'The Aggies Are Back'

Editor:
How many times have we heard the phrase "the Aggies are back"? After Saturday night's performance, you better believe that those Ags are indeed back. No member of the 12th man had better walk away from that game angry. We were all disappointed because the team did not receive a well deserved win, but more important, we were darn proud of the level of play.

The Aggies performed this past weekend in a manner that all sports should be played. The game against Texas Tech revealed an unmatched plateau of spirit, enthusiasm, desire and lethal potential, and the players have been commended abundantly.

Another point worth noting is the 12th man that was present, and the spirit, enthusiasm, desire and potential it possesses. This game and all the criticism which has flown wildly these last few weeks has, in my opinion, taught us all an overdue lesson that should not be forgotten for quite some time. Namely, that to win is not as important as society insists if desire and excellent sportsmanship are the focal concerns.

Let us all try to maintain this high standard of feeling.

Editor:
Immunity is a word that can apply to things both good and bad. Immunity to disease is good, but immunity to the law is bad. The immunity the bicyclists at A&M enjoy is certainly becoming bad.

This is not a letter to knock the registration of bicycles or to support the strict enforcement of the parking regulations. It is a letter to urge all the students and faculty that ride bicycles to observe the traffic regulations of the university. The people who run stops signs and weave across the road create a very dangerous situation.

After crashing my motorcycle avoiding a bicycle which ran a stop sign, I feel re-enforced in my belief that the bicycles should not be immune to the rules. Before we have a real tragedy and get someone killed, let us all observe the rules and keep all the good Aggies alive and pedaling.

Thank you,

Nixon Vetoes Anti-Pollution Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Tuesday night vetoed a $24.6-billion bill aimed at riding American waters of all pollution by 1985. But the Senate quickly voted to override the veto.

The Senate vote was 52 to 12, nine more than the two-thirds majority required to override. The House is expected to vote on overriding Wednesday afternoon. The Senate vote came early

Students have the one wheeled machine, but only two of them ride them to class, he said.

Crider said he would like to form a unicycle club at A&M. Only five members are needed to form one in addition to a faculty sponsor.

A unicycle would not be a requirement for joining the club and its purpose would be to promote interest in the fun aspect of the unicycle.

Anyone interested should contact Crider at 845-6178 or at Dorm 1, Room 121.

Wednesday, two hours after Nixon had slapped down the $24.6-billion measure by calling it stagering and budget-wrecking.

Nixon said any spending bill this year which would lead to higher prices and taxes "defies signature by this president." He said "I have nailed my colors to the mast on this issue; the political winds can blow where they may."

He had asked for a water-pollution bill that would have committed $6 billion in federal funds over a three-year period and he called the bill which came to his desk "a staggering budget-wrecking $24 billion."

He said every dollar this bill asked above his proposal "would exact a price from the consumer in the form of inflated living costs or from the taxpayer in the form of a new federal tax bite or both."

Nixon said he was prepared for the possibility that his veto would be overridden by Congress, saying: "The defeat of my proposal for a spending ceiling showed that many senators and congressmen are simply AWOL in our fight against higher taxes."

He said if his veto is not sustained, the issue will be clearly drawn. "As with this bill, a vote against a tax increase. A vote to override the veto is a vote to increase the likelihood of higher taxes."

He said that if his veto is sustained, it would by no means terminate existing federal water-quality programs.

Legislature Breaks Off Insurance Talks

AUSTIN (AP)—Legislators quit in a huff at midnight after breaking off negotiations on an insurance rate bill, and an aide said Gov. Preston Smith had gone to bed still debating whether to call a record-setting fifth special session.

The word that the governor had decided to sleep on it was relayed shortly after midnight, and it was also announced he would hold a news conference at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Speaker Rayford Price told House members he understood the session was to start at 10 a.m.
