corps of Cadets is no exception.

The Cadet Court, not new to the Corps, has been somewhat neglected or overlooked in the past, but both cadets and military officer advisers want to utilize it this year.

Corps related matters are the only cases brought before the court and then only by recommendation of the Corps commandant. However, questions concerning University Blue Book Policies are also heard by the court. Rules set down in "The Standard," the Corps rules and regulations book, are the basis for court decisions. Cases brought to the court are tried in the fashion of military courts with prosecutors and defense attorneys who are cadets involved in the case or are cadets appointed by the court's legal adviser to prosecute or defend. Court decisions of guilt or innocence are forwarded to the Commandant's office for recommendations of actions. The commandant may suggest specific penalties for guilty cadets but may leave that decision to the Corps Commander. Penalties are in the form of demerits, weekend restrictions and verbal or written reprimands. The court is divided into two groups, A and B. Both perform equal tasks. In the past most
