King Football's Court Keeps Gymnastics Team As Prince

By KARL JACKSON
Although football is generally considered the king of sports, a number of smaller and almost unknown athletic teams here on campus make up the king's court. Gymnastics is one of those sports. With a small squad of 23 men and women, the gymnastic team competes in state-wide competition in various invitational meets with several college across Texas. Presently, the team's schedule includes meets with San Jacinto Jr. College in Houston, University of Texas and Pan Am College. These meets, which start in February will culminate with a state meet at San Jacinto in March.

Under the leadership of Coach Max Stratton, the team is engaged in conditioning exercises for the up-coming season. Workouts are in the Apparatus Room of G. Rollie White and last from 5-7 p.m. and are closely supervised. With guidance from the Texas Intercollegiate League and NCAA rules, the list of events or apparatus for the girl's team is the balance beam, free exercise, side horse vaulting and uneven parallel bars.

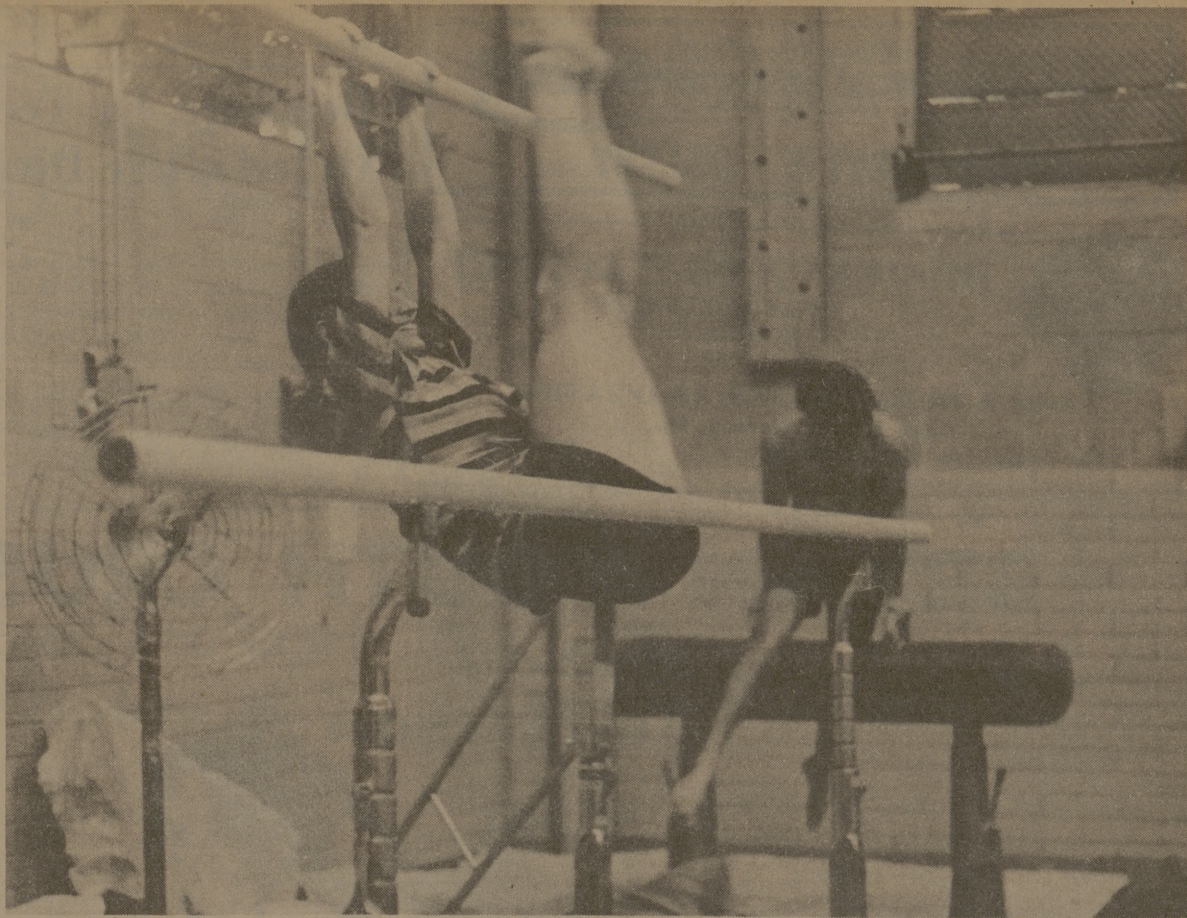

Men's competition is done with rings, parallel bars, vaulting, free exercise, side horse and the high horizontal bars.

Each apparatus is judged on a difficulty factor and the routine must include certain moves and actions.

"You pick a routine and stick with it all year long," said Sam Seidel. "Every meet, it's the same routine until you have it down perfect, without even a wobble."

Points are awarded on the basis of difficulty versus form. Individual scores are compiled into a team score.

"We were hampered last year by an all-freshman team," said Seidel. "As a team, we did alright, considering the experience but this year's team will be a lot stronger and better."

LAQUITA JOHNSON, a member of the A&M gymnastics team, demonstrates a cast back from the high uneven parallel bar to the low bar. The stunt is an exercise in fundamental manual dexterity. (Photo by Gary Baldasari)
