

A&M will host more than 300 machinery engineers from throughout the world next week for the first symposium and production show dealing specifically with turbine machines.

and advanced engineering lectures the final day.

Dr. M. P. Boyce, head of TAMU's Gas Turbine Laboratories, said the program provides a forum for exchanging ideas on turbo-machinery advances.

The sessions will have more than 40 guest speakers or consultants from industry and educational institutions.

Aggies Host Frogs In Must Battle

By BILL HENRY
Battalion Sports Editor

The rejuvenated Texas Aggies will host the TCU Horned Frogs Saturday night in Kyle Field beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Whichever team loses the contest can kiss any hopes of the Southwest Conference crown for 1972 good-bye. Both the Aggies and the Frogs have lost one conference game and no team has ever won a conference title with two losses.

TCU's conference loss was experienced against Arkansas two weeks ago, 27-13, after leading the potent Porkers, 13-0.

The Aggies lone conference loss came against Texas Tech last Saturday night, 17-14. The Aggies showed an abundant amount of promise in the contest after being terribly erratic in three previous games which ended up as losses.

No one will ever know whether it was lineup changes or a new winning attitude that sparked the Aggies to one of the finest games ever held at Kyle Field. A&M was aggressive, fired-up and moved the football with authority against the tough Tech squad.

After the Tech contest, Raider coach Jim Carlen was glad to see it end. "We beat an outstanding team," he said. "A&M hit us harder than we've been hit in three years. I don't know if we deserved to win but I'm glad the A&M game is behind us. I wouldn't want to have to play them again."

This will be the 68th meeting between the two teams with A&M holding a 32-28 lead with seven ties. Last year TCU handed the Aggies their last defeat of the year until Thanksgiving, 14-3. TCU also won the 1970 and '69 games.

Injuries will not be a factor on the A&M side but TCU will be playing without starting quarterback Kent Marshall due to a broken collarbone suffered last week against Tulsa.

Sisemore On TU Defense

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Texas' All-America offensive tackle Jerry Sisemore has been practicing with the defensive team for spot duty in passing situations against Arkansas Saturday night.

Texas coaches have been unhappy with Texas' pass rush and figure the 6-foot-4, 260-pound Sisemore, exceptionally quick for a big man, might help hurry the throws of Arkansas quarterback Joe Ferguson.

The move recalls similar two-way duty in the early 1960s by another exceptional Longhorn football player, Tommy Nobis, who was an outstanding linebacker and also played offensive guard when Texas got near the opponents' goal line.

Texas is practicing behind guarded gates, but defensive line coach Pat Patterson revealed the Sisemore switch to middle guard Wednesday, perhaps to give Arkansas something else to think about. Patterson stressed that Sisemore would be just a spot player for the defense.

Linebacker Randy Braband has been working at defensive tackle to help with the pass rush, and sophomore Tommy Keel, strong against the pass, will divide time at safety with Adrian Ford.

Mike Bayer is recovered from an injured ankle and will be back at his defensive halfback spot. Defensive end Jay Arnold, who missed the Oklahoma game with an injured throat, will be ready, but Bill Rutherford will start.

A&M's Dozier Gets An Ace; Houston Solid SWC Choice

DALLAS (AP)—The University of Houston was a solid favorite today in the second annual Southwest Conference Match Play Tournament, marking the first time new member Houston has competed in a conference event.

Texas A&M's Clay Dozier scored a hole-in-one in Wednesday's practice round. He aceed the 165-yard No. 7 hole at Oak Cliff Country Club with a 6-iron.

The pullout of Texas' golden boy Ben Crenshaw to participate in the World Cup amateur competition in Buenos Aires, Argentina, gave the Cougars a slight edge over the defending NCAA champions.

Texas has won two straight national titles. Houston took the crown 12 of the previous 14 years.

Among the top individual players include Houston's Bill Rogers, the defending Southern Amateur champion who was fourth in the NCAA and Texas' Warren Chancellor, runnerup in last week's Tucker Invitational in Albuquerque.

Champions will be named in team play, four ball, two ball and individual medal play.

Colorado Picked To Defeat Sooners In Big Eight Upset

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

OAKLAND (AP)—A strange mixture of handlebar mustaches, a mule that comes to dinner and utter team discord have made a winner of the Oakland A's in the World Series, but desire—corny as it sounds—is still the driving force in college football.

That's the ingredient that makes Colorado and Tennessee good bets to pull upsets this week. Southern Cal and Nebraska, meanwhile continue to roll.

Last week's picking score: 46-11, .807. Season: 219-65, .771.

Southern California 38, Washington 7: even if they had Sonny Sixkiller, which they don't, the Huskies would have little hope in this one.

Colorado 28, Oklahoma 20: The Buffaloes have been a slumbering giant and the Sooners spent a lot beating Texas.

Tennessee 17, Alabama 10: Forget the flashy passers and ball carriers. This is a game of swarming defenses.

Michigan State 25, Wisconsin 18: The Spartans strain their limited resources for on-the-spot Duffy Daugherty.

Penn State 38, Syracuse 14: Deterioration of the Orange hurts what once was the East's top independent rivalry.

Auburn 25, Georgia Tech 20: The Plainsmen have fooled us most of the season; now maybe they can help our average.

Notre Dame 37, Missouri 14: The Fighting Irish are jelling into one of the country's top powers.

Air Force 28, Navy 13: The flyers take the first corner of the service academy triangle. Army is next.

UCLA 27, California 13: The Bruins have had a year to seethe over last year's 31-24 setback.

Harvard 19, Cornell 14: The victory over Columbia moves the Harvards into Ivy League prominence.

The question mark for the Aggies will be in experience. Quarterback Dean will be starting only his second game as a varsity performer as will Simonini, Hulin and Seeker. From that point on, the Aggies are knee-deep in experience.

Running backs for A&M will be senior fullback Brad Dusek, junior halfback Mark Green and freshman Bubba Bean at the other halfback.

Split end duties for the Aggies will be divided between freshmen Richard Osborne and Carl Roaches. Tight end will be senior Homer May who had an outstanding game against Tech grabbing five passes for 84 yards while putting out tremendous effort.

Senior Ralph Sacra and Seeker will man the offensive tackles while seniors Buster Callaway and Todd Christopher will be at guards. Senior Skip Kuehn, who played his best game as an Aggie last week, will be at center. Senior Max Bird and Hulin will be at defensive ends while senior Boice Best and junior Bill Wiebold will man the tackle slots.

Seniors Grady Hoermann and Kent Finley along with Simonini will man the linebacker spots. The secondary will be made up of seniors Corky Sheffield, Robert Murski and juniors Dwight LaBauve and Larry Ellis.
